Dear Sir,—Permit me through the columns of The New to return my sincerest thanks to my eanvassers and all who assisted me hy their generous support in winning the contest held in aid of St. Martin of Tours Church, Glen Robertson. Assuring one and all of my warmest appreciation, I am,

Yours sincerely,

The latest fad introduced by some of the hattalions is to perform certain evolutions such as marching at the quick, double or slow to the tune of "The Sailors' Horn Pipe." It is quite a novel sight to see from 800 to 1000 men practically doing "one-step" time around a large eircle with every man's foot hitting the ground at the same time. The work was "tried out" recently hy the 154th, but it had to be admitted that performing the trick to the martial strains of a pipe band was a different proposition if not a difficult feat.

The writer has been creditably informed that the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry contributed upwards of 500 able hodied men to the large number that have gone West to harvest the crops there. If such is the case, evidence is now before us that the scarcity of farm help at home was magnified to a degree when the military authorities were called upon to render assistance also that there are many men, medically fit within the bounds of the United Counties who have not responded to Counties who have not responded to the call to take up arms for King and

The Presentation of Colors

At the consecration of colors for the 154th Bn. in Cornwall last week, Rev. H. C. Sutherland of Lancaster, Moderator of Glengarry Preshytery, spoke as follows:

From time immemorial it has been the custom when Christian nations call out their armies to go forth to battle to seek the Divine bleesing on the enterprise and to endeavor to secure the powarful aid of religion. This is fitting. For they believe that God reigne and that He setteth up whom He will, and putteth down whom He will. They helieve that He broode over the hattlefield, and that the ultimate iseus rests with Him. They feel, therefore, that it is most wiss to implore Hie favor and help to seek His hlessing on their flag.

Now the British flag is a symhol of some of the highest principles of our civilization. It stands for liberty, justice, truth and righteousness. And it is today unfurled in a most righteous cause. This is indeed a holy war. And we believe that the British Empire, with her Allies, will be a weapon in God's hands with which Hs will scourge His foes. It is therefore most appropriate that we should seek most appropriate that we should seek His blessing on our colors in this Great Adventure.

The following prayer was then said:

Almighty and everlasting God.
Thou art eeated upon the throne of the universe and our little round is far below Thy feet. Thy sceptre raleth over all. Thou doest according to Thy will in the army of Heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth. Thou art the God of righteousness, and Thy face is ever against the wrong. Thou art the God of Liberty, and Thy Son appeared on the earth to make men free. Thou art the God of Justice, the Deliverer of the oppressed, the Defender of the wronged. The following prayer was then said: ed, the Defender of the wronged. Therefore, nuto Thee with confidence

This prayer was then said: We humbly besech Thee, O God, that Thou wilt bless this flag, and the principles for which it stands. May it remain unstained to the end. May it never touch the ground, but always

This district from which your men mainly come has a proud record in the history of Canada. While it is not the only neighborhood that has done a full share in the work of Empire-building in this new land its place is second to none. Some of our greatest public men are amonget those who have made the Eastern District of Ontario so well known.

Under the special circumstances in which we are met today, it will be necessary merely to refer to the first Bishop McDonell, who laid character foundations deep and firm, on which the staunch manhood of his people has been reared; to Bishop Strachan, whose large place in the training of the ethical and intellectual ideals of the Province was so well established; and Col. Macdonald, to your distinguished father, the Hon. D. A. of which I can myself remember, that sane and rugged Premier of On-tario, Sir James Whitney, who guided the destinies of the Province so wise-ly and well during ten record-making years of her history.

When you recall the pure patriotism these men displayed in their services to the country; when you recall the stern devotion to duty of the thousands of lesser prominence — the thousands of lesser prominence — the concession. thousands of lesser prominence — the plain men and women of the Concesplaiu men and women of the Concessions—who bravely did their work day in and day out without any pretense of heroism; when you recall the stand of the men who have already made "Canada" a foreword in the deeds of daring of the present worldstruggle—men who form a line that may bend hut never break—you will begin to realize a little of the task that is before you in maintaining the noble record. The work you are under taking is one for big men hut the "people of this land be ae giants in our eyes" for the blood of the old Counties has not grown cold nor thin, it runs ae full and red to-day as of yore, and you can reach as high a niche in the Arch of Fame as any who have gone hefors you. Tottering to Finish

Discussing the possibility of the stirement of some of the useless imber in Sir Robert Borden's cabtimber in Sir Robert Borden's cabinet of incompetents at Ottawa, the Toronto Telegram rapidly Conservative referring particularly to the portolio of Railways and Canals, and of the possibility of Sir H. L. Drayton accepting it, thinks it hardly likely that he will take it. The likely that he will take it. The Telegram observes that Mr. Drayton has a sure thing as chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission and to quote its own words: "He, Drayton, would not consent to give up the chairmanship of the Railway Commission to link his fortunes with a Government tottering to its finish.

Continuing the Toronto newspaper applies the scalped of its acrid criticism as follows:

"That Hon. T. Chase Casgrain detract from the brilliancy of the occasion. The 207th and 230th overcasion. The 207th and 230th overcasion.

