Chiropractic and Nature

Nature is the CHIROPRACTOR'S only aid—Adjustments relieve pressure from the nerves and make the way free for nature to do her part in sending mental impulses thru them to MAKE AND KEEP THE BODY WELL. Most Diseases are due to pressure upon nerves along the sides of the vertebral column. This pressure interferes with their functions; hence, inflammation, unnatural action, pain and distress are manifested where these nerves end. All diseases are prolonged until pressure upon those nerves leading to the affected parts is adjusted. It is the business of the CHIROPRACTOR to release this pressure by adjusting the subluxated spinal segments to normal position with his bare hands. Ancient methods and cure-alls put but little check on Disease.

Consultation and Spinal Analysis Free.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving memory of our dear cousin, Miss Hattie McCuaig who entered into rest a year on the 8th August, 1921.

The days seem lonely since she died
The home is sad without her kind and loving smile,
And many an hour have we sadly
sighed
For the sound of the voice that is stilled.

We who love you, sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year.
In the lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are never forgotten.

And left us here with tears and hearts that pray.

Glengarry Soldiers' Memorial

The Committee of the Clergy, The Reverend Arpad Govan of Williams-town, The Reverend Duncan A. Campbell of St. Raphaels, The Reverend Donald Stewart of Alexandria and Captain the Reverend Ewen J. Macdonald M.C. of Lochiel who were appointed to decide upon the form, design and location of the proposed Memorial, met on Saturday the 30th July at the residence of the Chairman, Mr. Macdonell (Greenfield).

Several representative gentlemen of the County, including Mr. D. A. Ross M.L.A., Brigadier General Hervey D.S.O., Mr. Campbell the Reve of Lochiel were also present. Mr. Kennedy M.P. was unable to attend owing to an important engagement in Ottawa.

The general committee reported that they had on hand and were prepared to hand over to them the sum of $3,224.07 which represents the subscriptions, proceeds of the various entertainments (after deducting the expenses connected therewith) and other contributions which the Committee have collected since the inception of the movement and after three years of patient and unremitting work.

After full discussion and in view of what similar memorials have cost elsewhere, it was decided that it would be inexpedient to proceed at present with the erection of a memorial, or even to decide upon its form or location, as nothing consistent with the dignity of the County of Glengarry or the sacrifice made by the 174 of its brave sons could be accomplished with the amount now on hand.

As it was understood from the beginning that this was to be a County movement, and not one merely local to the Town of Alexandria or its immediate environment, it was decided that further efforts should be made to add to the fund through the parishes of both denominations throughout Glengarry, the gentlemen of the clergy present agreeing to assist in that movement and to urge it upon their conferees throughout the County.

Thus far the following subscriptions have been received, through the efforts made chiefly by the Clergy in their respective parishes and congregations.

St. Elmo	$ 65.10
Lochiel	204.85
St. Raphaels	162.00
St. Andrews Parish, Mar- tintown	278.00
Alexandria Presbyterian Church	65.10
West Church, Kirk Hill.....	314.00
	$1089.05

If similar efforts would be made in the other parishes, the fund would be so largely augmented as to enable the Clergy to decide upon the form and location of the memorial, and to proceed with its erection, which at present they find themselves unable to do.

The subscription list will therefore be kept open for sometime longer to enable the remaining Parishes of the County to be heard from, as well as private individuals elsewhere who sympathize with the efforts of the Committee to do honour to the men who died and to see to it that their memory and names shall not be forgotten.

The Committee beg to acknowledge with grateful appreciation and thanks the receipt of $45.44 from the Glengarry Woman's Auxiliary of Toronto through the President, Miss Carrie H. Macgillivray.

And so He took you home to rest.
We miss thee, Oh! We miss thee,
But some day we hope to meet dear mother
And dwell forever at Jesus' feet.

An Interesting Demonstration

A number of our citizens availed themselves of the invitation extended by Mr. Roy Macdonald, electrician, to be present Friday evening last, at the Magicoal Electric Fire demonstration and without exception were pleased at the reproduction of a live coal fire through electricity. It was explained by the demonstrator that the Magicoal fire can be built into existing basket, if so desired, and that another advantage is that in the event of a room not being provided with a fireplace, it is a simple matter to erect one as no flue is required. This can be done in the most convenient and suitable position in the room. This system of fire place heating has been adopted by many prominent Canadians, Clubs, Hotels and Historic Houses throughout Canada.

Secured Excellent Specimens

During the latter part of July, members of the staff of the Forest Products Laboratories of Canada, spent some days with Messrs A. L. McDermid & Co., lumber merchants, of Apple Hill, securing a number of specimens of rock elm, red elm, hickory, white oak, white ash, brown ash, butternut and soft maple, which were taken from an extensive bush, the property of the Messrs McDermid, formerly owned by Duncan A. McDonald. These samples, which we understand are all that could be desired, will undergo tests for strength while green and part will be put away to test, when, air dry. The results of the tests on the green material of these species will be ready this autumn, while the air dry results cannot be obtained until some twelve or eighteen months later. The superintendent in writing the Messrs McDermid advise that a copy of the results will be sent them in due course. He also thanks them for their ready co-operation and the very cordial reception extended the Department's representatives.

Of Interest to Farmers

Dearer Mill Feed For U. S. Farmers

The effect of the working out of the United States Emergency Tariff may prove unfavorable to the farmer in that country in the matter of mill feeds. It has been pointed out that although it was intended that this measure should promote prices of agricultural products, it was not to enhance the cost of commodities needed by the agriculturist. It is explained that with the coming into legislative effect of the United States Emergency Tariff on the 28th of May last, under provisions of the Canadian tariff, which automatically operate under certain contingencies, wheat and flour imported from the United States into this country, became dutiable. The U.S. Emergency Tariff places a duty of 35 cents per bushel on wheat and 20 per cent. ad valorem on flour. Against this there is a duty of 12 cents per bushel on wheat and 50 cents per barrel on flour imposed by the Canadian tariff, which operates on importations from any country which imposes a duty on wheat or wheat flour imported from Canada. This clause in the Canadian tariff automatically operated as from May 28th. It does not, however, make any provisions as to duty on mill feeds.

On the other hand, the imposition of these duties on wheat and flour by Canada causes per cent. of the United States tariff to come into effect, under which there is imposed a duty of ten per cent. ad valorem on all importations of wheat products not otherwise specified, under which category would come mill feeds, including bran, shorts and middlings, together with an extra import duty of 10 cents per bushel on wheat and 45 cents per barrel on flour.

THE FARMER PENALIZED

The evident result of this pitting of the two tariffs against each other will be, as far as mill feeds are concerned, that the farmer will be at the mercy of the United States millers. Owing to geographical considerations and railway freight rates, it has generally been more advantageous to buyers in the United States to obtain their requirements in mill feeds from Canadian millers, and reciprocally so with Canadian buyers; but under this new situation this reciprocity ceases. With the United States millers in a position to raise the prices of their mill feeds by ten per cent., they will possibly sell flour cheaper both at home and abroad, and the incentive to do this is all the greater owing to the fact that European countries are not buying flour as they were formerly.

Profitable Quantities of Skim Milk on the Farm

The tendency of the farmer to ship all his supply of milk direct to market is one that always gives room for criticism but yet excusable in many cases. If fair profits can be made, with a minimum of labor the dairyman does not readily persuade himself into the belief that to separate the milk and feed, the skim milk on the place is worth while. But surely where the milk is shipped to the creamery and the skim milk resold at as low a price as 20c per 100 pounds, as is the case in the Chilliwack Valley, B.C., at the present time, it would be well for farmers to make good use of that milk. It is questionable if he could make more profitable returns any other way than by feeding up a number of pigs on a ration composed of skim milk in combination with mixed meal. It has been found at the Experimental Farm, Agassiz, that feeding skim milk at 50c per 100 pounds in proper combination with concentrates is profitable. Although substitutes, such as tankage for example, may well take the place of skim milk when the latter is not available, yet skim milk has a value peculiar to itself in building the muscles and bony framework of young animals. Although skim milk may serve its highest purpose when fed to calves, yet, when properly combined with a grain ration it becomes one of the most useful of all available feed for the pig.

Realizing the value of skim milk as a feed for pigs the next important point is to determine the most profitable quantity to feed in combination with a grain ration for it is impossible to feed pigs, even young pigs, profitably on skim milk alone.

With this object in view, therefore, a series of experiments in swine feeding was set on foot at the Experimental Farm, Agassiz, in the winter of 1917-18 and similar experiments have been carried on every winter since. As a result of these experiments it is very interesting to note that in every case the larger the amount of milk fed the greater are the gains. Comparisons have been made where a standard ration of grain was fed to all lots with varying quantities of skim milk in the different groups as contrasted to groups fed water in place of skim milk and to other groups fed some substitute such as tankage. Skim milk was fed at the rate of 2 lbs., 4 lbs., 6 lbs. and 8 lbs. per pig per day and although the average gain in each group increased yet the most economical gains centered around the groups receiving from 4 to 6 lbs. per pig per day. Feeding any of the various meal mixtures employed in the experiment, without skim milk or substitute but with water, only gave unsatisfactory results and proved that water is no substitute for skim milk.

