FOR REEVE OF KENYON.

The nomination for a successor to fill the acancy caused by the late lamented death of Jas. Fraser, Reeve of Kenyon, took place on Monday, at the Town Hall, Greenfield, and owing to the very dangerous and un-satisfactory state of the roads, the attendance was not large, but was very representative and respectable. The township clerk, J. D. Cameron, took the chair at 12 o'clock, and called for nominations for the

The following nominations were put in.

Moved by John J. McDonald, seconded by John N. McCrimmon, that Duncan C. Campbell, of 2-9, is a fit and proper person to represent the municipality of Kenyon, at the municipal board as reeve for the unexpired time of 1896.

Afer waiting about half-an-hour, the next nomination paper was put in.
Moved by Duncan Fraser, seconded by P. W. O'Shea, that A. M. Campbell is a fit and proper person to be elected as reeve of the municipality of the Township of Kenyon for the balance of the year 1896.

for the balance of the year 1896.

Then another wait, and as the hour off one o'clock approached, J. J. Anderson, o Dominionville, approached the table and made the following nomination:

Moved by Donald Finlan, seconded by J.

J. Anderson, that Jas. Clarke is a fit and proper person to be elected as reeve of the nunicipality of Kenyon for the balance of the year 1896. As it was now one o'clock, it was carried unanimously that J. D. Cameron be chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Cameron said it was with deep regret Mr. Cameron said it was with deep regret that they were called together on this occa-sion, through the death of their late lamented reeve. Mr. Fraser had tried to do his duty always. He hoped they would be able to settle the matter without having

D. C. Campbell was called upon and said he was requested by a number of electors to offer himself for the position. He was a councillor for one year and deputy reeve for four years, and if elected to be their reeve he would do the best he could to serve

A. M. Campbell was surprised at the short speech of the previous speaker. He was always pleased to address the electors, as he found that their interests were his interests. He was before them as a candidate for reeve, but it was not of his choosing. He thought that one man should not occupy the office too long. He hoped that the young men before him would come forward and take the place in the future. It was with feelings of sadness that he came forward the band of the place with the late. ward; he had sat with the late Mr. Fraser, and always found him doing his best; he had been solicited from the east, west, north and south to come forward; Allan Fraser, brother of the late reeve, had asked him as from the family to fill the place of his late brother. When they last met together, they had discussed the bonus of the C. A. Railway, but it was not coming apagain. In a time of depression we should try to keep down expenditure. He thought we had too many laws a weeked too many laws. we had too many laws; we had too much legislation; they became so mixed up that it was hard to make them out. A petition was presented from the County of Simcoe to these United Counties to abolish County Courts. It was in the interests of towns to officer of the courts in Cornwall, it had been said that he would go against the petition, but it was not so, as he with A. A. Stewart had worked against County Courts. If we men to have all the advantages of the courts. It was said that the Division Court met at Maxville, and farmers had to go a long distance, when they could as well have it here at Greenfield. He had no desire for the office, but the call came from the late Mr. Fraser's family, and that should have weight. He asked them on behalf of the bereaved family, and he appealed to the ratepayers and to Messrs. Clark and Campbell to grant their request.

Jas. Clarke said he hardly knew how to answer the preceeding speaker. The court business had little to do with the township. They had been appealed to by Mr. Fraser's friends through Mr. Campbell, but these friends had no franchise of the township. He said Mr. Campbell was elected reeve in 1888, but next year he never came near them to give an account of his stewardship, Protect your families by taking a Life Insurance Policy. Pedicies issued on the most liberal plans and with fewer restrictions. New features now being introduced, such as the Double Maturity and lustaiment Plans. Take an Accident Policy. Why should an accident crippie you financially when it can be procured so cheaply? Protect your property by placing a reasonable amount or insurance on it.

Companies represented:—The Manufacturers' Life, the Manufacturers' Accident, the Guardian of England, the Northern of England: the Western of 'anada.

In Manufacture is the Manufacturers' Accident, the Guardian of England, the Northern of England: the Western of 'anada. but he was succeeded by A. A. Stewart. He did not appeal for the position or wish but wished to settle it and save $70 expense to the township. He said as the repres-entative men of the township were there, he proposed that they take a vote of those present, and whoever had the majority let them be declared elected. Let the candidates go out, and let the elerk divide the

A. M. Campbell said at the time spoken of by Mr. Clark, he was at the nomination and made a good report under the circumstances, with a balance in the treasury. He further referred to the Division Court business, and said that he was in the County Council, and fought out alone for proper equalization when Mr. Clark was not pres-

Jas. Clark said that for several years, he had levied about $500 a year for township purposes, and it was no wonder that at the lose they had not much in the treasury. A. M. Campbell offered to retire if Mr. Clark would do the same.

S. Campbell, J. J. Anderson, J. P. McNaughton and others thought Mr. Clark's elsewhere. Ontario still has vast resources proposition a good one, but J. McCrimmon at her command,—a heritage intended for

After a long conversation by those present, THE MOST HEALTHFUL AND SAFE A. M. Campbell ascended the platform, and stated that he would retire from the field, and allow the other two candidates to fight it out.

After another wait, Mr. Clark said he did not wish to have a contest, and he would not stand in the way, but with the consent of his mover and seconder, he would retire.

The chairman then declared D. C.

Campbell elected reeve for the remainder of year 1896.
D. C. Campbell said he could not find words to thank them, but would do the best he could to carry on the business of the township.

Three cheers were given for the reeve elect, for the candidates, and the chairman, and this very interesting meeting broke up, with the best of good feeling amongst the candidates and the electors.

FOR COUNCILLOR IN ALEXANDRIA.

The nomination for a councillor to fill out the unexpired time of Alec. Lalonde, resigned, took place Tuesday, at 12 o'clock, noon, in the Council Chamber. A. L. Smith was returning officer, and a large number assembled, and great interest seemed to be taken in the proceedings. Six nominations were made as follows:—

John McKinnon was moved by R. Mc-Lennan, seconded by G. I. Nichols. M. Cardinal was moved by O. Tailfer, Jos. Cole was moved by A. D. McPhee, seconded by J. O. Mooney, J. O. Simpson, J.W. Irven, Geo. Hearnden and F. Sabourin. Alec. Lalonde was moved by Francis Sabourin, seconded by I. B. Ostroni.

N. Bray was moved by P. A. Huot, seconded by I. Laurin, F. Groulx and L. Lalonde. Allen J. McDonald was moved by George Hearnden, seconded by F. Sabourin.