"That Hon. T. Chase Casgrain would move to Paris with pleasure to himself and all others concerned to himself and all others concerned goes without aggument. But who is to take his place? Sir Rodolphe Forget is practically the only Quebec Conservative in sight, or who has even a remote chance of being in sight after a return to his constituents. And it would be too funny for anything to see Sir Rodolphe selling postage stamps to the alship. Truly, this country is suffer-ing from a scarcity of Cabinet tim-ber. The Civil War furnished the Der. The CIVII war turnished the United States with public men of calibre for years after the South was conquered. Surely the great holocaust in Europe will give Canada something besides honorary colonels.

"Hon. Martin Burrell will still continue to be Canada's chief farmer, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. There were those who believe ed that he would slip away back to his fruit ranch, and that in the gen-eral shuffle a place would be found for Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper. But the latter has lost caste as a result of the latter has lost caste as a result of his recent political activities in the British Columbia provincial campaign, and has found a place in the discard, even before he became one of the jokers in the deck.

"Hon. Dr. Roche, who has managed the Interior Department without scandal, and thereby put the out scandal, and thereby put the stamp of honesty on his near-states-manship, has been found none too pliant for political purposes and will prohably slip down—if the shuffle ever comes. In some quarters he is being spoken of as head of the new Pensions Board. That position will call for a man who is not susceptible to influence and who is possessed of sterling honesty, and it is claimed by Dr. Roche's friends that these are his chief characteristics. However, competition for this job will be seen. There is a feeling in the Ottawa air that a lot of Ministers will have much time on their bands about a year from now. A number about a year from now. A number of them would willingly devote this time to the Pensions Board, or any other work that provides position and emolument.

Meantime, Sir Rohert Borden, Sir Thomas White and Hon. Arthur Meighen are doing most of the chores around the Hill. Hon. Robert Rogers is also with us betimes, but with one eye on the disappearing Parlia-ment Buildings walls and the other ment Buildings walls and the other on the court proceedings in which his former friends in Winnipeg are so deeply interested, he can hardly be expected to do himself justice. By the way, it is hinted that there is more trouble coming in that commit more trouble coming in that commit-tee that is handling the reconstruc-tion of the Parliament Buildings, and it would not be surprising if all the Liberal members withdrew from while we have no control over the it in the near future.

Of course, the big question on everybody'e lips is, "What about Sir Sam Hughes?" And so far no man has been found who will venture to answer that question. There are many who tell you that the Minister of Militia will not return to Canada till after the war. But nobody will go so far as to say that Sir Sam will go so far as to say that Sir Sam will resign, or that anybody can be found with the courage to ask him to resign. Futhermore, military men are slow to believe that the British authorities would give a high command at the front to a man practically without experience on active service. And you can hardly imagine Sir Sam accepting anything but a high command. So there you are. Anyone who can work out the was any help to preserve our eves are. Anyone who can work out the problem and send an easy colution to Sir Robert Borden will be doing his Premier a distinct service.

The above is the diagnosis made by a newspaper staunchly supporting R. L. Borden. It may he taken as the candid opinion of a political friend of the powers misruling at Ottawa. The recent Liberal successes in different parts of Canada have put something resembling a panic in the Tory ranks. The forecast of the Telegram may be taken as a fairly accurate one of the federal condition. It will be noted that there is no reference to the Nationalistic influence. Such men as Blondin, Patenaude and Co, are to remain, which is but another suidons. din, Patenaude and Co, are to remain, which is but another evidence that the Tory-Nationalist pact is as strongly cemented as ever. The public will watch with interest the weeding down in the boiling pot. Foor, weak, spineless Borden has his troubles, but then he made them, so there you are.-Brockville Recorder.

One of the Most Remarkable Surgical Operations on Record.

One of the most remarkable surgical operations on record is now being performed at the Grand Palais, Paris, the massive building usually used for the annual salon but now transformed into a vast hospital. Here two soldiers lie side by side, hound tosoldiers lie side by side, hound to-gether like Siamese twins, while a large portion of the leg of one of them is heing slowly transferred into the leg of the other one. Scotsmen Are French Citizens.

Every Scotsman in France is a French citizen, with all the rights and privileges of such, if he chooses to claim them! In other words, every Scotsman born in Scotland is also a Frenchman, and is thus possessed of two nationalities. Surely a unique position.

Rheims has been very prominent during the present war, and it was there, after his coronation in 1429, that Charles VII. promulgated a de-cree that, in return for the assistance rendered by the Scottish soldiers to Joan of Arc, who defeated the Eng-lish and made his coronation possible, Scotsmen were for all time to be considered free citizens of France.

Now the whirligig of time has once more brought the Scots to the neigh-borhood of Rheims to assist their fellow French citizens, not against the English, ut, in conjunction with them, against the would-be destroy-ers of civilization.