The general conclusions arrived at are that a profitable amount of skim milk to feed growing pigs is anywhere from 4 to 6 lbs. per pig per day. But where the skim milk is exceptionally cheap it may be fed profitably at the rate of 8 lbs. or even 10 lbs. per pig per day and especially is this true of certain pigs with more vigorous characteristics than others.

Our Ottawa Letter

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—There was talk of a ray of hope, which the government hoped to get out of the Alberta provincial election result. Wherever that ray of hope lies, it certainly is not anywhere around the Government camp, for there is even deeper gloom there and a renewed talk of urging the Prime Minister to give up the ghost and go to the country. The Government election engineers had looked over the ground during the Medicine Hat campaign and they came back here with an idea that the Farmer movement under H. W. Wood was on the wane. Not one Conservative was elected and now they are more convinced than ever that there is grave doubt as to the possibility of Alberta sending back even one Conservative after a general election.

The political future of the Meighen Government will be thoroughly canvassed after the return of Premier Meighen from London, which is expected very shortly, and there will be a series of cabinet councils to decide which form of advice he is to accept. The cabinet ministers themselves are divided between those who want to go to the country now and those who want to wait as long as possible. Several of them have decided that there is no hope of coming back and are resigned to the inevitable, but the hanging on habit has acquired such a hold that they cannot nerve themselves to make the cold plunge into the uncharted waters of an election. The Government is also being advised from outside sources to give up and go to the country, but it is not inclined to listen to such advice until it is forced to do so.

By-elections are bringing no comfort, and every renewed test of public opinion is against further Conservative rule, whether or not that rule is camouflaged under a name which equals Joseph's coat for variegation. But behind all the councils on the subject, there are the pleas of Government supporters in the House who know they cannot come back anyway and do not wish to commit political har-kari.

When Parliament does come back, whether it is composed of the same members or not, they will find some changes in their quarters and further bills to meet for extravagance on the new Parliament Buildings. From start to finish there has been a constant (and in many cases unnecessary) building up and tearing down which had every appearance of expediency adopted for the purpose of making a cost-plus job more costly to the country and more profitable to the contractors and architects. The scandal in connection with the new buildings dated back to the time when Hon. Bob. Rogers was Minister of Public Works and they have several times been brought to the public notice by Liberal members, among these being, Hon. Chas. Murphy who resigned from the building committee as a result of the unnecessary expenditures being made.

Mr. Murphy stated to the House last session the facts connected with the reconstruction work on the present building. When the old building was destroyed, the government engaged two architects to go over the ruins and see what could be salvaged. Their report was that there were walls standing which were worth at least two million dollars, and that these should be used for the new building as they were. But, the first thing the committee knew, these walls had been dynamited and an asset stated to be worth two million dollars had disappeared. Nobody was able to get any satisfactory explanation of this move.

When the building was to be replaced, the government called in the friendly Lyall Construction Co. of Montreal and without calling for tenders, awarded them the job on a percentage of the cost. The building which was to cost five millions, has already cost double that amount and neither the architects nor the LITTLE BRAS D'OR, C. B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches and did not sleep well at night. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. In a week, the Constipation was corrected and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

contractors, are losing on the extra costs. The work will take another year or two yet before it is completed, and then the country will have something which is full of flaws and inaccuracies.

One explanation of the immense cost of the new building is found in the facts which have been followed out in its construction.

The floor of the Commons chamber is of teakwood and ebony. The former was imported from India and is probably the most expensive wood in the world. The ebony cost the country twenty-five cents an ounce and the floor has to be covered with fibre matting and a carpet to deaden the sound of persons walking on it. After spending thousands of dollars on the floor of the chamber alone it was demonstrated that a floor of common lumber or concrete would have been just as satisfactory, since it must be covered with matting to allow the members to be heard when they are speaking.

The floor is a sample of the methods which have been followed throughout in the construction of the building. There has been a constant building up and tearing down, and a consequent waste of enormous sums of money at this time when economy is being preached by the government, which practises the direct opposite. The new building is large, but it is cut up into hundreds of rooms so that it is next to impossible for the members to get together at any time, and there is practically no intercourse between them. However, it is expected to provide work for the architects and contractors for another year or two yet, and by that time, if the Meighen Government were still in power, they would find some more alterations to be made which would provide for further outlays!

In this respect Vulcanite Roofings offer every style of roofing that is practical for farm buildings. Included are asphalt shingles and both smooth and slate surface roll roofings.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Keep The Teeth Pretty

The woman who realizes what an important part physical beauty plays is particular about every feature of her face and figure. While her eyes and the smoothness of her complexion are of great importance, she does not ignore one detail that will add to her charm.

The girls who have just left high school, as well as their older sisters who are perhaps in business or in homes of their own, know that appearance is a vital factor in their success. Hence the care which they bestow upon their persons.

There is, however, one feature which is sometimes overlooked, and that is the teeth. Perhaps when one smiles she does not show her teeth very much, and so, beyond giving them their daily cleansing she pays small heed to their appearance.

But they make a more vivid impression on the persons she meets than she may realize. And should her lips recede somewhat further than lips usually do, then her teeth will be more or less constantly in evidence.

Do you consult a dentist every six months so he may see that your teeth are in good shape? It is preventive measures like this which help to keep the teeth nice. Tiny cavities or those of larger proportions may suggest to the casual observer that you are careless.

If the teeth are set in a bit-or-miss style, this detracts immeasurably from the smile of the pretty face.

Much has been accomplished in the realm of dentistry, so, if your teeth have suffered from a lack of care, you should see your dentist about this matter. It may be that he can correct some of the irregularities that spoil the symmetry of your teeth.

Of course, the process of straightening teeth is sometimes a rather lengthy one, and it may prove quite expensive. But if your dentist advises it and assures you that he can help you, then you should have your teeth attended to by all means. It will make such a difference in your appearance that you will be glad you have had it done.

Pretty teeth are white, but sometimes your teeth get discolored by taking medicines which contain certain chemicals. If you must use such medicines, then you always should take these liquids through a straw or a glass tube.

It is a good plan to rinse your mouth with milk of magnesia before you retire. This tends to counteract acidity and leaves your mouth in a sweet wholesome condition.

The Family Tie

In youth we do not realize the strength of the family tie, just because it is ever present and all-enfolding. The new and transient connections of sympathy and affinity that we are so widely forming seem to us more important and more real than the ties of blood. It astonished us to find that we can confide in our friends much more than we can confide in the members of our own family. The boy or girl that we have known six months seems nearer than our brothers and sisters much nearer than our fathers and mothers; he seems to feel what we feel, to want what we want, when the people at home are likely to smile at our little confessions and evidently and completely misunderstand. It puzzles us. Are all families like that? Is home quite what it should be?

Life flows on, and we find that somehow friendships slip away. Absence causes terrible breaks and changes. The voice that seemed to echo every sentiment of our hearts grows careless and remote. The ear that was always open has become indifferent, distracted by a thousand utterances that flow from other tongues than ours. Tastes change and friends change with them. Those whom we loved and who we thought loved us, and who did not love us, form new connections of their own, and if we are not forgotten we at least experience that chilling of tenderness which is almost worse to bear than its failure.

Then it is that the family tie makes its gentle strength felt. Just because it is so elastic we find that it can be stretched indefinitely without breaking, and still and always draws us back. Perhaps our brothers and sisters did not quite understand us; but we are not so sure as we were that with the passage of years' old thoughts, old faces, old voices grow wonderfully sweet. And we see—alas, now often too late!—that the tie of blood is the one that lasts longest and holds strongest of any in the world. For the tragedy comes when we do not learn to prize those who loved us most until we have lost them.

What Meat-eating Means

The tremendous importance of a small increase in the per capita consumption of beef is shown by the fact that an increase of 1 ounce in the daily per capita consumption of beef in the United States for the year of 1921 would be equivalent to 5,000,000 carcasses of 500 pounds each, or 40 per cent. of the total number of cattle slaughtered last year, says Breeder's Gazette. An increase of 1 ounce in the daily per capita consumption of pork would be equivalent to 16,000,000 hog carcasses of 150 pounds each, or nearly 50 per cent of the total number of hogs slaughtered last year, and an increase of only 1/4 of an ounce in the daily per capita consumption of mutton would be equivalent to 12,000,000 sheep carcasses of 40 pounds each, or practically 100 per cent. as many as were slaughtered in the United States last year.