Alec. Lalonde was called upon, and after saying a few words about the differences amongst the French, resigned. N. Bray had been nominated at a meeting of the French on Friday evening. His name was offered as a candidate, but he would withdraw if there was opposition. He had no desire to go into the council, but if they wished him, he thought it his duty to do all he could for the interests of his people. He thought when he saw one man's name to several nominations that this man was bound to raise a row. He had no ambition for the place, hut as he was nominated by a popular meeting, he would try and fill the office if elected, and do all in his power to represent this great corporation in the council. He then spoke in French. Joseph Cole said he had made up his mind that he would not run again, but cir-cumstances had altered and he would accept the nomination, and if elected would serve

A. J. McDonald on being called upon, said he would resign in favor of Mr. Cole.

M. Cardinal said he had been asked to stand for the council by many French citizens. He had too much to do in attending to his business, but if they elected him he would be the best he could to represent them.

He also spoke in French.

A. G. A. Rohinson said that they had neglected the Station. He thought they should elect Mr. Cole by acclamation, as he was a practical man, and knew how to handle machinery; he was honest, and no man could say one word against him. He thought that nationality should not be thought they are the same request, and W. J. Shupson, secretary, asking the council to pass a by-law abolishing shop licenses.

Also, a petition from the St. Finnan's Total Abstinence Society, signed by Geo. J. Harrison, president, and W. J. Shupson, secretary, asking the council to pass a by-law abolishing shop licenses.

He was neither French or Scotch himself. We were citizens first; he had nothing against accommodation in connection, such as was are to abolish County Courts, we must bring up the Division Courts to try cases for larger amounts. We should allow the poor that way. As far as the Station was con-cerned they had no representative, but Mr. Lalonde had looked after them.

A. A. Boyd asked the reeve if we were not to have the electric light service all night. On Wednesday Messrs. Cardinal and McKinnon withdrew, and the contest will be between Messrs. Cole and Bray. The action. polling will be on Tuesday next.

Reeve D. A. McArthur said he did not know that this was promised, but a contract should be made in each case, and it will specify what service they were to get. He thought it was the intention of the council to carry out what Mr. Boyd had referred to. But they were now under big expense for fuel, and had a difficulty in getting wood up to the power-house. They were to get a heater, and when everything was in good shape they would take up these things, and the matter would be brought up at the meeting of the council to be held this

(Tuesday) evening.

The meeting then broke up with Messrs. Bray, Cardinal, McKinnon and Cole in the field.

We have just received an attractive little pamphlet from Hon. John Dryden, the Onttario Minister of Agriculture, entitled "The Pioneer Farm and the Wabigoon Country, Rainy River District. The attention of the Department having recently been called to this hitherto unsettled region, Hon. Mr. Dryden determined to establish there what he termed a "pioneer farm," to demonstrate in a practical manner the country's agri-cultural capabilities. The experiment so far has been very successful, and this pamphlet giving general information regarding the section, which is now open for settlement, is the result. It is illustrated and contains a map of the district. This information will be very opportune in view of the increasing demand at the present time for cheap land, especially on the part of young men of small capital, the sons of farmers, who desire to secure farms and homes of their own. as seconder of one of the candidates he her own people,—and presents advantages and not accept it.

Ahern & Soper contend that their contract only called for placing the wires upon the poles, but not to guy them.

A. C. McDonald was present, and in an answer to a question, said the Canada Atlantic would not wire their buildings at the station now, as they intended raising the roof of the restaurant and then put in thirty lights. A communication was received from Alex. Potter, of New York, engineer of the water-works, in reference to the stand-pipe, and he recommended the council to pay the contractor $2,000 on account, as he had not made money on his contract. The painting, &c., could be done to better advantage later. Another communication in reference to the building of the power-house; he said the

He never found a vibration while he was there, but if there was, the stone work could

CANADIAN BOAT SONG.

To the Editor of the G ENGARRIAN:

DEAR SIR,—Can any of your readers give any information about Lord Eglinton's visit to Canada when he wrote the "Canadian Boat Song" beginning with the lines :-

Listen to me as when ye heard your fathers Sing long ago the songs of other shores. Listen to me and then in chorus gather, All your deep voices as ye pull your oars.

Fair these broad meads, these hoary woods are grand. But we are exiles from our father's land.

From the dim shieling on the misty island Mountains divide us and a waste of see s, But still our hearts are true, aur hearts are Highland,

And we in dreams behold the Hebrides. The song was published in Tait's Magazine as a paraphrase or free translation of a should by all means investigate the Wabi-goon country and other unsettled portions of Ontario before turning their attention elsewhere. "That is exactly what no one knows, except she herself, of course, and—one other." Then, turning impulsively to face his nephew, "I thogult you could have told me where she is," he says, without giving himself time to think of all the words may convey to Dorian. "What do you mean?" demands Branscombe, throwing up his head, and flushing darkly. His eyes flash, his nostrils dilate. I, at least, shall never forget the white misery of her face, and the unmistakable confusion in her manner, as I greeted her. Even then the truth began to dawn upon me."

"The truth?" says Branscombe, with a short and bitter laugh.
"At that time I was unwilling to harbor unkind doubts of you in my breast," goes on Sartoris, unmoved, nay, rather confirmed in his suspicions by Branscombe's sneer; "but then came the night of the Hunt ball, when I met you alone with her, in the most secluded part of the grounds, and when you were unable to give me any reasonable explanation of her presence there; and then, a little tart, I find a handkerchief (which you yourself acknowledge having given her lying on your library floor; about that, too, you were dumb; no excuse was ready to your lips. "The man who saw you will swear to this."

'He must be rather a elever fellow I congratulate you on your 'man.' "Do you deny it?" There is something that is almost hope in his tone. "If not there last Tuesday, at that hour, where were you?"

"Well really, it would take me all my time to remember. Probably dining; got to my fish by that time, no doubt. Later on I was at Lady Chetwoode's crush; but that"—with a sarcastic laugh—"is a very safe thing to say, is it not? One can hardly prove the presence of any one at a gathering together of the clans, such as there were at her 'at home.' I wouldn't believe I was there if I were you."

He laughs again. Sartoris flushed hotly all over his lean earnest face.

"It is needless lying," he says slowly. "The very coat you wore—a light overcoat,—probably" (pointing to it) "the one you are now wearing—was accurately described." Dorian starts visibly. "Do you still hone to brave it out?"

"Then you deny nothing?"

"Nothing!"— contemptuously, making a movement as though to depart. "Why should I? He frowns heavily, and, with a little gesture common to him raises his hand and pushes the end of his fair mustache between his tee. L. Then, with a sulden effort, he controls himself, and goes on more quietly: "In the dusk of the evening any one might easily mistake one brother for the other. "Is he?" says Dorian, with a badly-suppressed yawn. "Of course I was mistaken, but really it occurred to me that he was in the abominable temper. Is a desire to insult every one part of the reward?"