Early last year a patriotic grocer in a small Scottish village decided that either he or his assistant must go. And as he himself was single, go. And as he himself was single, his mother and sisters being well provided for from their shares in the shop, he thought he was the more suited. Mackay, the assistant, agreed promptly, and presently found him-self in command of the business. But of the business. But a few months later the master was dumbfounded to meet his late assistdumbfounded to meet his late assistant, attired in khaki, "somewhere in France." "H.3, mon," he said angrily, "did I no' tell ye tae stay at hame in chairge o' ma shop?" "So I thocht at the time, maister," replied Mackay, "but I sune fun' oot it wisna only the shop I was in chairge o', but a 'yer womenfolk. 'Man,' ses I tae maeself, 'gin ye've got to fecht, gang an' fecht someone ye can hit.' So I jined." So I jined."

Heated Gloves for Aviators.

A British firm has recently introduced electrically-heated gloves for aviators. Cold hands and feet are among the prime discomforts experienced by airmen flying at great alti-tndes, and it is obvious that numbed hands in particular may lead to disaster. Ordinary gloves, irrespective of their thickness, are of little use. The electrically-heated gloves, on the other hand, maintain the hands at a comfortable temperature. As in the instance of the electrically-heated gloves for automobile drivers, electrical connection is made between small brass discs on the gloves and metal plates on the steering wheel of

Didn't Mind Hun Clock Lying.

In a baker's shop near Oldham they have a grandfathers' clock in one corner and a small clock on the mantelshelf, and the grandfather's clock has not been altered according to the Daylight Saving Bill.

"How is it," asked a customer, "you've altered the small clock and not the grandfather's clock?"
"Well," replied the old shopkeeper, 'the grandfather's clock's been telling the truth for over forty years, and I can't find it in my heart to make a liar of it now. But the small clock was made in Germany, so it be an right, as right as can be for that!"

Now Unlawful to interfere with Recruiting

Ottawa, September 5.-The Govern ment has taken action to prevent any recurrence of such interference with recruiting meetings such as recently occurred in Montreal. An order-in-5.00 occurred in Montreal. An order-in-1.00 council has been passed expressly le-5.00 galizing present recruiting methods 5.00 and providing penalties and punish-ments for those who seek to hinder .50 them.

The first two clauses of the orderin-council provide that it shall be law ful for any military officer to hold re-cruiting meetings not only in any room or building which may be secured for the purpose, but "also out of doors in the purpose, but "also out of doors in any public park, square, area or space within any city, town, village or other municipality," and that it shall be law ful for any recruiting officer or private to "go, stand or temain upon any public street or highway in any city, town, village, or other municipality, and there to accost, interview and converse with any man of military age who is with any man of military age who is willing to listen to or consider recruiting proposals."

It is then provided that it shall be an offence, "for any person, by inter-ruptions or otherwise, to interfere with or disturb the proceedings or the or disturb the proceedings or the speakers who are advocating recruiting at any meeting held for the encouragement of recruiting; or thereat to speak against or to discourage recruiting; or to obstruct, impede, or interfere with any military officer, non-commissioned officer or man belonging to the expeditionary forces while lawfully engaged at any place where he is entitled to be in the business or with the object of attaining or canvassing for recruits. The next clause gives power to any military, police or peace officer or any N.C.O. or man belonging to the expeditionary force acting under the direc-tion of his superior officer to arrest upon view and without warrant any person who disturbs recruiting meet-ings in any manner referred to or in-terfers with recruiting itself and take him before a magistrate or justice of the peace for punishment, and it shall, moreover, be the duty of all po-lice or peace officers to co-operate with and assist the military authorities in the preservation of order at recruiting meetings, and in facilitating the lawful proceedings of all persons engaged in recruiting." the enforcement of these regulations, i

The penalty fixed for infraction of these regulations is a maximum imprisonment of two months or a fine of $200 with two months' imprisonment for every subsequent offence.

Though it has proved possible to keep fowl in good health, and producing condition on restricted areas, yet it is conceded that free range at most seasons of the year is conductive to the best results with the birds, and this free range is what the majoeity of farmers are in position to supply at small ers are in position to supply at small expense. There are times of the year expense. There are times of the year when heus at large arc a nuisance to the farmers; for instance, when grain is being sown or harvested, but for the greater part of the Summer the birds do no harm in the fields, and can do a lot of good by destroy-

It must not be imagined because the birds do well on free range that no care is needed by them during Summer. Not only should the farm poultry be housed at night, but they should be fed regularly, and the ration should be made so attractive, if small, that the birds will leave the fields for the hen house whenever the helds for the hen house whenever their feed is offered to them. One reason for this, is to make the chick-ens safe from animals and birds of prey, another is to promote the habit of laying at home, in the hene and young pullets. The rearing of young chickens is one matter in particular means much to their health and strength and a wide acreage means wide choice. Protection from the wide choice. Protection from the winds is very desirable for such positions, and a well drained site is es-sential. The best spot for the purpose may be at some distance from the farm house and so cause a good deal of walking for the person who cares for the chicks, but as the percentage of good strong chickers, tractive manner the fowls should live, and if exercise is forced upon them to a sufficient degree to maintain health from incubators, the work should pay. The feeding of poultry has been the subject of many long articles, and so make profit when the biggest profit is possible. science has evolved many rations that balance so as to best suit fowls under all conditions, but the beauty of Summer feeding of poultry on the farm is that it is simple, and that the make up of the ration can be obtained on the place. Fine healthy chickens can be reared on dry grain and nothing else but what they pick up in the fields, and if a mash is considered necessary, the milk or water for mix-ing are easily procured at the farm