These are only insignificant increases in daily per capita consumption, but they represent an enormous amount in the aggregate for the year. Surely it is worth the while of the live stock interests to make an effort to secure this increase in consumption, and at the same time join with the consumer in securing a fair and just price to both.

THE VALUE OF PICNICS

Picnics and meetings justify themselves by bringing breeders and stock farmers together. Organized teamwork cannot be successful if the people organized do not know one another. Intimacy may often breed contempt, but some measure of familiarity is essential to the development of sentiment and common trust, faith and confidence. Hitch a strange horse with an old, reliable drafter, and poor teamwork is the result. Men do their best work together when they know one another. Every neighborhood in which there are fifteen or twenty breeders should have a local association, under whose auspices annual or periodical picnics and meetings would be useful and appropriate. With an increase in local interest and membership, the association could well afford to build and maintain a breeders' community house or club for the business and social benefit of its members and guests. A building would give concrete expression to and dignify the community sense, and facilitate and encourage the holding of numerous meetings and events.—Breeder's Gazette.

Glengarry House

Brig.-Gen. E. A. Cruickshank, chairman of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, accompanied by one of the officials of the Dominion Parks Branch and a Dominion engineer, visited Glengarry House at Stonehouse Point some two weeks ago. For some months past J. A. Macdonell, K.C., (Greenfield), of Alexandria, and Mayor Chisholm of Cornwall, have been corresponding with the Dominion Parks Branch with a view to having the Dominion Government take over this site and preserve it as a memento of the early settlement of Eastern Ontario.

Glengarry House was built by Lt.-Col. John Macdonell, who was one of the members of the county of Glengarry in the Parliament of 1792, and was the Speaker in that Parliament. It was officially visited by Governor Simcoe, the first governor of Upper Canada, when he first came to Upper Canada, and was on his way to Little York, now Toronto. In U.E. Loyalist days it was headquarters for the Loyalists and settlers of this district. It was burned in the year 1813. The gable ends of the buildings stand in an excellent state of preservation, with a commanding view of the wide St. Lawrence immediately to the south.

Stonehouse Point, on which Glengarry House is situated, is at present owned by R. J. Craig, Glen Walter.

J. A. Macdonell, K.C., accompanied Gen. Cruickshank and party, but as yet it has not been fully decided whether the Government will actually take over the property or not. In any event it is believed that through the courtesy of Mr. Craig, an inscription will be placed on the building, noting its historical importance and that Mr. Craig will permit of arrangements being made by which tourists and others may visit this relic of the early history of Canada, from time to time.—Cornwall Standard.

Nasturtium Pickles

The nasturtium pods are ripe for pickling from the end of July until the end of August. Gather them on a dry day, put them in a dry glass bottle after wiping them carefully. Fill each bottle with vinegar, six peppercorns, and one ounce of salt. When the bottle is filled, cork and seal tightly and let stand three months before using.

The Welcome Tomato

With pale meats or fish the tomato offers many possibilities in the way of accompaniment. Tomatoes, either baked or as a salad are especially suitable.

Then there are the soups, made tasty by the addition of tomato, the tomato aspics with their various uses, and the tomato sauce to convert macaroni, spaghetti and rice into luncheon dishes which may be used instead of meat, not to mention the accessory sauces for meats, fish and croquets.

Furthermore, there are many vegetable combinations that are improved by the addition of tomato. In fact the tomato fills more places and can be served in a greater variety of ways than any other vegetable. We have come a long way from the time when tomatoes were called "love apples" which only the foolhardy dare eat. But after a year or so, when nothing happened, they came into their own quickly.

De Laval cream makes the best butter

WHETHER you make butter yourself or sell butter-fat to a creamery, the value of your cream depends largely on the kind of butter it will make.

It is easy to prove that De Laval cream makes better butter. Every first prize awarded at the Convention of the National Buttermakers' Association since it was started twenty-eight years ago, has gone to butter made by De Laval users, or from gathered cream largely De Laval-separated.

The De Laval Separator is more sanitary; its bowl runs at lower speed and delivers the butter-fat globules unbroken. It is used in practically all of the world's creameries, because it gives not only more cream but better cream as well. And the fact that the De Laval runs at lower speed adds years to its life.

Let us demonstrate to you why the De Laval is the World's Standard Cream Separator

MR. JAMES MCKENZIE

On Wednesday of last week, this section of the township of Lochiel lost one of its old and most highly respected citizens in the death of Mr. James McKenzie aged 77 years.

Deceased had enjoyed comparatively good health until a few months ago. He was a son of Col. McKenzie who served in the war of 1812 and while a mere boy came with his parents from Scotland to settle in new Glengarry. For many years he carried on the mercantile business retiring from same some years ago. In religion he was a Presbyterian, in politics a staunch Conservative. His widow, five daughters, three of whom are married and one son, survive to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and affectionate father. His friends throughout Glengarry were legion and his passing will be a subject of much regret.

Are Klingtite Belts- Too Good for the Farm ?

Some say they are !

But no GOOD farmer will admit that he is satisfied with inferior belts. Farm power-work needs just as fine a belt as does the city factory.

That is why Goodyear Klingtite Belts are taking such a strong hold.

Klingtite Belts may cost more to buy. But they certainly cost less to use. They last longer. And they do their work better.

If better belts interest you, see us about Klingtite Belts.

Synopsis of Later Chapters.

Dartin, in possession of Dartigny fortune, has to pay Haverton silence money. On Stella's birthday Baxenter gives her the Dartigny locket. Stella's mother recognizes the crest it bears as the same as that on a ring handed down from Stella's great-grandmother, the long lost Sylvia Dartigny. Baxenter, his suspicions aroused, accepts Dartin's invitation to Adderbury Towers.

On the journey northward Robert leant back and gazed steadily out over the flying landscape, letting his mind run at random among the facts and suspicions he had accumulated, and steeling his heart to the task before him. It was well, perhaps, for his purpose that Stella had driven down to the station to see him off; for he told himself that it was for that dainty little figure in muslin, which had waved to him until the bend of the platform had hidden her from view, that he was working. If ever ended justified means, surely they did so now. All the same, the young solicitor wished that it had been any one but his heart that he was acting against.

The journey was not a long one, a coach being attached to the mail and slipped at Barchester, and at half-past six Robert was standing on the platform of the station of the cathedral town. A sleepy station was that of Barchester, save at the arrival and departure of the London trains. It lay some half-mile outside of the town, the roofs of the houses of which Robert could see in the valley and straggling up the lower slopes of the downs.

Dartin was there to greet him, and Robert felt a curious catch at his heart as he received the handclasp and looked into the laughing eyes. Surely this man was not one to weave such a web of conspiracy, the outline of which were already taking shape in the solicitor's brain—a scheme even in which murder played a part!

And then he found himself in a comfortable "jingle," bowing merrily down the winding road that led to and became the High Street of Barchester. The little town looked very peaceful in the calm of the early evening. The High Street, with its irregular buildings and quaint bow-windows jutting out at unexpected angles, dipped steeply to the market-place in the centre of the town. Above the red roofs the square tower of the cathedral rose up, gray and sentinel-like. It was market day, and Dartin had to thread his little vehicle in and out among the carts of carriers and farmers as he crossed the cobbled square and drove through the wide oak-timbered gateway of the Crown Hotel.

"Mr. Haverton returned?" Dartin asked the hostler who came running out from the stable to attend the horse. "Ain't seen 'im, sir. Going to shut out, sir?"

Dartin handed the reins to the man and alighted.

"No—put her on the pillar reily. Come in, Baxenter; you'll be dry after the journey. Haverton had a little shopping to do. By-the-by, you'll like Haverton—he'll join us here."

Eddie came to them a few minutes later in the low-ceilinged apartment, panelled in mellow oak, which was the pride of the "Crown," and indeed of all Barchesters. There were many a visitor to the cathedral who, much against his principles, was persuaded within the precincts of a hotel for the first time in his life by that mellow oak paneling and the great cellars of the "Crown"—cellars built like the crypt of the cathedral itself and from which, rumor had it, secret passages exist. Here to his hand was the chance he had been hoping for. Eavesdropper—it was a hateful word, but Robert was not going to fight that battle with himself all over again. He stepped out on to the little balcony and leaned over the low stone parapet.

It had rained a little while they had been at dinner, and the scented air of the garden came up to him now delightfully fresh and cool. There was no moon; from the wood across the lawn, which loomed up dimly against the star-lit sky, an owl hooted dismally. In the distance he could make out the lights of the town. Directly beneath him, Robert could distinguish the wide gravel path which circled the house; on it the light from the billiard room windows cut three squares of radiance.

The solicitor slipped off his shoes, and, keeping well in the shadows of the eaves and gables, made his way alongside the little gutter to the spot below which he had heard the unwhispered of the window. He had to pass two other windows on his way, but these had their blinds closely drawn and were in darkness; they belonged, doubtless, to rooms in the large house which were not used by the present owner.