"You Dorian?" Horace, raising his eyes, smiles upon him his usual slow impenetrable smile. "Working? Yes; we others, the moneyless ones, must work or die; and death is unpopular nowadays. Still, law is dry work when all is confessed." He presses his hand to his forehead with affected languor, and for an instant conceals his face. "By the bye,

Can Horace have committed this base deed? This fear usurps all other considerations. Going back upon what he has just heard he examines in his mind each little detail of the wretched history imparted to him by his uncle. All the suspicions—lulled to rest through lack of matter wherewith to feed them—now come to life again, and grow in size and importance, in spite of his intense desire to suppress them.

On Tuesday night the girl had left her home. On Tuesday morning he had been to Horace's rooms, had found him there, had sat and conversed with him for upward of an hour on different subjects,—chiefly, he now remembers, of Clarissa Peyton.

PRACTICAL FARMING.

The dairy should have a good-sized ventilating flue in the ceiling, as well as a couple of small openings on the two ends, and these should be provided as a couple of small openings on the two ends, and these should be provided with shutters or means of opening and closing as necessity demands. Besides a good heavy shutter for the door, a strong wire door should be swung on the outside, so the dairy may be thoroughly ventilated at night during the summer season. A stone or cement trough on one side of the room, raised about a foot from the floor, gives us trough on one side of the room, raised about a foot from the floor, gives us a very convenient place to cool the milk or keep the cream and butter, and a cake of ice placed therein once a day, gives us all the dampness that is desirable, and a temperature that will insure good, cold milk for the table, and butter that is nice and solid. The cost of constructing a combined ice house and dairy, as the above, would be about $250, if brick is used, or $150 if it is all made of wood above the foundation. We would use no wood in building the dairy. We would not only have the walls of stone and brick, but would arch the dairy overhead with the same material so there would be nothing to rot or be-

Torpedos of the automobile class have already proved their powers of offence in the Chilian and Japanese wars, and these, with sunken mines and floating torpedos, will probably prove a chief source of fatality to naval vessels engaging in coast attacks in any future war. He can get notoriety—generally as a bore—in Congress, and in rare instances, may make his mark in a minor way; but political competition is as a rule, too keen for his modest abilities and patient methods to make much impression. The plodder, however, has much to encourage him. If he is wise enough to persevere steadily in wisely selected work, he may be assured of gratifying success.

The advance in the use of high explosives.

War at the present day is quite certain to be vastly more costly than the wars of the past decades. A single great battle ship, when equipped ready for action, may cost $4,600,000 or $5.70 or action, may cost $4,600,00 off that measure as long as possible. We may be sure that it will be insisted upon in any future war that the soldiers and sailors who go out to risk their lives in their country's service shall receive pay that would have been accounted out of the question a generation ago. Inasmuch as future wars are likely to be much more fatal to those engaged, the pension bill to follow will be greater in proportion.

During the past quarter of a century an enormous increase has taken place in the use of credit as a medium of exchange, and the great improvement and cheapening in transportation facilities has doubled and quadrupled or multiplied even more greatly the volume of trade, both domestic and international. Each community, each section, each nation has its prosperity bound up with the fortunes of its neighbours in a way that was never before known in the history of civilization. Any interruption to the circulation of commerce, either its arteries, the railway and steamship lines, or its veins, the system of commercial credits and the currency, is at once felt the world around. Only a few years ago financial the currency, is at once felt the world around. Only a few years ago financial disaster in one insignificant South American republic made an era of hard times that was felt to a greater or less extent all over the world.

Commons which began on the 11th instant, will be an eventful one for English political parties. It may shape party lines for as long a period as did the session of 1886, when Mr. Gladstone and the majority of the Liherals threw in their lot with the Irish Nationalists. Nominally, the alliance of 1886 still exists, but it is extremely doubtful whether it will outlast the present session. On general principles, two of the three groups into which the Nationalists are now divided are in favor of sheering off from the Liberals, a divergence which both the Redmond and the Healy group made plain even before the general election of last year. Since then the education question has been the most diseussed of English domestic subjects, and the leaders of three groups, Mr. McCarthy, Mr. Healy and Mr. Redmond, have each given the Liberals notice that in opposing the plans of the government on education, they must not count on the support of the Irish members. The explanation of this change of front toward their allies of the last ten years is that when the Salisbury government amends the Education acts more money will be granted to the Church of England and to the Roman Catholic church for their schools; and although the question is exclusively an English one, the Irish members are determined to uphold the English bishops and priests. On the other hand, the Liberals are almost unanimous in their opposition to any further patching up of they will have to make their protests alone, for any help they may receive from the Liberal Unionists will be more than counterbalanced in the Commons by the eighty-two Irish votes. A break in the Liberal and National alliance was almost certain after an election which produced results like those of last year, and it may be just as well for the Liberals that it should come in the first session of the new Parliament.

The Liberals are still in the disorganized state in which the election of last summer left them, but an attempt at reorganization will be made in March, petuity. when the National Liberal Federation meets. The difficult task can be entered upon with more advantage when the Liberals in Parliament have determined upon their future attitude to- years ago. wards the Nationalists. After all the Liberal party has gone through for Home Rule, there is naturally some impatience at what is described as the ingratitude of the Irish party. The government does not need the Irish support, its own following in the Commons numbering 3:0, irrespective of the seventy Liberal Unionists, while the Liherals number only 177. As regard support in the Commons, no government port in the Commons, no government has been so extraordinarly well placed since the time of Pitt; and for alaman named Roy, and afterwards had most the first time since then, no question involving any constitutional change is likely to be submitted to Parliament, either from the government or

A very wise and aged owl
Dwelt in a hollow tree,
As wise and aged owls all do,— Or so it seems to me.

By day this wise and aged owl Slept, as all wise owls should; By night she taught an owlet school, Or hunted in the wood.

She taught the owlets how to cry "Tuwit! tuwit! tuwhoo"!
She showed them how to search for

As well-bred owls should do.

But O, alas! for this wise owl; So sorrowful her fate! One night she went to hunt for mice, And lingered out so late,

That ere she reached her hollow tree The sun had gained such height, That, needing dusk to find her way, She had to cease her flight.

A man endowed with great perfections, without good breeding, is like one who has his pockets full of gold, but always wants change for his ordinary And as she sat with blinking eyes,
As blind as any bat,
A small, boy came with stealthy tread,
And caught her in his hat.

All my experience of the world teaches me that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the safe and just side of a question is the generous and merciful side.—Mrs. Jameson. And now that wise and aged owl (As wise owls sometimes do)
Stands, stuffed, upon a mantel shelf,
And no more cries, "Tuwhoo!"

Queer Puzzles.

Here are some curious disturbances An inexhaustible good nature is one of the most precious gifts of heaven, spreading itself like oil over the troubled sea of thought, and keeping the mind smooth and equable in the roughest weather.—W. Irving.