That the hens should be encouraged in the habit of laying at home during the Summer months is a most important matter as eggs to be satisfactory to the consumer must be gathered and shipped on the day that they are laid. To obtain the desired result in this direction the nest boxes must be kept absolutely clean and free from vermin, and to ensure the latter state, some means of destroying vermin must be used at regular intervals as the hens are pretty sure to bring about the infesting of the nests themselves.

Dairying Work

For Farm Women

Few opinions expressed by writers on the question of farm work for women give sufficient attention to that very important branch, dairying. This, with poultry keeping, has been the understood occupation of farm housewives for as long, almost, as agriculture has been conducted in a civilized manner, and only very lately has the notion gained force that work such as this is either too much for or beneath the dignity of women. Now that everything is coming to the owners and tillers of the soil is the time for every woman without a very definite occupation to conthe time for every woman without a very definite occupation to consider the advantages to be gained from the sharing of a home that will keep her in plenty—as will the farm home — rather than a city home, which must be maintained by money brought in from work that has nothing to do with home life.

brought in from work that has nothing to do with home life. The dairy is one place on the farm where a woman can find congenial and healthful occupation, with every propect of good returns from her labor which in the making of either cheese butter or other milk products, need not be so simple as the beauty and the second simple as the second simple second second second simple second s not be so simple as' to become mono tonous. The work of running a fair-sized farm dairy includes the running sized farm dairy includes the running of the separator by hand, steam or tread power, the ripening of the cream by use of scientifically prepared starters, churning, working and packing the butter, the use of the Babcock tester and the lactometer, and the study of the markets and proper marketing of the finished product. The process of making cheese demands further knowledge, the above-mentioned work being necessary in the making and selling butter only.

Butter making, which is the part of dairying that has usually found favor with the farmer's wife, presents an opportunity for the employment of many more women than are inan opportunity for the employment of many more women than are interested in it at present. The butter export trade of Canada has fallen off since the years 1903 and 1906; 34, 128,944 lbs., at the value of $6,954,618, were exported in the former year, and 34,031,521 lbs., at the higher value of $7,075,539, in the latter. The increase in price shown by these figures proves that something other than money consideration must have had influence with the manufacturers. Chesse exports have done better than those of butter, and the improvement in the factory system has probably had much to do in diverting much milk from butter to cheese production, but shortage of help at ing much milk from butter to cheese production, but shortage of help at home and a wish to retire from all but bonsework have been added causes for the falling off in the butter supply. Also the nearness of Demmark and other butter producing countries to the British markets has had a contrary effect on our exports. On the last count the matter of quality comes up for consideration, and as only perfect butter, specially packed, can hope to compete with that from countries nearer the market, it can be nnderstood that the best efforts of the factory makers will be necessary to produce such an article. Such butter is produced now to some extent, but much of it is consumed extent, but much of it is consumed at home, where the demand for creamery butter has become general creamery butter has become general on account of the poor quality of much of the dairy brand. With a sufficient supply of dairy butter for home consumption much more of the creamery product would be left for export, and there is now more chance for the Canadian dairyman to make artifectors, butter a her supply nake satisfactory butter as her sup-ply of information regarding the best practice has greatly increased. With practice has greatly increased. With very little expense a course can be taken up at one of the dairy schools in any of the provinces, and even a few months' study will do wonders in improving one's knowledge of the CHEESE MAKING.

factories might be considered too heavy work for some women, but there is a good chance for the woman in the home dairy, as the demand for funcy or small cheeses is increasing, and there are varieties that can be odor work economically produced at the small plant. Even at the factories women might find pleasant and lucrative work; testing of cream and constructed six small silos having farmers experience difficulty in saving the last cutting of alfalfa. At such times a method for converting alfalfa into silage may bring about a saving of the entire last crop.

During the fermentation process, which takes place immediately after the silo is filled, the sugar in the green crop is converted by bacterial processes into a mixture of acids. The most important acids formed in silage are lactic acid, the same acid which develops in the souring of milk, and acetic acid, the same acid which gives to vinegar its sour taste. Several other acids are also formed in lesser amounts, but they formed in lesser amounts, but they are of little importance in rormal

The alfalfa plant is deficient in fermentation sugars. For this reason, alfalfa alone does not make silage which will "keep." Acid is not produced in sufficient quantities to preserve the silage. Because of this deficiency of acid, putrefactive processes set up, and the silage acquires a disgusting taste and an

Bread Making Contests At Rural School Fairs PRIZES-Free Courses at Macdonald Institute, Guelph

Free Poultry Raising Courses at Ontario Agricultural College Free Cook Books and Magazines

Over 1,500 prizes in all will be offered in bread-making contests which will be held this fall at over 250 rural school fairs taking place in Ontario. It will be a great event at the fairs and will stimulate interest in bread-making among young girls between the ages of 12 and 17 years.