And now he had reached the position he desired and could see the top of the frames of the wide-open French windows, and, leaning as far forward as he dared, he braced himself to listen.

At first he could make out nothing definite—the click of the balls, a word here and there evidently relating to the game that was in progress, sometimes a laugh. He could smell the smoke from the men's cigars, and now and again he heard the hiss of a syphon.

As his ear became better attuned, however, he began to make out sentences, but it was not until he heard the cues being placed in the rack that he was rewarded with anything that helped the matter which was filling his mind.

Dartin and Haverton, their game ended, had evidently drawn their chairs near to the air of the open windows, and now that the sounds of the play had ceased, their voices rose distinctly to the ears of the listener on the little balcony. He heard one of the men step out on to the gravelled path, the shadow giving him warning and enabling him to dip down behind the stone coping. The man—Robert did not know which of them it was—walked up and down for a moment, possibly to see that the solicitor was in bed. How fortunate it was that he had not switched on the light in his room.

"Gone off a lot, Vivian. You used to do those long cannon shots up the table every time. Do you remember that game at the 'Asiatic' with Lieutenant Fenton?"

The men laughed at the recollection. "I'm afraid, Eddie, that I don't take much interest in the game now—don't need to. I'd rather have a hand at poker—and, by the way, don't call me Vivian."

"All right, old man, I didn't think of playing cards, somehow." Dartin laughed shortly. "I did, Eddie," he said; "but it seemed too weird altogether—you and I—and a Baxenter!" the speaker seemed to shudder as he spoke.

There was silence for a few moments before Haverton answered. "I told you your nerve had got rusty," he said at last. "Why can't you forget unpleasant things? Ugh!"—a little shiver—"it's me for my downy couch—what?"

Robert remained motionless till he heard the windows being closed and saw the patches on the path disappear as the lights were switched off; then in a moment he regained his room. He heard the others come up the stairs and separate with mutual wishes for good repose, then quietude settled down over the big house. (To be continued.)

Harvest of the Sea.

North Sea fishermen handle ten thousand million fishes of all sorts and sizes; from the giant ray to the tiny whiting, every year. The twin ports of Yarmouth and Lowestoft have alone received nine hundred million herrings in one season.

One acre of the North Sea or the English Channel is capable of yielding as great a weight of food as a hundred acres of the best grass land in Sussex.

There has been quite a run on fowl farms lately, but when we consider that the cod produces eight million eggs, the domestic fowl has to take a back seat. It is estimated, however, that only one egg in ten millions lives to "grow up."

Salmon produce a thousand eggs for every pound of their weight, and though the canning factories of Western Canada and the United States are working hard all the time to supply the world's demands, the fish still run up the rivers in hundreds of thousands.

Fountain Brush Has Safety Fuse.

A feature of a fountain brush having a reservoir containing inflammable liquids, such as gasoline, benzine, and turpentine, for cleaning purposes, is the fusible cap which melts in case of fire, and said to prevent explosion and spread of flaming fluid. A valve plunger pressed down by the forefinger admits the liquid to the bristles. The reservoir serves also as a handle. The brush is for the purpose of cleaning a variety of objects—type forms, half-tones, and utensils found in the rubber-tire and electrotyping industries.

Home "Lessons."

By "home lessons" I do not mean the doing of sums, the drawing of maps, and the like. There are lessons of another sort, and these have to do with the saving of life.

A fire breaks out. The loss of life by fire—of child-life especially—is great. If the little one has been taught what to do many lives would have been saved. So let mothers give, now, "home lessons" to their children on the subject.

It will be observed that the lessons aim at cultivating the all-important quality of "presence of mind." With some that quality is a natural gift. Most, however, acquire it by being taught exactly what to do in an emergency.

Knowing what should be done gives one "presence of mind." A well-taught lesson is at once remembered. The mind is, literally, "present," the head is cool, the emergency is faced without flurry or panic.

If a room is filled with smoke, teach the lesson that the first thing to do is to keep, by kneeling or lying down, as close to the floor as possible. Explain that fresh air may be found there and breathed until rescue comes. Many children, suffocated to death, would be alive now if they had been taught that simple lesson, and made to practice it.

Many children—adults, too—have been found suffocated close to a shut window. As likely as not, they had fumbled in a panic at the window-catch, failed to undo it, and so fell back, overcome. The lesson here is to show (1) how a catch is opened. Many children have no notion. Then (2) show them how a pane of glass in the window should be smashed. This, as being a quicker method of getting air, is important.

Tell them that if the room is full of smoke, they should crawl along the floor, get the poker—one should be kept in every bed-room—and hit the pane hard with a stal motion. Show them how to do it, stopping, of course, just short of an actual smash.

Then explain that the smash would probably leave jagged pieces of glass at the sides, and that these must be quickly knocked out. They must not be left in, because—make this clear—a child putting its head through the window might get a fatal gash in the neck.

In case there should be no poker, or it could not be reached, teach the alternative method. That consists in taking anything in the way of clothing—make the "anything" clear—wrapping it round the right fist, and then banging the pane out. It will be a bottom pane, of course.

Reiterate as to the danger of jagged pieces, and then teach the children that with their head through the window they must scream loudly, so that the firemen and spectators may know where they are.

Older children, trying to do their best when something catches on fire when mother is out, seize it, hold it before them, and rush to take it to the garden or yard. Teach them that this makes a draught, and that the flames would blow back on them. Then show them that burning material should be held at arm's length behind them. Sacrifice an old duster to make this lesson clear.

Finally, teach the children how to wrap a wet towel over their mouth and nose, and so pass through thick smoke to safety. In all bed-rooms, even if the children wash in the bathroom, there should be towels and water. A mother's duty, that.

It will be found that children will learn the above lessons with zest, and just as "fire-drill" is frequently practiced, so should the lessons be often rehearsed.

Seasonable Recipes.

Blackberry jam that is different from that usually made requires two quarts of blackberry juice to six pounds of apples (pared and sliced) and one pound of crushed loaf sugar. Cook slowly until the apples are soft and the mixture thickens, then pour into sterilized glasses and seal with paraffin. This is wholesome, economical and has a flavor resembling jam made of damson plums.

Grape-juice punch requires two quarts of grape-juice, one quart of water, one quart of ginger ale, juice of six lemons, juice of six oranges, sugar to taste. Make a syrup of one pound of sugar and the water. Add the orange and lemon peel (sliced), and chill. When about to serve remove the fruit peel, add the other ingredients and pour over cracked ice.

Delicious fruit lemonade: To two gallons of lemonade add the juice of six large oranges, or twelve small ones, and the juice from a can of sliced pineapple. Run the sliced pineapple through a food-chopper and add it to the lemonade. Strawberries, cherries and small pieces of orange, pineapple and muskmelon can be added if desired. Pour into glasses partly filled with cracked ice and stick a sprig of mint in each glass.

Raspberry vinegar makes a refreshing drink for a hot day. To make it, put two quarts of fresh ripe berries into a porcelain vessel and pour over them a quart of vinegar. After twenty-four hours strain the berries and pour the juice over two quarts of fresh raspberries. Allow these to stand another twenty-four hours, then strain and allow one pound of sugar to each pint of juice. Put the juice in a stone jar, cover, set the jar in a kettle of boiling water and allow to boil for one hour. Skim the juice, then bottle and seal with paraffin. To serve the vinegar, pour it over cracked ice, and dilute with water, if necessary.

To preserve butter: Place the butter in a granite or aluminum saucepan and place over a slow fire. The butter should melt slowly, allowing impurities to fall to the bottom and the scum which rises to the surface must be carefully removed. As soon as the butter has melted, the heat of the fire is increased until the butter begins to boil, the scum being continually removed and the butter stirred to prevent the impurities at the bottom from burning. When no more scum rises to the top, the boiling must be stopped, salt to taste is added and the melted butter is allowed to cool until it no longer burns the finger. The clear butter is then poured off into jars which are carefully closed, sealed with paraffin, then stored in a cool, dry place.

Juices obtained from raspberries and blackberries can be used to eke out a meagre supply of fruit, and if put up now can be combined with apples later. To prepare the juice, weigh the berries and add one-half as much cold water by weight. Boil in a covered kettle for ten minutes. Let stand ten minutes and strain. Bottle the juice for future use by filling fruit-jars with the juice, partly sealing the jars, and sterilizing them for sixteen minutes. Seal tightly and put to one side until apple juice is available, then combine the bottled juice with from one-third to one-half as much apple juice and follow the general directions for making jelly. The apple pulp can be combined with quince parings and cores, or with barberries and made into jam. Rub the cooked quince through a sieve in order to remove seeds and hulls.

For the Picnic Basket.

Do not put anything with a strong odor into a lunch basket.

Do not include fried foods. They are difficult to digest.

Avoid putting in any food when there is the least doubt as to freshness.

Wrap each food article in waxed paper. This is hygienic and dainty.