There are some currous alsothorances of the logic of numbers and dimensions—usually the only absolutely sure thing we know of—and what the explanation may be we leave to wiser heads than ours:

Take a strip of paper or cardboard thirteen inches long and five wide, thus giving a surface of sixty-five inches. Now cut this strip diagonally, as true as you can, giving two pieces in the There is a moral excellence attainable by all who have the will to strive for it; but there is an intellectual and physical superiority which is above the reach of our wishes, and is granted only to a few.—Crabbe. shape of a triangle. Now measure exactly five inches from the larger end of each strip and cut in two pieces. Take these slips and put them into the shape of an exact square, and it will appear to be just eight inches each way, or sixty-four square inches—a loss of one square inch of superficial measurement with no diminution of surface. The question is, what becomes of that inch ?"

Here is another, still more puzzling to the inuddy apprehension of the

to the muddy apprehension of the news-monger:

A Persian died, leaving seventeen camels to be divided among his three sons in the following proportions: The eldest to have half, the second a third, and the youngest a ninth. Of course camels cannot be divided into fractions; so, in despair, the brothers submitted their difficulty to Mohammed Ali. "I'll lend you another camel to make eighteen and now divide them yourselves."

lend you another camel to make eighteen, and now divide them yourselves."
The consequence was each brother got from one-eighth to one-half of a camel more than he was entitled to, and Ali received his camel back again, the oldest brother getting nine camels, the second six and the third two.

An optical puzzle: Cut a piece of paper into two crescents or two quarters of a flat ring. Cut the whole piece into such a quadrant first, and scparate it into halves by a single cut. Set one above the other, so that one glance will cover both, and the upper one will appear smaller and shorter than the other—so much so that without the corrective of postive knowledge one would rective of postive knowledge one would swear to the difference. But change position and the effect is the same. The longer one becomes the smaller.

will object to them.

Get a lemon with a nice long stem or peak at one end. Cut a smail notch in this stem end a little below the middle for the pig's mouth, leaving the widest part above the notch for a nose. You can color the mouth red with red his body at four points where you think his legs ought to be. The front ones should be a little eloser together than th chind ones, and all should be thrust well into the lemon and be at an angle so Piggie may stand firm.

Pigs like to sit down sometimes, especially after eating, so you might make one of yours that way. All you have to do is to push the hind legs in a little farther so the rear end of the little farther, so the rear end of the lemon will rest on the table.

Next get some pins that have little black shiny round heads. Mamma will most likely have some on the cushion in her room. If she doesn't use them, you remember to ask auntie or grandma for some the next time you are there for a visit. Then you put two of them in above the nose and Piggie will have the sharpest little eyes you ever saw. Whittle out two ear-shaped pieces of thin-wood, stain them with ink so they will look pink, and press them in over the eyes so they will "lop"

ALEXANDRIA MARCH 6, 1886.

THE proposal of the Patrons to assess mortgages seems very short-sighted, as the mortgagor will have to pay the increased amount in interest in all cases, as the owner of money is not compelled to lend unless he gets a rate that will suit him.

Ar the present value of money the contention of Mr. Wallace that 5 per cent. was sufficient is we think not far from the right figure, as money can be obtained at 31 and 4 per cent. for large sums in England, and we think that we should not be called upon by of dollars for all the arable land. The aversharks to pay exorbitant figures for loans that are necessary, and the result of which may be of benefit to our townsmen and farming community.

THE 3rd of March came in with a blinding snow storm, and it also brought with it the second reading of the Remedial Bill. The one troubled the farmers and others by blocking up the roads and impeding business, the other is troubling the politicians and drifting them about hither and thither. But the sun will shine, and the air clear after the storm, and business will go on after the Remedial Bill is passed, and has taken its place in history.

We notice with favor that they have agreed been brought to bear upon the government to abolish all exemptions from taxation, by speculators, to have changed the meaning feeling of sympathy in the hearts of them a principle true in law and right in pracce, but we do not think they are right in vishing to do away with the deposit required for members of the Dominion House, as some of the Patron candidates may have to foot the bill in their constituencies.

The formation of an ice bridge on the St. Lawrence near Cornwall, has again proved the value of the N. P. to the farmer. We learn ringing in farm produce, and the incentive of obstitution of so has been that they can get higher Compleints of substitutions and the incentive of substitutions of substitutions are substitutions. Miss MacGillivray by her disinterested labours for the Society and the official number of the factory issuing it. her personal good qualities had endeared that many scizures were made from parties o do so has been that they can get higher prices for everything in the line of farm pro-Suce here than can be obtained in New York State. Potatoes bring 10 to 15 cents a bushel more, butter 4 cents per lb. and beef about 2 cents per lb. more in Canada than can be obtained across the border. If the policy of Free Trade, as advocated by only giving the cheese makers unnecessary the leader of the Opposition and his follow-trouble. Unless the branding of cheese be the leader of the Opposition and his follows, was in force here, our farmers would to take very much lower prices than now abtain, and even then would the market taken from them by he neighbors to the south of them. Pracical examples, are better than the fancy vague a classification as a "district," will lictures of the boantics of free trade.

We find the following in the Cornwall "Standard" of last week, and it would be well for our farmers and others to read it:-The spleudid ice bridge across the St. Lawrence river has afforded to those who are so inclined a good opportunity to smuggle dutiable goods into both Canada and the United States. Several parties have taken antage of this, but some of those who ertook to bring contraband goods into s section have learned that the Customs cials at Cornwall are far too shrewd and yer for them, and they have had to pay ato the Customs Department the duty paid alue of their importations, and in some eases the value of their teams and sleighs as a snug sum on by evading the Customs authorities. The smuggling of potatoes, corn, lard, pork and butter into Canada is striking illustration at the doors of the farmers of this district of the protection they enjoy under the N. P. These articles are all products of the farm, and under any one much lower that men are willing to risk eir teams and sleighs to bring them into the province, and to suggest some remedies. The first thing he could find fault with was the material given by the Education Depart-ment for the development of the minds of the scholars of the province. There was too much of it, and it was not all well adapted for reception by the minds of the children. But it was with regard to agriculture that he had most to say. Here are some of the figures which he submitted to the House. They are interesting. There are 22 millions of acres of land in this province, of which 11 millions are arable. The loss of the average crop value of the past five years was $2.75 per acre, or 300 millions age land value per acre in 1884 was $36; in 1894, $26, a falling of $10 per acre in 10 years, or a total falling off of $100,000,000. The increase of mortgage indebtedness in the past ten years was $200,000,000; add to this the decrease of farm unless in 10 years. this the decrease of farm values in 10 years, ($100,000,000) and you have $300,000,000, exactly the amount of the falling off of crop values. He did not blame the Minister of Agriculture for this, but he did think that the Government should adopt some plan whereby the practical results of the com-bined effects of increased capital, increased labor, and increased skill would show in this country. The great difficulty, he de-clared, was that the question of profitable production was not given sufficient consideration, and he offered his services free, in any capacity, to assist in doing something to gain for it the attention it

Mr. Marter accused the previous speaker of having failed to point out any of the flaws or weaknesses he started out to show in the Government's actions. Instead, he appeared actually as the apologist of the Government he was elected to oppose. He would like to know if the matter had been brought up in the Patron caucus, and if the member from Glengarry had been set up as mouthpiece of the party. If so, he was glad to know that the mask had fallen off, and that the country could see where the

BRANDING OF CHEESE.