Here is a wonderful opportunity for your daughter to win for herself a Free Course in Domestic Science at the famous Macdonald Institute, Guelph. All she has to do is to bake one double loaf of bread and enter with the hard wheat flour guaranteed for bread.

This is a splendid flour which makes the biggest, bulging loaves—whitest, lightest and most wholesome bread you ever baked. Is this not a splendid opportunity to interest your daughters in breadmaking?

Here are the Splendid Prizes offered for the best loaf of Bread baked with Cream of the West Flour. The following are offered at each local Fair:

It Prize.—I paid-up subscription to "My Magazine" for 1 year. This magazine is full from cover to cover every month with articles suitable for young people of all ages. It is published in fingland. Value $2.50 per year.

All Prize.—6 months paid-up subscription to "My Magazine" by the subscription to "My Magazine" with a subscription to "My Magazine" Walne $1.25.

Extra Prizes.—When entries exceed ten a 3rd prize will be awarded of 6 mos. paid-up subscription to "My Magazine." When the number of entries exceeds twenty the judges at the fair will award 4th, 5th, and 6th prizes of one year's paid-up subscriptions to "The Little Paper." This is a wonderful little publication issued every month in England. Its eight pages are packed with highly engaging information and stories relating to history, nature-study, animals, bird-life, etc.

Important — The winners of 1st prize at each local fair compete for following Provincial Prizes. The first and second prizes, or third and fourth prizes, will not be awarded in any one county. The Results of the contests at the fair will be made known in the usual way as in the case of all the other regular contests. The Provincial results will he amnounced as soon as possible after the conclusion of the Rural School Fairs in the Province. Do Not Miss this Great Opportunity: Every girl he-tween 12 and 17 years should compete. What a splendid way to stir up increased interest in breadmaking! Get a supply of Crenm of the West Flour at your dealers and practise using it as often as possible to increase the chances of winning. If your dealer cannot sell it to you, write to the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Toronto, and they will promptly tell you the nearest place to get it. No Competitions in Counties Named Below:

The competition is open, to all parts of the province where Rural School Fairs are held, except the districts of Rainy River, Kenora, Manitonlin and Thunder Bay. These districts are the only parts of the province where school fairs are held by the Department of Agriculture in which this competition will not be a feature. There are no district-representatives of the Department of Agriculture in the Counties of Huron, Porth, Wellington, Haliburton, Prescott, Russell or Lincolu, and no rural school fairs are held in these Counties by the Department of Agriculture. We regret, therefore, that the competition cannot include these Counties.

Each lost must be accompanied by the part of the flour hag containing the face of the Old Miller (important) and an entry form must be signed by the girl and parents or guardian stating date of birth, P.O. address, and giving name of dealer from whom Cream of the West Flour was purchased. The form will state Write for free folder giving full and complete information about every feature of this great contest.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week the much heralded picnic in aid of the new St. Martin of Tours Church, took place at Glen Robertson. Threatening clouds and heavy showers of rain at intervals throughout Monday kept down the attendance below the two thousand mark, but those who braved the elements, found a real Highland welcome awaiting them. Besides the various attractions provided by the energetic and efficient committee in energetic and emerent committees in charge, pipe music and band music, the latter supplied by the Cornwall Cit-izens Band, kept the crowd in good spirits despite the depressing atmos-phere. The Mystery Cafe puzzled and delighted those present and did a rushing business. The various booths were also well patronized and their temptalso well patronized and their tempering contests found ready buyers. Large delegations were present from Montreal, Alexandria, Vankleek Hill, Cornwall, and other points. The picnic was continued on Tuesday when upwards of six hundred were present, and we are pleased to report that notwithstanding the unfavorable weather conditions the Treasury of St. Martin of Tours will benefit considerably by the venture.

ter at home; one may pound the nuts to a paste, but a food chopper is better than a mortar and pestle. Usually peanut butter is made and the fresh or roasted nuts may be used, but the roasted ones have a finer taste.

Shell the nuts and remove the inner skin; grind them and add salt to suit the taste. Some nuts contain very little the taste. Some nuts contain very little oil and to such you must add a few drops of olive oil or any pure cooking or salad oil. If you plan to use the hutter at once, use a few drops of cream in the place of the oil. Work the salt and oil into the hutter and it is ready for use is ready for use.

If you add only salt and oil the hut-ter may be packed into little glasses or jars and sealed. It keeps well.

After one has made peanut butter other nuts may be used, hut all others must be blanched to remove the inner skin. This is done hy pouring boiling water on them and then rubbing the skin off with a rough cloth. Brazil nuts and almonds with a few pecan meats ground together make a delicious sendwich filling, but it is tedious to sandwich filling, but it is tedious to make, as these nuts have a tendency to clog the chopper.

There are many nut flours advertised in the vegetarian publications.