Use fresh paper napkins—they are attractive and cheap.

Be sure to sun and air the basket, or box, when not in use.

Thoroughly wash, and dry by heat, figs and dates, before using.

Skin, separate and wrap in waxed paper oranges for the lunch basket.

Nut meats, salted, take the place of meat—most children like them.

Bananas must be thoroughly ripe, eaten slowly and well chewed.

Always allow a small amount of sweets for the lunch.

Sweets may be in the form of home-made candy, cakes or cookies.

A small bottle of milk is an ideal luncheon food.

Puzzling Letters.

People are often puzzled by the strings of letters which some men have after their names.

One of the most important classes consists of the various grades of the Orders of Knighthood. In these K. stands for Knight, C. for Companion or Commander, M. for Member, and O. for Officer. Thus K.C.B. is Knight Commander of the Bath; C.M.G. is Commander of St. Michael and St. George; M.V.O. means Member of the Royal Victorian Order; while O.B.E. means Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Next we have the degrees given by Universities. Here D. means Doctor; M. Master; and B. Bachelor. D.C.L. stands for Doctor of Civil Law; D.M. for Master of Arts; and B.Sc. for Bachelor of Science.

There are several learned societies whose membership is gained by examination, or awarded for exceptional attainments. The greatest of these is the Royal Society, and the man who can add F.R.S. (Fellow of the Royal Society) to his name has received the highest honor of the scientific world. Others are the Royal College of Physicians (F.R.C.P. is Fellow; M.R.C.P. member) and the Royal College of Surgeons, which has Fellows (F.) Members (M.), and Licentiates (L.).

Milk as Glue.

Fancy using milk as glue. The milk does not come from the cow, but from a wonderful tree called the cow-tree. But, for all that, it is quite as pleasant to drink as the milk we get from the dairy.

The tree is one of the largest to be found in the dense forests of Brazil. Its bark is deeply scored, reddish, and ragged.

Cuts are made in the trunk to allow the milk to flow, but a supply can be obtained equally well from one which has been cut down for some time.

A traveller had some of the milk drawn from dry logs which had been standing many days in the hot sun. He found it pleasant with coffee. It soon thickened to a glue, and often he saw the natives use it to cement broken crockery.

NURSES

The Toronto Hospital for Incurables, in affiliation with Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, New York City, offers a three years' Course of Training to young women, having the required education, and desirous of becoming nurses. This Hospital has adopted the eight-hour system. The pupils receive uniforms of the School, a monthly allowance and travelling expenses to and from New York. For further information apply to the Superintendent.

Noses As Chest Protectors.

How many people know that the nose is a natural filter?

Its passages are furnished with numbers of minute hairs against which air must brush as it is breathed in. These hairs catch the tiny particles of dust and dirt which all air contains, preventing them from being carried into the delicate tissues of the throat and lungs.

When a quantity of small particles has been filtered by the nose, they set up an irritation, which causes you to sneeze and get rid of them.

The nose has another important function: it serves to warm cold air before it reaches the lungs. The air, as it is taken in through the nostrils, passes along narrow passages which are often the same temperature as the body, and as it goes its chill is taken off. The nose, then, is also a very effective chest protector.

That is why people who breathe through the nose are less liable to diseases of the chest and throat than those who breathe through the mouth. The latter take dirty, unfiltered air straight into the lungs, where its particles of dust, soot, or grit set up irritation, which paves the way for the microbes of disease. On cold days they pass quantities of unwarmed air direct to the lungs.

Meteors Blamed for Extreme Heat.

The extraordinary warm weather of the present summer is caused by an unusual downpour of meteors on the sun, increasing its radiation and effective surface temperature, in the belief of Prof. T. J. J. See, U.S. Government astronomer at the Mare Island Navy Yard, California.

Citing the fact that unusually warm summers occur every ten or eleven years, he said that "now, for the first time, by profound researches, astronomers are able to throw some light" upon this great mystery.

"Since a mass of meteoric matter greater than our moon is falling into the sun every century," he said, "it is very improbable that the downpour proceeds at a uniform rate. If it comes down in gusts under the actions of the chief planets, Jupiter and Saturn, which are now near conjunction and are seen together in our evening sky, then we should have sudden increases of the sun's radiation just such as we now witness all over the world. This is a sufficient explanation of the unprecedentedly hot summer."

The Blow That Told.

One didn't have to be told that he was a cheery man with a happy disposition, an optimist from the jolly two hairs on his head to his dancing size eleven feet. His name was Nathaniel Smudge.

The proprietress of the boarding-house was showing him round.

"I think this room will do very well indeed, Mrs. Grabb; but there is just one thing," said Mr. Smudge. "What sort of a neighborhood is it?"—he crossed to the window—"For instance, what is that large building across the street?"

"Oh, that is an orphanage; but the children only play outdoors in the afternoon—they are fairly quiet," explained Mrs. Grabb.

"Very well. Now, the institution over there. What is that?"

"Oh, that is a prison; but we seldom see the convicts, only when they are at work or playing ricket."

"I don't mind that either. Now, what is that structure up the street?"

"Why, that is a lunatic asylum; but the lunatics are quite harmless. The violent ones only occasionally escape."

"Ahom! That is, I suppose, to be expected. Even so, I will take the room." And he smiled good-humoredly as he paid the first week's rent in advance.

"Thank you!" said Mrs. Grabb, anxiously to please. "We try to make things pleasant. My little girl plays the piano, and—"

Without a word, Mr. Smudge snatched back the rent money and dashed from the house.

Popular Keyhole.

Peter was no different from other boys. Sometimes when his sister's friend would call he would entertain him in the drawing-room until Dolly came downstairs.

One night the young man asked the youngest if he ever peered through the keyhole while he and the boy's sister were in the drawing-room.

With a sudden burst of candor, Peter answered: "Oh, rather—when mother isn't there!"

Hunting the Lost Mines of Lower California.

With the establishment of comparative tranquillity throughout Mexican territory, the search for the "lost mines" of Lower California has been undertaken in real earnest.

One of the old mines, at least, has been located, and the interesting methods employed in working it are entirely different from those commonly used by prospectors in this country. Its location, hundreds of miles from civilization, makes necessary methods that are different from those employed where modern facilities are at hand. Yet the crude ways of the prospectors pioneering in Lower California are surprisingly complete so far as results go.

Trenches, braced with limbs of trees to prevent crumbling, were built, running laterally to the fissure containing the gold ore. The ore then could be taken from the fissure at various points, the original trenches filled in, and new ones built further along as the work progressed. In this way all the upper strata of the mine could be worked without sinking shafts and doing expensive construction work. There is enough to the mine to keep this method in operation several years; by that time it is hoped to have facilities at hand for the sinking of shafts and reaching the ore that lies farther below the surface.

The ore is then shot down the side of the mountain, on slides built of logs, to the valley below, where the most interesting work begins.

A large basin is built of concrete, 8 or 10 ft. in diameter and perhaps a foot deep. In the centre of this, a large concrete block firmly supports an upright iron rod. There is also in the basin a movable block of concrete which has two similar iron rods in the top, each with a hooked end.

When sufficient ore has been accumulated beside this basin, it is filled with water, and some of the ore-bearing rock placed inside. A long pole is slipped over the central iron rod, which serves as an axis, and under the hoops of the movable rock. A burro is harnessed to the outer end of the pole and driven round the outside of the basin, the heavy rock being dragged around the basin as he does so. The result, of course, is the complete pulverizing of the ore.

Next, a quantity of quicksilver is poured into the basin. This absorbs the gold particles that have been loosened by the pulverizing process. The water is then evaporated, and the quicksilver, with its gold, remains in the bottom of the basin. The quicksilver is then scraped up, dirt washed out by panning, and the quicksilver is placed in a buckskin bag and pressed. The quicksilver passes out of the pores of the skin, but the gold remains inside. Such of the quicksilver as remains—a very small amount—is burned out and the process is then over.

Automatic Skinning Device Quickly Removes Hides.

The uncertain and often wasteful strokes of the butcher's knife as he peels the hide from the animal are soon to be supplemented by a mechanism designed for the same purpose which is speedy and economical in operation. It comprises a motor-driven reciprocating knife which protrudes from a mouthlike aperture at the tip of a chisel-shaped housing. This housing is inserted between the hide and the flesh. With the motor running, the knife alternately protrudes and withdraws from the housing in rapid reciprocations, and speedily parts the skin and flesh. The machine is also made with a perpendicularly disposed motor.

"Water Tennis" Appears on West Coast.

A new sport now rapidly gaining favor on the Pacific coast is known as "water tennis." It is really an adaptation of lawn tennis to the swimming pool, and is described as a great hot-weather diversion. When splashing about after the rubber ball in a shallow pond protected from the sun by surrounding foliage, all the exercise and sport of the dry-land game are derived, without the annoying heat and perspiration.