The "Canadian Trade Review," of Montcal, in its last issue, has an article on this subject, and refers to the bill brought in by Hon. Mr. Foster, as not what is needed, or what was intended by Major McLennan, M.P., when he took the matter up and introduced his bill in the House. If branding is to be done, it should be made satisfactory as far as possible to the buyer and seller. Major McLennan's idea was to make it compulsory to have each cheese branded with the month of manufacture, and the number of the factory where manufactured, which number was to be registered, but the government measure only calls for branding the word "Canadian," and the number of the district in which it is manufactured, but does not make the branding on the cheese of the date of manufacture compulsory. This of identification, and pressure must have and use of the bill, so as to render it almost valueless for the purpose it was intended. When 90 per cent. of the factory men are in favor of it, when the British buyer and consumer called for it in unmistakable terms, sumer called for it in unmistakable terms, surely their wishes should be respected, and a strict law, fair to all, enacted. We quote the following from the article in the "Trade Review" referred to, and endorse the opin-Review" referred to, and endorse the opin-

The debate still goes on, but a vote may be taken next week on the amendment.

GAELIO SOCIETY, TORONTO.

Toronto, March 3rd. - The inaugural meeting of the Gaelic Society was held on the first Tuesday of this month in Richmond Hall, the president, Mr. Alexander Fraser, in the chair. Some interesting business was transacted, amongst other things being the treasurer's report, showing a substantial balance in hand over the outlays of the

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

A resolution of condolence with the family of the late Mrs. Mary McGillivray was submitted and carried unanimously in the following terms :-

Moved by Mr. J. Cattanach MacMillan, conded by Mr. Neil Robertson and carried That the Gaelic Society of Toronto, at its meeting of March 3rd, 1896, expresses its sympathy and condolence with the family of the late Mrs. Mary MacGillivray in their present deep sorrow and the loss which they have sustained in the death of their mother, and that the secretary be requested to transmit a copy of this resolution to Miss Mac-Gillivray on behalf of herself, sisters, brothers and relatives.

In putting the question to the meeting the president paid a high tribute to the character of the deceased. He said the old people were passing away, and their removal was a distinct loss to the Highland element of the community. Their influence has had a good effect, and it was for the survivors to appreciate their sterling worth, to cultivate the same good qualities so as to transmit to their successors the Highland name unsullied as they had inherited it. They had as a society been under many deep obligations to Mrs. MacGillivray and her

Mr. J. C. MacMillan said that those who knew Mrs. MacGillivray best esteemed her and her family most. She had a very friendly feeling to the Society as the members were well aware, but as one who had known indeed a Nathaniel in whom was no guile and whose piety was as unfeigned as it was conspicuous. Miss MacGillivray by her herself to them, and he was sure they all tained two suggestions worth recording. One was that the Society should collect with a view to publication, the Gaelic Folk Songs of Canada. These were of great interest and could be still collected in considerable numbers in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, the Megantic and Eastern Township District, Glengarry, the Ottawa Valley, Victoria County, North Ontario, Peel, Simcoe, Wellington, Grey, Bruce, Oxford, Middlesex, the Elgins, Kent, Lambton and in the Western Provinces. He gave some of the dates of the Highland settlements in these places, and of the character of the songs brought with the people, and o some original compositions produced by the descendants of the pioneers, instancing the pieces composed by MacMillan and Morrison of Glengarry and others. The second suggestion was that more enconragement should be given to the cultivation of bag-pipe music in Canada. The preservation of that music in Canada rested with the descendants of the Highlanders, and they ought to face their duty. The bagpipes as a musical instrument was not understood, bring about a change in musical opinion as to the value of bagpipes as a musical instru ment, and of the innsic as great composi-tion requiring a mastery in the art of manipulation and in musical science to do

"Dalriada" was the subject of an admirable paper by Mr. J. D. Spence, B.A., barrister. He wended his way skilfully through the bewildering theories of Scottish origins, and launched on the historic era with great ability. The Scots were the Dalriads. They came from Ireland and settled in Argyleshire naming it Dalriada. They were Irish Celts, and after several hundred years occupation of the small territory now comprising Argyleshire they gave a king Kenneth Mealpin, and a name, Scotland, to ancient Albion. The real Scots, therefore, were Celtic. A commanding figure among the Dalriads was St. Columba,

OBITUARY.

MISS JANE KENNEDY.

We regret to announce the death of Miss Jane Kennedy, sister of our respected License Commissioner, Peter Kennedy, of Dominionville, and Alex. Kennedy, of Apple Hill. Miss Kennedy had been ailing for some time, and from the infirmity of age, she, on Friday evening at her brother's residence at Apple Hill, passed over to the silent majority, much regretted by her friends and neighbors. She had attained the ripcold age of 77 years and was ripe for the Master's vineyard, she passed peacefully away. The funeral took place from Apple Hill to the North Branch cemetery, where the remains were placed in the vault, for future burial. The funeral was on Saturday, and was well attended despite the bad state of the roads. Rev. D. D. McLennan, her pastor, of Apple Hill, officiated at the Hill. ### THE THIRST FOR GOLD.

It Is Behind Some of the Present Day Jealousy of England.

In particular, the thirst for gold, in its concrete and tangihle shape, has proken out everywhere, almost as strongly as it broke out in the sixteenth century among Spaniards, Portuguese, and Elizabethan Englishmen, says the London Spectator. Mines, it is believed on the continent, are the swiftest, perhaps the largest, of all wealth producnaps the largest, of all wealth produc-ers, and not to possess them is to be poor. One great cause of the sudden exaltation of the jealous hatred of Great Britain is a belief that we have been suddenly enriched by new dis-coveries of mines yielding not only pre-cious metals, but even diamonds and rubies, shares in which have recently rubies, shares in which have recently excited a mania of speculation in Paris, Vienne and Berlin. Look, say the excited a mania of speculation in Paris, Vienna, and Berlin. Look, say the hungry continentals, at the wealth those selfish English are obtaining in Australia, South Africa, British Columbia and British Guiana, digging it out of the very ground. Why should those insolent islanders, with no conscription, have all that, and we nothing, except what we can make by tilling exhausted soils, or competing with all the world for the sale of our still very feeble manufactures? We will have some of the really fat things, if we have to fight for them.

AMONG DIAMOND DIGGERS SCENES IN THE COMPOUND IN

Precantions Against Theft-Cleanliness in Splte of Obstacles-It Is No Trouble to Tell the Dlamonds from Pebbics. There can be no doubt that the most interesting sight in the great De Beers mine at Kimberley is the compound, from side to side and from end to end of the compound, is a network of wires, the meshes being not more than an inch in width.