The average cook would perhaps he most interested in the almond meal, for it makes the famous almond macaroons. The coconut is also made into flour and used in faney cooking and in sweet cakes.

A hen that lays when the eggs are dearest is the ben that oays, and also is the hen that is dearest to the is the hen that is dearest to the poultryman. To meet with any degree of success we must consider four important factors, as follows:

Proper housing.

By good stock we mean pure-bred and stock hatched from eggs produc-ed by stock which by actual records ed by stock which by actual records have proven themselves as good winter layers. They should, of course, be constitutionally strong, so they can stand the heavy feeding winter eggs producers usually get. In my opinion early hatched pullets make the best winter egg producers. Most of the American-class breeds should be hatched not later than the month of April; the Mediterranean-class breeds should not be hatched before April and not later than May. Too early hatched birds of the Mediterranean class are very apt to molt ranean class are very apt to molt in the fall, and in that case are not much hetter for winter layers than

Not only should they be good stock and early hatched, but they should also be well fed and housed throughout the entire season. They should be hatched by the best of incubators, brooded by the latest methods and kept under sanitary conditions. By no means are all meat fats suitable for use with vegetables. The best of them all are fats derived from cooking various pork products, including bacon, ham and sausage. The only other fats that should be used in this way are those from veal and chicken, and these should be fried out carefully before they are used.

Ilowest priced nut hutters. The product is left open on store counters, where it is sold in bulk, and absorbs odors and holds dust in greater quantity than almost any other food except butter.

That nuts are heating is well known, but peanut butter is not more heating the products, including bacon, ham and sausage. The only other fats that should be hatched, but they should also be well fed and housed throughout the entire season. ROMANCE OF GOLD.

How Greaves Sought Water and Found Gold. For thirty years the memory of a piece of gold-studded ore haunted Richard Greaves, a famous West Australian prospector, who has died Australian prospector, who has died lately. It was in Western Australia, where he arrived in 1885, that "Dick" Greaves allowed the gold fever into his veins. For two years after his arrival he prospected, off and on, for gold before its existence was definitely known in the State. He brought £600 in cash to Western Australia, and the greater part of that money was spent in prospecting that money was spent in prospecting work. It was a sample of stone, named Beare's stone, that sent him on his wanderings. He was shown the stone, among others, shortly after his arrival in the State, and he tested it, and thereupon decided to find Beare and locate the place where the stone could be obtained. He never found Beare, nor did he find any more of Beare, stone.

To find gold in any stone, however, the stone and his companion. Ted.

Greaves and his companion, Ted Paine, went out on their lonely prospecting trips. Success was denied them on several expeditions, but in October, 1887, they were rewarded, for in that month they discovered the

The story of the great find is sim-The story of the great find is simple, and, told in his own words, is as follows: "As water was getting scarce, and the country very dry, our work on that trip became a quest for water instead of gold. We got to a clay pan, but the water was thick and slimy. We had to set to and pull the dead kangaroos out. We decided to leave the dray and take the clded to leave the dray and take the horses and test the country round. It was the best hit of country we had seen for prespecting, and so we seen for prespecting, and so we struck it. Ted Paine struck a floater with a speck of gold in it. To find where it came from was the next move. On October 22nd I came upon the reef, and we took a lot of stone out with gold hanging to it." Battleship Schools.

It is a striking testimony to the efficiency of the British Navy that school-work for the boys on board bas been carried on far more assidu-ously since the start of the war than ever it was before. It would be ex-cusable, even natural, to jump at the conclusion that all such studies would be dropped in these strenuous days, that every minute would be de voted to the immediate purpose of preparing for the ever-present chance of battle.

One of the Cavendishes.

The young Marquis of Hartington who has consented to be the Coali-tion candidate for North-east Derhyshire, is following the Cavendish trait and entering politics early. It was only leat month that he celebrated his majority, and if there is an election in the near future he will be the youngest member of the House of Commons. His father entered the House at the age of 23, when he, too, was the "bahy" of the House.

The Cavendishes are not a military family, though it is to the first Duke that we owe one of our hest cavalry regiments—the 7th Dragoon Guards, raised in 1688 by the then Earl of Devonshire. It hore his name for two years, when it wa called Schomberg's Horse, and afterwards the Black Horse, the men being mounted on black horses.

If a Maorl wishes to speak words of insult to another Maori he calls his adversary some kind of food. Any kind will do, living or dead. One Maori chief once told another that ne was a roast yeal. Then he fied to the bush, hid in a cave, was tracked, captured, and heheaded.

The cave is still shown to visitors, and when Lord Kitchener was in New Zealand he was taken to it hy a pretty Maori girl acting as guide. She told him the whole story, and at the conclusion the stern soldier's facsoftened into a smile as he said:

showed her various imperfectious, and she gave orders that they should be made good. Going to her father, she asked him who was to lead in the defense. He replied that he would command. Then she told him about the released prisoner who had noticed the deficiencles and suggested that he be made second in command since he seemed to have been trained for a soldier and there were no leaders among the defenders of the castle. The king said that he cared not who was second in command, for all must obey his own orders. But it made no difference, he added, who commanded since defeat was inevi-

"Thanks, lady, for an opportunity to crack crowns with this bandy legged, red headed usurper. If we do not knock the circlet off his head and the scepter ont of his hand, then I die here in Gloucester castle."