Doctor's Car Has Emergency Wireless Receiving Set.

Physicians and others who find it essential to keep in close contact with their homes when out on short motor-car trips, will be interested in the latest development of wireless telegraphy. In its application to the motor car, the tall antennae are dispensed with and taking their place is a series of four wires which run entirely around the top of the car, resembling a small wire banister. The receiving apparatus is located on top of the back-rest cushion of the rear seat. The outfit has a range of five miles and makes a very useful and modern accessory to the motor car.

Most Protestant Country.

Sweden is said to be the most Protestant country in the world. Of the population of 6,000,000 there are only 2,000 Roman Catholics, the remainder of the population belonging almost entirely to the Lutheran church.

A Tough Job.

The Vicar—"I suppose you've a large family to support, Mrs. Dempsey?"

Mrs. Dempsey—"I have, sir; and if they didn't all earn their own living I couldn't manage it."

MONSTER APARTMENT HOUSE FOUND

ONE THOUSAND YEARS OLD, IN NEW MEXICO.

Home of Civilized People, 10,000 in Number, Who Disappeared Mysteriously.

Evidence that a race once dwelt in the Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, possessing a degree of civilization comparable with our own has been unearthed by archeologists working under the direction of the School of American Research of Santa Fe. The discoveries to date—it will be fully five years before the entire find is disclosed—consist of an apartment house containing about one thousand rooms together with domestic implements.

Strangely enough there is no trace of the people, and the archeologists say there must have been fully ten thousand of them, in the way of burial grounds or skeletons. It is conjectured that the inhabitants left the valley in leisurely fashion, as there are no evidences of flight, when at the very zenith of their development. This exodus is estimated to have taken place fully a thousand years ago, and so far as the investigators have been able to learn the people stepped out of history when the janitor turned the key in the gigantic apartment house they vacated.

Work of a Free People. The shifting of sands which hid the structure for centuries gave scientists their first clue to the existence of a hitherto unknown race. Excavations disclosed a building equaling in extent about two ordinary city squares and so well constructed as to defy the tooth of time. It is situated in what is known as the Chetro Kettle and its curved front swings in an arc of seven hundred feet, and the fifty million pieces of stone which make its walls bear every evidence of having been quarried and carefully cut.

Archeologists are convinced that the work is that of a free people and not the handiwork of slaves, as was, for instance, that of the pyramids. There is evidence of painstaking craftsmanship, such as only men who worked for the love of the work would be capable of doing.

From his observations at Chetro Kettle, Dr. Edgar J. Hewitt, director of the School of American Research, is convinced that the people who lived there were of a race that matured in its culture without serious interruption, and that mysteriously went into oblivion at the summit of its civilization. There is here no evidence of a decaying civilization, such as may be seen even to-day in sections of the Rio Grand Valley. But, while all signs point to the fact that abandonment came at the full tide of life, there are also no signs of sudden destruction, a fact which makes the disappearance of this race more mysterious than ever.

It is hoped that somewhere within the ruins of Chetro Kettle something may be found which will tell the name and something of the blood, language and cultural potentialities of these remarkable people. All that is known now is that the community consisted of approximately ten thousand persons and that they cultivated some three thousand acres of land.

Remarkably Preserved. Excavation disclosed the curved front of the building with a massive axis and rooms on either side. All the doorways were closed with massive masonry, seeming to show the building had been deliberately abandoned. Outside is a trench eight feet deep and two feet wide and the masonry both of the walls and bottom is comparable with modern concrete construction. The bottom is smooth, as if worn down by the tread of feet for hundreds of years. Apparently it was used by defenders of the apartment house in going from one end of the arc to the other in case of an attack.

The walls of the building are reinforced by heavy timbers just as steel rods are used to-day for that purpose in concrete construction. Excavation in the inner court revealed an amazing labyrinth of kivas, cists, shafts and variously walled spaces.

The floors and ceilings were constructed by first laying heavy supporting timbers across from wall to wall. Upon these were laid smaller logs, placed closely side by side, over these came thin cedar slabs, next a layer of cedar bark and finally a packed layer of earth. Some of the rooms show a remarkable state of preservation of both masonry and timber.

Hotels for Horses. Hotels for children are quite common nowadays, but a hotel for horses is the newest innovation in an European town. This establishment—a wonderful stable, with every modern contrivance—provides luxurious quarters for the horses of the town's bus company. Beside this, it rents accommodation by the day, week, or year for horse visiting or staying permanently in the city.

It is a structure three stories high, and on each floor there is a roomy balcony running the full length of the building. These are available for exercising the horses. An inclined run-way, by which the animals may proceed up or down, connects these with one another and the ground level. A band of uniformed attendants are engaged to look after the horses, and these lucky animal inmates are given every possible care and attention.

Japan Crown Prince Sees Metric Units.

The visit of Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan furnished an occasion for calling attention to many things unknown to the average tourist, but even Frenchmen well acquainted with Paris offering stared blankly when told that the Prince had actually touched the standard metric scale and kilogramme weight, which are kept in the Pavillon de Breteuil, near St. Cloud. These two objects, whose accuracy has been accepted since 1875 by all nations adopting the metric system, are constantly guarded in a cellar by guards appointed by an international commission.

The pavilion itself is situated in the midst of a wooded on a raised plateau not approached by ordinary roads. None except the guards and occasional visitors of note or experts desiring to compare other scales are ever permitted to enter the almost sacred territory and then only for brief periods, as the cellar's ventilation is controlled by a special air purifying apparatus designed to prevent any substance getting in which might corrode the delicate objects. In order to maintain an equal temperature ice is actually brought from the highest attainable points on Swiss glaciers. The guards themselves are reported to walk about in slippers to prevent the slightest vibrations from disturbing the closely guarded position of the weighing instruments.

Finds Singing Builds Up Health.

If you want to be healthy sing as often as possible, is the advice of Prof. Frossard of the Sorbonne, which was reported to the French Academy of Science by his colleague, Prof. d'Arsonval, says a Paris despatch.

Prof. Frossard has experimented with hundreds of cases of overexcitation and sympathetic nerves, as well as gastric cases, and has found that when the patients keep in a cheerful mood, singing music of the gayest quality, the equilibrium of the nervous system is restored within a few weeks and badly damaged appetites commence to reappear with full force.

The Academy recommended that special attention be given to singing classes in crowded districts where everything tends to break down the nervous and digestive systems.

Musicians in the Olympic, by means of wireless telephones, entertained the Aquitania's passengers to banjo selections while the ships were two hundred and sixty miles apart.

Surnames and Their Origin

ASQUITH.
Variations—Hesketh.
Racial Origin—English.
Source—A given name.

Here is a family name, widely known if not widely borne, which would be a good bit of a puzzle were it not possible to trace it back, step by step, through the centuries to a source in an old Anglo-Saxon given name.

This latter is one of those which have entirely disappeared in the course of the development in nomenclature which followed the Norman invasion and the language changes of more modern times. And it might be remarked here that the number of Anglo-Saxon given names which have disappeared completely is far greater than those which are still in use to-day.

In this case the name was "Hes-cuth." It probably suffered a loss in the period immediately following the Norman invasion. Nevertheless, the old names were retained to a certain extent among the subdued Anglo-Saxons probably the greatest number of them disappearing in the latter period of amalgamation than the earlier one of subjugation. But the name had not entirely disappeared at the time family names began to form, and it is first traceable as "Hes-cuth's-son." Ease of pronunciation first caused the dropping of the ending and then the

THE REAL "MONTE CRISTO'S" ISLAND

HIDDEN TREASURES OF OLD BUCCANEERS.

Fabulous Wealth Discovered on Cocos Island in Southern Pacific Ocean.

That very useful island, where Dumas' famous hero, Monte Cristo, found fabulous wealth, had its position in the celebrated author's imagination. What would he have written had he known that the real thing was then in existence and within easy reach of those who liked to look for it?

An Englishman, in the year of Dumas' death, filled his pockets from one of the many hoards there. In the last seventy years, at least twenty-nine known expeditions have visited this treasure-strewn locality; and more than one have returned with retrieved riches.

Pacific Phantoms.
The island is to be investigated again by a party made up, not of harum-scarum treasure-seekers or amateur diggers, but of ex-British and United States naval officers, assisted by others with an intimate knowledge of mining. Hitherto operations have been on primitive lines, or, at the best, with spades and explosives. This new party, with a substantial financial backing, proposes to make full use of up-to-date scientific and mining engineering appliances, and to provide for a long stay.

Some of the "dumps" which have so long defied discovery may be brought to light.

Real Treasure Island is no barren, sterile spot. Early last century it had a solitary settler, and before that others. What became of them neither history nor tradition hints, but if ghosts haunt any spot it ought to be this romantic island. Wild pigs and goats, doves, and other native fauna are in abundance; and the shore waters swarm with fish and sharks.