Under the porches of the sheds, in the sheds themselves, and about the bathing tanks in the centre swarm hundreds and hundreds of Kaffirs. It is here for the first time that the traveler "up country" sees the Kaffir (for under the generic head "Kaffir" the South African groups all the surrounding tribes—Basutas Shanghans, Zulus, Mataheles, &c.) in something approximating his original state. Most of them are naked to the waist, reckoning from whichever extremity you like.

One fellow that I was shown was drumming upon something that looked and sounded very much like a xylophone, little sticks of wood strung upon wires, and I declare the monotonous sequence of little sounded very well indeed. Another one, very old, his beard braided into a score of stiff little pigtails, was making anklets, rolling one hit of wire around another; for sixpence he gave me as many as I wanted to carry away. A third was smoking. Observe the manner of it. He had cut off ahout four inches of bullock's horn, bored a hole near the tip in which he inserted the mouthpiece, and had filled up the horn with some fearful unknown weed which sputtered and recked when he drew upon it. As the smoke filled his throat and lungs he would eough and cough until the tears came into his eyes. "Unless it makes them cough," explained the timekeeper, who was my guide, "they don't like it." A little further on, where the Basutas were quartered (for the tribes affect different corners of the compound, and rarely if ever mingle with each other), some great zame was going on. "They rarely if ever mingle with each other), some great game was going on. "They get very excited over this game," said the timekeeper, "and gamble over it, hut no white man has ever been ahle to learn it." It looked very much like a variation of checkers. They had cut regular hollows, some fifty I should say, into a heavy board; about half a dozen were playing, and as far as we could see the game consisted of removing certain handfuls of pebbles from one hollow to another.

WORLD'S SHIPPING IN 1895.

Of the New Tonnage Lanuched Last Year, England Has Acquired 62.5 Per Cent.

The annual summary of shipbuilding prepared by Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipbuilding has just heen issued. It shows that the total outout of the world in 1895, not including warships was about 1,218,000 tons, 104,-000 of that being the total sail tonnage for the year. As far as being officially recorded, the amount of sea going tonnage totally lost in the twelve months was 700,000 tons, 290,000 steam and 410,-000 sail.

From these figures it can be seen that the world's sailing tonnage has been reduced 306,000 tons during the year, and the steam tonnage has increased about 824,000 tons.

Of the new tonnage launched, England has acquired 62.5 per cent. There were launched in England last year 579 vessels, a total of 950,967 tons. Of that number 526 were steam and 53 sailing vessels. In the same period fifty-nine warships were launched in England, including the output from both Government and private yards. The total output for the year from British shipyards put for the year from British shipyards is about 95,000 tons less than for 1894, but the proportion of steam tonnage to sail has materially increased.

In 1892 sailing tonnage formed about 24 per cent. of the output; in 1895 it formed about 5 per cent. These comparisons show the remarkable decline in the sailing tonnage of the world.

The summary also says that 98 per cent. of the steam tonnage and 97 per per cent. of the sailing tonnage was built per cent. of the sailing tonnage was built of steel. The largest steamers launched in the year were the Georgic, 10,077 tons; Victorian, 8,767 tons; and Armenian, 8,765 tons. The largest sailing vessel was victorian, 8,767 tons; and Armenian, 8,765 tons. The largest sailing vessel was the Iranian, 2,958 gross tonnage.

"I was engineer in a big natural gas plant at the time, and was busy all day about the engines. So I only had the nights to educate my goose. The goose was given to me by a friend. He was of the kind known as Chinese. They are larger than common geese, nearly as large as swans. The one he gave me was a young one, about eight or nine months old.

"I carried my goose home and tied him in the cellar of the huilding where I worked. Didn't give him anything to eat. That was part of his education.

"The next day I bought a set of children's toy blocks, with the alphabet, and numbers upon them. I cut strips of belting about three inches long and half an inch wide, and tacked a bit to each block. This was for the goose to take hold by. Then I laid in a few EARS OF CORN.

"The second noght I brought the goose up. He had had nothing to eat and was pretty hungry. I began with the first three letters of the alphabet—A,B C—showed him the difference between them, and kept at him until he brought me the right letter each time I asked for it. Then I rewarded him with a few grains of corn—not too much—and we went on to the next letters.

"He learned the whole alphabet perfectly in two evenings, and I never heard of a child who did as well. Every time he picked up the letter I called for I gave him a grain of corn, but I gave him nothing when he hrought the wrong letter. Know? Why, that goose was as eager to learn as I was to teach, just as soon as he found that the proper letter always brought him something to eat! "After that I had cards printed with short words upon them, and I taught the goose to bring the correct answer to questions I asked him. Some of my questions were: 'What is your name?' 'What is my name?' 'Where do you live?' 'How many days do you work?' 'Six," was the goose's answer. 'What do you work for?' 'Corn.' 'What do I work for?' 'Money."

"I had the days of the week printed in slips, too. Then I asked my goose slips, too ards were laid in a row upon the floor and the goose walked along in front of them, stopping at the right place. When I asked 'What day is to-day?' the goose marched gravely by each until he SAW MY FOOT MOVE

"He learned the whole alphabet per-the week.

"Now you may call that a smart goose or even doubt the story altogether, but it is true enough, and I believe many geese could learn as well as that goose did.

"He made a big reputation, though. I used to show him off to my friends, and they brought others to see my trained goose, and at last people came from all over the country to see that

They resemble a tiny set of gem tins, and have to be placed in a shallow pan which accompanies them, the cover being set tight over all; and the steam cooks the eggs perfectly. Eggs poached in this way never touch the water; but are removed from the buttered tins in round moulded form, as little or as much done as desired.

Good Manners at Home.

Perhaps no single thing in the education of children shows its value in the family circle more than the inculcation of good manners. Fathers and mothers, older brothers and sisters, should exercise good manners at home as well as teach their benefits to the younger members. Much of a family's happiness, indeed, depends on this, and therefore no one who is a member of a family eircle, with or without children, ean afford to heedlessly ignore the fact. Good manners are as effective a means of building up good feeling in a household circle as can be found, but, unfortunately, they are rarely found unfortunately, they are rarely found there. Fathers and mothers are apt to think "good manners don't matter for home use." But they are mistaken. It is said that "familiarity breeds contempt," and certainly, if it does not go that far, it has a tendency to cause each member of a family to loosen the check he or she keeps upon his feelings, especially on his selfishness, though when among strangers he finds himself expected, and almost compelled to control himself. trol himself.

Many—we grieve to say most people—are often rude, careless: and even unkind in their manners toward those nearest and dearest to them, who yet will be kind and courteous in company. This is not as it should be. Emerson says that one must agree to sacrifice his own feelings sometimes, to secure the peace and harmony that should dwell in every family, and he is right. No family can ever grow up in good No family can ever grow up in good feeling and real love toward one another, that has not been taught to cultivate good manner.

"Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices." Remember this, mothers and when you are teaching the little ones at your knee to be gentle, affectionate, polite or unselfish in manner, reflect that you are helping your child to grow up a man or woman who will leave an impression for great good on the family, and therefore on the great wide world. Forget not also that example is one of the easiest means by which to inculcate habit, and father and mother have it in their power thus silently to teach their children in many a pleasant way, when they are gather.

and the instrument which he used in his later years—a Guarnerius, dated 1743—would probably command something like £5,000, if it could be put in the market now. Indeed, the sum of £2,400 has already been offered for it and refused, and a report was lately circulated that £10,000 had been tried. circulated that £10,000 had been tried. But the instrument cannot be sold. Paganini himself bequeathed it to the city of Genoa, and the municipal authorities there are keenly alive to the value of the treasure. They have it bestowed in a glass case in the recess of a wall, which is again encased in heavy French plate glass, the whole being closed by a massive door. Every two months the seals are broken and the violin is played upon for about half an hour in the presence of city officials, and then it is replaced and put under municipal seal. This, of course, is done to keep the instrument in good condition.

Paganini came by the violin in a curious way. A French merchant lent him the instrument to play upon at a con-

the instrument to play upon at a concert at Leghorn. After the concert Paganini brought it back to its owner, when the latter exclaimed, to the delighted astonishment of the player: "Never more will I profane the strings which your figures have to reach a trings." "Never more will I protane the strings which your fingers have touched; that instrument is yours." The Genoa people have beeu in luck in the matter of violins. Sivori, who died last year, was a pupil of Paganini, and Paganini presented him, when a youth, with a very fine Guarnerius instrument. It was therefore, but natural that Sivori should wish his violin to rest beside Pagan-ini's, and so to-day, for a small fee, you can see both instruments in the municipal niche at Genoa.

the rhopala odorata, of the order proteaceae, presents a remarkable power of resistance to fire. In the district of Deliver, it is customery every year durof resistance to fire. In the district of Rolima it is customary every year, during the dry season, to set fire to the plains in order to destroy all the dry season, to set fire to the cup is put in boiling water, and the egg is put in boiling water, and the egg is ready to be eaten with no further question in regard to the shell. This way of cooking eggs is especially nice for an invalid; for eggs being so suitable as food to the sick, are difficult to prepare for eating by anyone confined to a sick bed; and every possible comfort and convenience should be provided for the invalid.

CRANBERRIES.

Cranberries should never be too ripe, or when cooked they will be dark and dull in color and lacking in flavor. While some prefer these refreshing berries gooked in their skins, the most elegant way is to put them through a column to the provided for the tree to resist, and still more so for a single tree forms an exception, and that is the one above mentioned—the rhopala. Small, distorted, and scraggy, and having a wild and desolate appear ance, this tree not only does not suffer from the fire, but derives profit thereform. It gradually establishes itself in localities abandoned by other trees and might have been anticipated to the favorable than might have been anticipated to the favorable than might have been anticipated. the report, said:

I am pleased to avail myself of this opportunity to supplement the necessarily brief remarks contained in the report by a few words relative to what appear to me as the most noteworthy features of the business of the past year

First, let me say in regard to the largest and most important department of the company, the Fire branch, that it is seldom that companies in Canada have been called upon to face a more unpropitious opening to a year's business than that of the one under review. The two large fires in Toronto in January, which were refer-Toronto in January, which were refered to at the Shareholder's Meeting in February last, were followed by a third and equally scrious one early in March. The aggregate loss by these fires was close upon two and a quarter million close upon two and a quarter million dollars, and the amount paid by Insurance Companies was in round figures, one million six hundred thousand dollars, or nearly one-fourth the entire year's Canadian premiums received by all the companies doing business in the Dominion. While our losses, considering the magnitude of these disasters were not excessive their effect The Gardeners' Chronicle gives some interesting details concerning a tree of Columbia which truly merits the name vegetable salamander. This tree, the rhonals oderate of the order prosucceeding month, however, was more favorable than might have been anticipated, and the Directors had the satisfaction of seeing, as the year progressed, a steady gain of income over expenditure, and an ultimate profit balance of some Seventy. Thousand Dellars was

My sary to say anyone who has been sufficiently interested in the lake car-rying trade to have noted the casualthat we have just passed through a year which has been unprecedented, both in the number and magnitude of its losses. From the opening of navigation to its close, vessels had to contend with the dangers arising from the lowest water ever experienced on our lakes, resulting in almost daily strandings in the river channels; while the fall months were more than usually prolific in storms, which brought disaster upon many of what were regarded as thoroughly seaworthy craft. When I add that within one single period of 10 days in the month of November, underwriters in Canada were vember, underwriters in Canada were called upon to pay ninety-five thousand dollars for losses on Manitoba grain cargoes (independently of the value of the vessels carrying them), it will readily be appreciated that the premiums received in this branch were not sufficient to meet the losses, and that has a consequence we in common not sufficient to meet the losses, and that, as a consequence, we, in common with all others engaged in this line of business, have transacted it at a loss. While this has materially affected the outcome of the past year's business of the Company, its effect will, it is believed, also be to place Inland Marine Underwriting upon a more satisfactory basis as to rates for the coming season.

It will be interesting to Shareholders to know that the Fire business of the present year has opened favorably, but perhaps the most gratifying any, but perhaps the most grathying feature regarding our present position is the steady growth of our Canadian income—particularly when considered in connection with our loss ratio during the past three years, as compared with the average results of all companies doing business in Canada—for the best recommendation a company can have abroad is evidence, such as this affords, abroad is evidence, such as this affords, of the public confidence it enjoys in its own home field. The security which the "British America" offers to policyholders, namely: The sum of its Reserve Fund ($520.112.05), and its paid up Capital ($750,000.00), making in all $1.270,112,05 in assets of unquestionable character, is, I feel assured, such as to continue to command for it an increasing share of public patronage.

In conclusion, I must express the Directors' appreciation of the work of our officers and field force during the past year, as well as of the services of our local representatives throughout Canada and the United States, who are so heartily seconding the efforts of the management in building up the Easter This Year on April 5.

The Directors' Report showed that there had been a moderate gain in premium income in the Fire branch over 1894; without any corresponding increase in losses, so that a very satisfactory profit was shown on the year's transactions. In the Marine branch, in common with all others engaged in lake underwriting, the Company had suffered from the unusually heavy losses of the past season, due in part to the unprecedented low water on our inland lakes and rivers, which prevailed during the entire season, and partly to the exceptionally disastrous storms in the closing months of 1894.