This encouraged Eleanor, though she did not understand what he meaut by cracking crowns, nor could she account for his desire to defeat a man in whose ranks he had fought. But she was so intent on saving the kingdom from the cnemy that she gave no thought to any-

Harold at once took charge of all preparations. In this he was not subject to interference, for the old king was lamenting his fate in his apartments. At last the army of Conrad was seen marching in the valley, and when it reached the bottom of the hill on which Gloucester castie was situated the men encircled it, and it was evident that if they did not take it by storm they would starve the garrison into subjection.

The king of Gloucester came out clad in a suit of armor, but it was too heavy for his reduced streugth. He stumbled and fell under its weight and was carried back to his room. This gave Harold full control. He gave Eleanor his plan. It was to act so that the invaders would believe that they had only to take their ease for a short time and their enemies would have to surrender for want of provisions. When they seemed most confident Haroldwould strike.

So he sent a deputation to say that since they had but five days' provisions the men of Gloucester must surrender and to ask what terms would be granted. Conrad said that he would grant no conditions. The deputation return-ed in the evening, and Courad expected to receive a surrender the next day. Till midnight he and his army made the night ring with song and shouting. They had not finished carousing when the castle clock struck 2. Slowly the portenllis was raised, the drawbridge the chains had been oiled to prevent a rattle) let down, and the little army of Gloucester, led by Harold, sileutly emerged and, dividing luto four bands, bore down from the four points of the compass npon the men of Conrad and with a yell hegan to stab and back those who were sober enough to resist them and cut down those who attempted to rise

Harold had noted the tent of Conrad. and while the usurper, half drunk, was endeavoring to get on his arms the late prisoner raised his sword and brought lt down, cleaving his enemy's shoulder Conrad was feiled by the blow, and Harold, standing over him with raised word, said: "I am Harold, king of Warwick, came from exile and without being known joined your retainers as they were aetting out to hight my tather's old enemy of Gloucester. I came to wstch my opportunity for vengeance on you. It has come."

When Conrad was killed his army was feeing down the hill. As soon as they heard that their leader was dead they gave up all hope of getting safely pack to Warwick and expected to pass the rest of their lives in the dangeons of Gloncester. In the morning Harold rode down to them and, calling them ogether, announced himself as their egitimate king. Conrad had been hated by them, and they received Harold'a announcement with joy.

Harman bade them re-establish their camp and promised to lead them to Warwick. Then he rode back to Glouester castle.

He found great joy there, even to the old king, who had got np from his bed and come out to the courtyard to welcome and thank his deliverer Harold, Ignoring him, dismounted and, kneeling at Eleanor's feet, said: "Good lady, I told you I would fight for you and not for the enemy of my father, for I am king of Warwick, who as a child was spirited away to pre-vent my being murdered by this infamons nsurper." "The enmlty hetween our houses," replied Eleanor, "is ended by this spiendid defense of yours." And leading him to her father she effected a reconciliation.

The reconcliation was cemented by the marriage of King Harold and the Princess Eleanor. But that was many centuries ago. The honse of Warwick still occupies Warwick castle, but the lineage has often changed since the period of this story.

RECORD BID FOR PEARLS.

$120,000 Paid for a Three-Row Necklace.

Remarkablde prices were realized at a jewel sale at Christie's in Loncon. A necklace, composed of 193 pearls, was bought by Messrs. Tanburn & Co. for $120,000, and a single-row pearl necklace was sold for $24,000. The $120,000 is a London record. In 1902 the Dudley pearl necklace of 47 round pearls realized $111,000, to be beaten in the following year by the Gordon-Lennox three rows of 287 pearls at $112,500. In 1907 the Lewis-Hili $112,500. In 1907 the Lewis-Hill adornment of 229 pearls reached $80,000; the necklace of 46 pearls helonging to the late Lily Duchess of Marlborough, brought $85,000 in 1911, and the Lindsay necklace of 53 pearls, $72,000 in 1912. The necklace now offered as "the property of a lady," was in three rows of 193 pearls of superty Orient with a delipearls of superb Orient with a deli-cate tinge of pink, the pearls being beautifully matched and cunningly

The professional bealer, like the professional fighter, has found that many of the things he learnt in South Africa he has had to unlearn in Flanders. Wounds seidom proved troublesome in the Boer War, because the South African veldt was almost virgin; but in Belgium and France, where the land has been cultivated for centuries, the gentle germ is always ready to enter the smallest wound and bring about tetanus and other diseases. At first the sur-geons were in despair, fearing that our much-vaunted antiseptics were of no avail. It required long search and ex-periment before methods of overcom-ing new difficulties could be discovered. Then, owing to the lavish use of high-explosive shells, wounds are more complicated and more difficult to keep clean, while the pointed bul-let works more harm than the blunt one of the "good old days." Plenty of fresh air is found to work marvels, so there is at least one hospital which the patients live practically in the open. It has also been found that wounds remain clean if water continually flows over them, so the clever surgeon has constructed little baths which fit over the wound, a supply of warm water impregnated with oxygen continually flowing through.