They who, two centuries or so ago, set up their palisades and brushwood huts, dug wells and made use of the island for obtaining fresh stores of water and food, were like others who followed them, keen judges of a handy and comfortable rendezvous. Whether in the East or the West Indies, the northern Indian Ocean or the West Pacific, the Black Flag pirates had the knack of choosing a pleasing base for drinking and murder.

Since these bold bad men of the seventeenth century hid their valuables and specie, down to as late as 1835, many millions' worth of treasure have been hidden for safety on Cocos Island. Among the principal hoards is that of pirate Bonita.

This Spaniard, traditions say, hid over $5,000,000 of gold and silver in coinage, ingots, 2-weils, and plate, obtained from rifled merchantmen and looted towns. Yellow Jack claimed him suddenly at Panama, and he, with his dying breath, divulged to his chief officers the whereabouts of the "dump." Before the vessel set sail, both of them were killed in a drunken fray, and all knowledge of the treasure was lost.

Caches of Gold.

Plans and documents indicating another great cache came into the possession of two English women, two years before the war, and their treasure hunt on the Cocos lasted for seven weeks. The expedition discovered the well-defined rocks which are supposed to indicate the treasure-cave's entrance; also the creek, the waterfall, and several other marks of location, but unfortunately the face of the cliff has slid down over the mouth of the cavern.

There are thousands of tons of debris to be removed before the cache can be reached, but the proposed expedition of treasure-hunters has something to go on with, the previous party having left enough evidence of the site of their labors.

The wealthiest of all the Cocos' hoards is, undoubtedly, that of the Porvian's millions, hidden in 1855; and it is interesting to note that as late as 1913 the Panama authorities heard that a United States steamer had left the island with a large quantity of treasure-trove aboard. Later on, collectors in the United States were finding that golden pieces of the early Peruvian Republic were not so very rare.

Undoubtedly these coins came from the 1855 cache, or from the smallest sum secreted on the Cocos ten years earlier by the defaulting heads of a revolutionary junta in Peru, two of whom met unknown deaths on board their vessel, the third being killed at Valparaiso.

Lost Landmarks.

In 1855 the Peruvians, hard pressed by Chile's troops, sent the contents of the national till on board the U.S.A. barque Mary Dyer, lying in Calloa Roads. Her hands, three nights later, while the mate was ashore owing to the skipper's sudden and strange death, slipped anchor, and escaped to sea before the forts could hold up the vessel.

When she was captured a few weeks later by a Peruvian warship, the national riches had disappeared. Three of the crew escaped being hanged at the yard-arm—two seamen, who promised to reveal the cache, and another, Thomson, who had been seriously unwell at the time and in his bunk. Subsequently, the two seamen, on trying to prove that the treasure was hidden on one of the Galapagos, were shot as liars.

Thomson escaped at Panama, and at Colon found a kind Newfoundland-er, Keating, who smuggled him on board his vessel, bound for Kingston, Jamaica. There Thomson disappeared for ever; but in 1863 and 1866 Keating visited the Cocos and lifted some of the treasure.

These treasures of the Cocos are not mere myths. An Englishman in the early forties of last century enriched himself from a hoard there; two separate American expeditions, a native of Lima, and Joseph Keating have done likewise.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months, and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred Rose, of South Bay, Ont., says: "I feel Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It's What You Do That Counts.

It isn't the job you intended to do, Nor the labor you've just begun That puts you right on the ledger sheet, It's the work you have actually done.

Your credit is based on the things you do, Your debit on things you shirk. The man that totals the biggest plus Is the man that completes his work.

Good intentions do not pay bills; It's easy enough to plan. To wish is the play of an office boy, TO DO is the work of a man.

He Knew.
Mr. and Mrs. Jones had been invited to a friend's for tea, and the time had arrived for preparing for the visit.

"Come along, dearie," said Mrs. Jones to her three-year-old son, "and have your face washed."

"Don't want to be washed," came the reply.

"But," said the mother, "you don't want to be a dirty little boy, do you? I want my little boy to have a nice clean face for the ladies to kiss."

Upon this persuasion he gave way, and was washed.

A few minutes later he stood watching his father washing.

"Ha, ha, daddy!" he cried. "I know why you're washing!"

THE HEALTHY MAN HAS THE BEST CHANCE

Is Always Full of Life and Energy—Failures Are Weak and Bloodless.

Some men seem to have all the luck. If there are any good things going these men seem to get them. If they are business men they are successful; if they are workmen they get the foreman's job. They have the power of influencing people.

The same is true of women. Some have the charm that makes men seek them out; others are neglected. But this is not luck. It is due to a personal gift—vitality. Men and women of this sort are never weak, puny invalids. They may not be big, but they are full of life and energy. The whole thing is a matter of good blood, good nerves and good health. Everyone would wish to be like this and the qualities that make for vitality and energy are purely a matter of health. By building up the blood and nerves, sleeplessness, want of energy, weakness of the back, headaches and the intellectual sort of presence which really comes from weakness can be got rid of. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made many weak, tired men, vigorous, and many pale dejected girls and women, rosy and attractive, by improving their blood and toning up their nerves. If you are weak, low-spirited or unhealthy, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and note their beneficial effect.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Double Language is Costly to League.

Obligatory use of two languages, French and English, in all its transactions, and the high cost of living at the headquarters in Geneva are given by the special committee investigating the workings of the League of Nations as an explanation of what has been considered in some quarters as the excessive cost of the organization, says a despatch from Geneva, Switzerland. The expense of the last year, as already reported, was about $4,150,000.

"There can be no doubt," says the committee's report, "that, rightly or wrongly, the League of Nations has the reputation of costing too much." The report then goes on to explain how the complexity, diversity and novelty of the work undertaken necessarily cost heavily, particularly since it is in the hands of a comparatively young institution and lacks experience.

The dual language of the league requiring translation and duplicate publication of all documents alone accounts for one-third of the entire expense, the report says. It then points out that the location of the headquarters in Geneva makes a good deal of the excessive outlay.

"Since the main purpose of the Commission of Inquiry is to suggest every form of economy," the report says, "it feels bound to point out that, at the moment, Geneva is—and so far as it is possible to foresee will remain—a city in which the cost of living is comparatively higher than in almost any other city in Europe and where the rate of exchange is, at the moment of writing, the most disadvantageous for the great majority of states members of the league."

The report suggests that were the league headquarters in Brussels, Fontainebleau, Turin or Vienna, or almost anywhere else, an immediate economy would be effected that would be appreciated by all members of the league and particularly by those whose exchange is depreciated.

Criminal Flowers.

Like human beings, flowers have their likes and dislikes, and vent their displeasure in no uncertain manner upon their unfortunate victims.

Poppies, for instance have a very injurious effect upon other flowers placed in the same vase, which seems to react upon themselves, as they soon fade and die under such conditions. The same remark applies to sweet peas, which should always be placed by themselves.

If other blooms are placed with mignonne, there are few which will survive such intimate contact. A yellow tea-rose faded away in two hours when placed next a pink one, yet in the ordinary way it would have lasted several days.

This explains why, after arranging perfectly fresh flowers, one comes back, in the course of an hour or two, to find that some of them have wilted badly. In nearly every case, it is wilful murder on the part of the other flowers which would not bear their company.

MONEY ORDERS

A Dominion Express Money Order for five dollars costs three cents.

In Switzerland it is a criminal offence to strike a goat. To avoid the arm of the law, a man once held up a train while an obstinate member of the goat family was coaxed off the rails.

The famous "Hindenburg" wooden statue, which was to be covered by admirers with nails at a small charge each, was recently advertised for sale as firewood.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

Yes, Sir!
"Yes, sir, eighty-two I be, an' every tooth in my 'ead same as th' day I were born."

Sweet Confusion Followed.

Sentimental Young Lady—"Oh, professor, what would this old oak say if it could talk?"
Professor—"It would say, 'I am an elm.'"

Business is Business.

Wife—"Now, dear, here's the doctor to see you."

Merchant Prince (trascibly):—"Send him away and fetch the undertaker. You know I never deal with middlemen!"

Stop, Look, Listen.

He (cautiously):—"Would you say 'Yes' if I asked you to marry me?"
She (still more cautiously):—"Would you ask me to marry you if I said I would say 'Yes' if you asked me to marry you?"

Fiction Provided For.

The husband was seeing his beloved wife off for a holiday. "Maggie, dear," he said, "hadn't you better take some fiction with you to while away the time?"

"Oh, no, George," she said, "you'll be sending me some letters."

Shoddy Sheep.

"I believe I'll go over and examine them sheep of Jupp's a little carefully," said Mr. T. to his wife; "he's offered three of 'em for that yeller heifer, but knowin' him as I do I aim to be sure 'fore he gets her that their fleece ain't half cotton 'stead of wool."

A Natural Mistake.

At a cottage in an isolated part of West Perthshire visitors were so rare that many of the children have never seen any menfolk except those of their own household.