To each of the first three persons in every city and town in the Dominion of Canada who write The Alabastine Co., Limited, of Paris, Ont. giving the chapter containing the above passage of scripture, will be sent an order on the Alabastine dealer in the town for a package of Alabastine, enough to cover 50 square yards of wall, two coats, tinted or white. To all who apply, giving us the name of the paper in which they saw this notice, will be given an ingenious puzzle, the solving of which may earn you $50.00.

To test a wall coating, take a small quantity of it, mix in equal quantity of boiling water, and if it does not set when left in the dish over night, and finally form a stone-like cement without shrinking, it is a kalsomine, and dependent upon glue to hold it to the wall, the feature so strongly objected to by sanitarians.

This matter of looking to the sanitary nature of wall coatings seems to be considered of much importance of late. A supplement to the Michigan State Board of Health, condemns wall paper and kalsomines for walls, and recommends Alabastine as being sanitary, pure, porous, permanent, economical and beautiful. Alabastine is ready for use by mixing in cold water-

Sufferer from Severe Headache.

The lady referred to was for twelve The lady referred to was for twelve years a constant sufferer from nervousness, headache and kidney trouble. Having read so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she determined to give them a trial. Their use for a short time brought a great improvement, and after taking them for about a month the nervous headache and kidney trouble left her. The degree of thembfulness ter taking them for about a month the nervous headache and kidney trouble left her. The degree of thankfulness felt by one who receives such benefits as the above can better be imagined than described. Here are Mrs. Cotnam's words: "If you could only know or if I could but tell of the intense suffering which I have endured and the many sleepless nights I have spent in mental and physical agony, you would not wonder at the degree of thankfulness I feel for my restoration to health." Her trouble was a continual dread to her, and for a long time prevented her from doing any work. Since using the pills she is as well as ever—or to use her own words—"fully restored." In this household Pink Pills are now looked upon as one of the necessaries.

As is the case of every good cause Pink Pills have much to contend with; spurious articles have been placed on the market, and, though in appearance and color they may resemble the genuine, they have an altogether different effect upon the system. The writer was once in a store when Pink Pills were asked for by a customer. The dealer hadn't them but said that he had something "just as good." The public are warned against this "inst as dealer hadn't them but said that he had something "just as good." The public are warned against this "just as good" scheme which is too often resorted to by some store-keepers. It should be borne in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific for all diseases arising from an impoverished condition of the blood or a shattered condition of the nervous forces, such as St. Vitus dance, locomotor ataxia, rheumatism, paralysis, sciatica, the after effects of la grippe, loss of appetite, headache, dizziness, chronic erysipelas, scrofula, etc. They are also a certain cure for the troubles peculiar to the female system, correcting irregularities, suppressions and all forms of female weakness, building anew the blood and restoring the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature. Sold only in from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature. Sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and brain, saps its power and you gradually become impotent. It is called "lost manhood." Positive Cure for Rhenmatism and Paralysis.

Ryckman, member of Parliament for Hamilton, who is proprietor and patentee of the now famous is situated in the Rocky Mountains, I paying a visit to my silver mine, which "Some four or five years ago while him:

Some four or five years ago while him:
ccived the following statement from remedy, and on making enquiries, rehad a severe attack of rheumatism, from which I was a constant sufferer. One of my miners, who noticed my distress, told me that if I would take an Indian cure which he knew of, he would guarantee relief; as he had known it to cure, and never failed in any one case. He further stated that miners of the Cariboo District—situated in the mountains four hundred miles from any railway—had used it for the past forty years. After taking the medicine conscientiously, for four wecks, I commenced to notice a marked improvement in my general health, and inside of six weeks' time I had not a twinge of rheumatism in any part of my body, nor have I had a symptom since—and this after trying seven celebrated mineral springs, and nine medical men, at the expense of fifteen hundred dollars with no benefit whatever. Recognizing what a great boon to the suffering public such a remedy would prove, I determined to consult an eminent chemist, and through his aid have added valuable ingredients. One of them, heretofore, being entirely unknown, as it was discovered in Germany only a year ago." discovered in Germany only a year

After perfecting the remedy, I have given it a fair test in two cities, viz.; Hamilton and Ottawa. In these places eight hundred people have been cured or benefited. Since March last, nine-ty per cent. of those using Kootenay Cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, lame back, and indigestion have been cured, and no case of long-standing sores, salt rheum, eczema, or pimples on the face has been found, so far., that this remedy has not cured. Indeed it is doubtful, in case of the above four afflictions can be produced that cannot be cured by Kootenay Cure. Never has a patent medicine been known to produce such an unanimous outburst of grateful recognition from the suffering public an unanimous outburst of grateful recognition from the suffering public within the short time of six months. It recommends itself; and this shows it. All of the above is backed up by scores of testimonials, which Mr. Ryckman exhibited to your representatives, remarking that all would be published in the newspapers as he has permission in the newspapers, as he has permission to do so from the writers. See advertisement in this paper.

Kennedy was appointed for superintendent of Sabhath observance, and Mrs. Robert McGregor superintendent of "unferm intied wine" Several ladies were appointed on the following subjects: "The Sabbath dinner," "The entertainment of children on Sabbath," and "Sabbath Reading" for our next meeting to be held at D. Kennedy's. A paper was then given by C. M. Ewen on "The influence and benefits of the press."

A sing was very acceptably rendered by Duncan Kennedy, who bids fair in the near future to be a star in the profession. Mrs. (Rev.) D. McCallum was asked to give a report of the convention thing to having been there. There were bright spots in this report that must have gone home to the hearts of every mother present, to band themselves together to work for God, and home and native land. The good attention which all paid her testified to the interest and pleasure experienced in listening to her very instructive address. She concluded by urging all the young men present to sign the pledge, and the young ladies to wear a white ribbon, and never to go with or walk with a young man who smoked or used tobacco in any form After the singing of another hymn, a the singing class, which is held in the sometime, and can say with pleasure. resolution was passed that a letter of condolence be sent to Mr. and Mrs. A. The "Ladies' Aid" in connection with the Baptist Church here, have heen giving parlor socials during the winter. One of the most successful was given Tnes-day evening, at the residence of A. Edwards. Early in the evening crowds began gathering in, and by ten o'click the spacious rooms were filled. The early part of the evening was devoted to games, by which all became acquainted, and later, an excellent programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings, recitations and addresses was gone through with. A. M Campbell was elected chairman by the ladies. who always choose wisely and well, and he did not disappoint them. A quartette from Dominionville rendered several pieces very acceptably. An instrumental solo by Miss McNanghton, of Dominion-ville, was much appreciated. The treat of the evening was a recitation entitled "The Little Stowaway," given by J. Honeyford, also a reading by (Rev.) Mrs. Robinson, entitled "Mrs. McConkel's curiosity concerning Free-masonry" When this part of the evening's pleasure had passed, refreshments were served to which all did justice. The "wee sma" hours" had arrived by this time, but still everybody lingered. However, about two o'clock the last had departed, feeling well pleased with themselves and everybody else.