Dry Docking a Warship.

One of the operations a naval officer dislikes more than anything else is docking a big warship to undergo repairs. It is one of the most difficult tasks imaginable, and the sligbt-est carelessness may mean damage done to the extent of some thousands of pounds. Before being floated into the dock the vessel is usually light-ened of everything that can be easily taken from her, and then she is tow-ed ln by tugs. The greatest care has to be taken to get the huge mass to float in exactly its proper position so that, when the water is pumped out of the dock it will come to rest upon the keel blocks in such a way that its great weight is evenly distributed.

These big repairing docks, or graving docks, as they are usually called, are built in a series of steps so that they are much narrower at the bot-tom than at the top. These steps tom than at the top. These steps give support to the balks of timber which keep the vessel upright. A float, called a "marker," is used to show that the battleship is in its right position before the water is drained away. Any miscalculation and the vessel might heel over, and there is no stopping a 25,000-ton ship when it begins doing that.

In the matter of amusements the Eskimo are not badly off. They have a form of the cup-and-ball game played there, the ball being a block of ivory with boles at different an-

of ivory with holes at different angles, into which one of the players strives to insert an ivory peg as the block falls, the position of the hole determining the value of the stroke.

Another game closely resembles dominoes, while, when they can borrow or purchase a pack of cards, the more intelligent of them will play with considerable skills and they can with considerable skill; and they enjoy draughts, having learned these games from the whalers. They also have a game exactly like solitaire, with the exception that lyory pegs.

take the place of glass balls.

The special amusement of the women is a species of "cat's cradle," which has been brought to such perfection that they develop from the string twenty to thirty different figures in it. Indeed, they are extremely clever in performing tricks with string, winding and twisting a piece in and out among their fingers, and then disentangling It by a single

When the time came for the charge things were awful. The Germans came out of their trenches waving white rags and any other things they could get, surrendering in hundreds. conld get, surrendering in hundreds. They are the biggest set of cowards I ever saw in my life. They cannot stand an English bayonet charge, hu' they make horrible work of our trenches with their guns. They ievelled them down all over, but the German prisoners say their trenche were worse than ours. If they were, God help them. The German trench-God help them. The German trenches were blocked with their dead and dying.

"I am writing this letter without any clothes on to speak of. I was in an awful mess coming out of the trenches—but still I am quite happy and cheerful."

Command of the Sea.

In his essay on "True Greatness of Kingdoms and Estates" Bacon speaks thus of command of the seat.

"To be master of the sea: and abridgement of monarchy. Cicero, writing to Atticus of Pompey's preparation against Caesar, saiff: Camesilium Pompeii p'ane Themistocleum' est; putat enim, qui mari potifier, eum rerum potiri' ('Pompey's plan is clearly that of Themistocles; for nebelleves that who ever has command. believes that whoever has command of the sea will attain the supreme power); and without doubt Pompey had tired out Caesar, If upon vaim confidence he had not left that way. We see the great effect of battles by sea; the battle of Actium decides the empire of the world; the battle of Lepanto arrested the greatness of the Turk. There be many examples where sea-fights have been final to the war; but this is when princes or States have set up their rest upon the battles. But this much is certain: that he that commands the sea is at great liberty, and may take as mnch and as little of the war as he will; whereas those that be strongest by land are many times, nevertheless, im great straits. Surely, at this day with us of Europe the vantage of strength at sea (which is one of the principal dowries of this kingdom of Great Britain) is great; both be-cause most of the kingdoms of Europe are not merely inland, but girt with the sea most part of their compass; and because the wealth of both Indles seems in great part, but an accessary to the command of the

A Willing Worker.

An amusing incident is told which took place in one of the occupied dis-tricts of Beigium where the German occupier doles on potates to such of occupier doles only potatres to such of the starving people as agree to work for him. One recipient presented himself before the German authori-ties and declared himself quite ready in return for a supply of potatoes to work for the Germans and only for them. He seemed quite decided and genulne in his offer of work.

"Then you are quite willing to sign the declaration?" asked the Ger-

"Yes, quite willing."
"And what is your trade?" "I am a grave digger," replied the Belgian stolldly.

Revenge!

An interesting discovery was made a few days ago, when a resident in the Eastern Counties picked up in a meadow what appears to be a mes-sage dropped by one of the Zeppelins that took part in a recent raid. It was in the form of a piece of paste-board, on one side of which were the words, written in pencil, "Vengeance for L19," with a signature underneath. On the reverse side were some words in German which were so indistinct as to be undecipherable.

Meredith's Daughter-In-Law.

Mrs. Margaret Meredith, whose choral ode will be performed at the Kingsway Hali in aid of wounded soldiers, is a daughter-in-law of the great novelist, George Meredith, and daughter of John Maclean, the engin-eer associated with De Lesseps in the construction of the Suez Canal. Her son has won the Military Cross.