One day the children were playing happily together, when a man was espied on the hillside, evidently making for the cottage.

One of the children, who had been gazing at the unwonted apparition, remained staring open-eyed from the door of the cottage for a moment longer, and then rushed indoors, shouting in amazement:

"Oh, mither, here's a thing like father coming!"

A Question of Dignity.

In a case tried in the North of England the judge very sternly demanded of the defendant:

"Why did you strike this man?"

"Your honor," was the reply, "he called me a liar."

"Is that true?" asked the judge, turning to the man with the battered countenance.

"Certainly, it's true, your honor," was the reply. "I called him a liar because he is one, and I can prove it."

Then the judge turned to the defendant with:

"What have you to say to that?"

"I don't think it has anything to do with the case, your honor. Even if I am a liar, I've got a right to be sensitive about it, ain't I?"

DID WORK TWICE FOR HIM, HE SAYS

LETTRIS ENTHUSIASTIC IN PRAISE OF TANLAC.

Feels Full of Energy All the Time Now, Says Hamilton Man.

"Well, I don't know what it is, but there's something about Tanlac that certainly does the work," said A. Lettris, 184 Queen St. North, Hamilton, Ont. Mr. Lettris is a well-known printer and has been with the Grimes Printing Co. for nine years.

"Yes sir, I can recommend Tanlac, for it has straightened me out twice and I believe it will help anyone else who tries it. Two years ago I took the medicine and it fixed me up in fine shape and I felt good until a little while back when I commenced to feel rundown. I got to where I just had to drive myself at my work and, as my appetite was gone, I seemed to go down hill all the time instead of getting better."

"Well, I got me some Tanlac and it wasn't long until my appetite had a new start. I have just finished my second bottle now and I can eat anything at any time without its hurting me. That tired feeling is gone and I feel full of energy all the time. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it and it certainly is the medicine for me."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything or go any place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it, and it surely put new life into me. I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."

Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 272 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

THANKED THE DONORS.
On Sunday, in St. Finnan's Cathedral, Rev. C. F. Gauthier made the pleasing announcement that the electric blower recently installed was the gift of the promoters of the League of the Sacred Heart and in the name of the congregation, the Rev. gentleman thanked the generous contributors.

YOUR NEXT ENGAGEMENT.
The Social under the auspices of the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Glengarry which will be held on the spacious lawn adjoining Alexander Hall, Tuesday evening of next week, is well worthy of patronage and weather permitting we expect to see a large concourse of people all joining in what should prove a delightful evening.

G.F.M.F. INSURANCE COMPANY.
The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of The Glengarry Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, was held on Saturday, 30th July. Mr. D. D. McDonnell, President, occupied the chair and all members of the Board were present. Losses for the month amounting to $3,385.00 were ordered paid making a total for losses paid to the end of July of $13,150.00. The new business amounted to two hundred applications netting $2,950.00 in receipts making the receipts to date $10,950.00 compared with $8,060.00 on 1st August, 1920.

LEADS THE COUNTY.
On Monday of this week, the Sisters of the Holy Cross, St. Margaret's Convent, were advised by Mr. J. W. Crewson, Inspector of Public Schools, that Miss Helen Costello, a pupil of their school, and daughter of Mr. F. T. Costello of this place had obtained the highest marks in the county of any pupil writing in the recent Entrance Examination. The citizens of Alexandria generally share with the Rev. Sisters in the pleasurable announcement, the more so when we consider that the little lady is but thirteen years of age. This is an excellent beginning towards higher education and the standard attained, we trust, will be a forerunner of future successes. Congratulations.

OVERCOMING TEDIOUS DELAY.
To have baggage examined by the customs officials before arrival at the port, and checked to its inland destination, is one of the most highly appreciated features of service on the Canadian Pacific Express liners arriving at Quebec. By putting customs officials and a staff of baggage checkers on board of the Empress ships at Father Point the C. P. R.

overcomes the long and sometimes tedious delay otherwise experienced, and by the time that the ship docks at Quebec the special trains in readiness there to convey passengers to their inland destinations, and through this service able to proceed immediately.

LOSSES BY FOREST FIRES.
Losses running well up into the millions of dollars are sustained almost yearly in the provinces of the Dominion through forest fires. The waste being so enormous the difficulties to combat the enemy have received every consideration at the hands of Provincial Governments and here in Ontario an effort to reduce the excessive waste incurred in this way is being made by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests in conducting an advertising campaign to educate the public regarding the value of forest preservation through the prevention of fires. These advertisements are appearing in The Glengarry News and we trust will be read and marked by our readers.

NEW UNDERTAKING PARLORS AT APPLE HILL.
Mr. A. W. McMillan, Undertaker, of this town, has opened Undertaking Parlors in the office formerly occupied by Dr. R. J. McCallum, of Apple Hill. The new business there will be attended to by Mr. Dan McCallum, while the embalming and funeral directing will be looked after by Mr. McMillan, who has had long years of experience in this business and who holds a license and diploma from the Ontario Board of Examiners, as qualified embalmer. The new firm's motto will be prompt service, good work, best attention to all cases coupled with reasonable charges. Their stock of caskets and burial robes also hearse and all other equipment is the most modern and up-to-date turned out by the manufacturer. These gentlemen solicit a share of your patronage in this line. Day or night calls will be attended to promptly.

New Telephone Directory Out

The new telephone directory recently distributed is a striking departure from the old style directory. Besides being smaller in size, it includes fee exchanges and the method of listing subscribers' entries is different. The name now comes first and the telephone number last. The type, while not so black a face as in the old book, is very clear and readable.

"The new method of listing" said Manager I. B. Ostrom to the Glengarry News, was adopted because it is logical and results in fewer errors in calling numbers. When you get his initials and for further verification, his occupation and address. Last of all, just before you make your call and while it is fresh in your mind, you get the telephone number.

"The result of this method has been found to be more accuracy in calling numbers, with beneficial effect on the service. The wide columns of the old book were just so much waste space, with tendency to wrong numbers through the eye getting off the line. The new type was chosen after many tests for legibility. It is the same size as that formerly used although a lighter face. "And, of course," Mr. Ostrom added, "there is an important saving effected in our paper bill through the use of smaller directories. Any legitimate economy of this sort only puts us in a better position to care for the real needs of the service. The long distance operator will be glad to give subscribers any information concerning numbers of subscribers at any distant point they may wish to reach."

Cattle Advice

The following mottoes are given by a United States breeder, quoted in The Breeders' Gazette, as good ones for the cattlemen to follow:
"Never stint on the price of a bull, but get what you want."
"In buying a bull do your own picking."
"Pay attention to the care of the calf. No matter how hardy the breed or the individual, this is essential."
"Cull you heifers; a good cow is a desirable investment; the other kind should not be permitted to reproduce."
"Let the bull run with the herd, and the calves come at any season; but give them care when they arrive."
"The trick in breeding is to know animals that are built right."

The Fire Ranger and His Job

DOTTED over 100,000,000 acres of forest, 1,000 men, organized in the employ of the Government of Ontario, are, this summer, passing back and forth over the canoe routes and along the railways, watching out for the tell-tale smoke which is the sign of fire. Regardless of hot weather, black flies, mosquitoes, discomfort, loneliness or monotony, the Fire Ranger makes his rounds, preventing, quenching or fighting fires in Ontario's forests, paying his own living and traveling expenses, and receiving $3.00 per day for his services.

All in all, the Ontario Fire Ranger is entitled to the help and co-operation of everyone. He deserves all the support the people of Ontario can give him. His work is of vital importance. Heed his warnings. Do what he asks.

Save Ontario's Forests They're Yours

The Ontario Fire Ranger, during the danger period of the dry summer, is constantly on patrol to catch fires while they are small. He cannot prevent them starting, as a rule. He is at the mercy of all types of carelessness. Thanks to his vigilance, however, two-thirds of the forest fires in the last four years did not spread beyond five acres and of these, half did not exceed one-quarter acre.

Most of Ontario's Fire Rangers are northern woodsmen. Contrary to common belief, only five per cent. of them are students, and these are experienced Fire Rangers or returned soldiers.

Rangers travel chiefly by canoe and in pairs over a definite "beat", the length of which varies according to the degree of danger from fires.

Others travel up and down the forested railway sections on hand velocipedes, following trains to put out fires set by steam locomotives. In all, 2,100 miles of railroad are patrolled steadily all summer.

Two men devote their whole time to examining locomotives to see that screens and ashpans will not permit the escape of sparks and live coals. In the clay belt, a large force of Rangers supervise settlers' fires in land-clearing operations.

Don't blame the Fire Ranger if he asks you to be careful. Don't think he is too particular. He knows the risk. Ontario is poorer by untold millions of dollars through forest fires in the past. Help the Fire Ranger save the increasingly valuable forests that remain.
