Tea And Coffee Rations Increased

Prices Board Announces 40 Percent Increase As Of May 1st

Tea and coffee rations will be increased approximately 40 percent May 1, the Prices Board announced Wednesday night.

The announcement said coupon values will be raised to four ounces for tea or 16 ounces for coffee, with two coupons valid each month—one every second and fourth Thursday. At present, coupon values are two ounces for tea and eight ounces for coffee with two coupons valid every three weeks.

Coupons due before May 1 but not used will be accepted on or after May 1 at the increased values.

Limit of one cup of coffee or one serving of tea will continue in restaurants and other eating places. "The increase is in line with the board policy of liberalizing rations as supply situations justify," according to R. T. Mohan, tea and coffee administrator. "The new ration basis should give consumers ample tea and coffee in relation to their normal requirements."

"Added to the increase last September the new ration will double the amount originally allowed when tea and coffee were first placed under ration on August 3, 1942."

Rev. Lafontaine To Stay Here

Rev. L. B. Lafontaine, O.P., pastor of Sacred Heart parish, here, can be in little doubt of the warm place he holds in the hearts of his congregation and Alexandrians generally, following moves last week end which resulted in the cancellation of plans made for his transfer to another charge. Father Lafontaine is to remain here temporarily, his superior in the Dominican Order decided, after hearing a delegation of parishioners.

Alexandrians learned last week of the intended transfer of Father Lafontaine who had been pastor of Sacred Heart parish since December 31st, 1937. Within 24 hours an active committee of his parishioners had the names of almost every adult member of the congregation on a petition and had contacted members of the Provincial Council of the Dominican Order. Rev. P. Gaudreault, a member of the Council, and Rev. M. Marlon came to Alexandria, Saturday, and after lengthy discussion with a committee of the parishioners their request for reconsideration of the move was acceded to. Friends of Father Lafontaine from St. Finnan's parish were to wait on the visitors too, to put forward the same request, but their services were not required.

Correspondence

April 26, 1944

To The Editor
The Glengarry News.

Dear Sir—
At a meeting of the Alexandria C.C.F. Study club held recently, the attention of the meeting was directed to an article in your issue of April 14th, reporting the proceedings of a convention of the Progressive Conservative party held in Alexandria April 12th. According to your paper the candidate selected at the convention in making his speech of acceptance, said among other things that were equally untrue, that the C.C.F. party was offering National Socialism to Canada.

The Speaker was adopting in a parrot like manner the dirty antics and tactics of some of the less responsible representatives of the discredited Tory party, in an endeavour to create the impression that the C.C.F. party in Canada was the counterpart of the Nationalist Socialist party established by Hitler and his Nazis in Germany.

Now Mr. Editor, as a loyal native-born son of Canada, as Secretary of the local club, and also as one who has taken a more or less active part in the organization of the C.C.F. in Glengarry, I wish to register an emphatic objection to such tactics and attempts, to label us as members of the Nationalist Socialist party.

It ill becomes a comparative newcomer to the citizenry of this County, to identify himself with such a campaign of slander and misrepresentation as is being sponsored by the bosses of both the Tory and Liberal parties.

I will not encroach on your valuable space to point out the differences in the policies and objectives of the Nationalist Socialist party of Germany and those of the C.C.F. for they are so apparent to anyone who cares to examine and study them, that even a Tory should be able to appreciate them.

I wish to draw the attention of those interested, to the debate in the House of Commons as reported in Hansard page 929 and 941 when our Leader, Mr. Coldwell took objection to a similar statement made by a member of the Government, Mr. Lafleche and which finally led to an apology from Mr. Lafleche and as an aftermath of the episode, to several editorials being featured in both liberal and Tory newspapers, commending Mr. Coldwell for his courageous and able defence of his point of order, and in which the consensus of opinion was that such accusations are uncalled for, unparliamentary and unworthy of the better element in the political arena.

In closing, I would urge the voters of Glengarry, old and young, to hear our leader, Mr. Coldwell, who will visit Glengarry in the near future, and learn what the C.C.F. stands for and compare our policies with the negative policies of the two major parties and vote accordingly. I would also suggest that the Progressive Conservative candidate would be well advised to avoid the tactics of the pee-wee politicians of other days and lend his efforts to keep the forthcoming campaign clean, and by so doing regain the respect of the electorate for those who believe, that with the aid of the various religious and social welfare organizations, economic and social transformation can be brought about by political action.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain,
Yours sincerely,
J. J. McDONALD,
Sec'y. Alexandria C.C.F. Study Club

Loan Results Slow In First Days

Only 6.95% of Counties Objective Shown At Headquarters, Wednesday

The Sixth Victory Loan drive got off to a rather slow start this week in Glengarry and throughout the United Counties with salesman having reported to Cornwall headquarters at the close of business Wednesday night, total sales of $234,650, just 6.95 percent of the counties' objective of $3,375,000.

Sales reported in Glengarry were only a fraction of the total to date with Lancaster township showing the way at $12,950. Lochiel-Alexandria and Kenyon-Maxville were at the $4,000 level, with Charlottenburgh at only $2,000. An indication that the headquarters report gave an incomplete picture of sales to date, however, was in the fact that Alexandria salesmen had sold some $15,000 in bonds at noon yesterday.

The Glengarry objective of $650,000, will require the utmost endeavours of the loan salesmen and will only be reached if all our citizens subscribe generously.

A Victory Loan show is to be staged here, in Alexander Hall, next Tuesday evening, May 2nd, by a cast of entertainers from the Cornwall Training Centre. It will be under auspices of the Alexandria unit Red Cross.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By M. McDougall

Ottawa—It is the general belief that not a great deal of startling news of any kind may be expected to come from the coming conference of Commonwealth premiers in London. As has already been explained by Prime Minister MacKenzie King, the conference is for an exchange of views on both war and postwar problems but in the present phase of the conflict with extremely momentous events not far off, the conference has a very special significance and interest. The particular meeting of leaders from the Commonwealth partners may be submerged in histories of the time but it will be a symbol of a singleness of purpose and determination and an invaluable encouragement to the boys over there who are resting on their arms for the zero hour.

Commonwealth relations and collaboration in the days ahead when, with the war over, a weary world is setting its house in order and ensuring itself against a repetition of the deadly danger of having the spirit of liberty kicked by the jackboot entirely off this planet, will naturally be fully discussed by the Commonwealth partners. There is apparently no difference of opinion among them of the need and desirability of the continuance of the collaboration in time of peace that has been shown in time of war. The only question is getting the formula by which the full collaboration is assured.

The challenge of the hour to the Canadian people is the new Victory Loan. Canadians are again asked to show that they realize that the victory for which everyone yearns is still not in sight and they are willing to keep their shoulders to the wheel.

Parliament has been laying the cornerstone of postwar planning by the creation of the three new ministries in the cabinet which will look after "reconstruction," "veterans' affairs" and "social welfare." The last mentioned is not before parliament yet. That will wait until reports of the social security committee which is discussing questions that might be incorporated in the bill.

The new department of reconstruction will obviously be faced with difficulties as great as its duties are important. It will have a separate minister, one of the present cabinet members, but its policies will in reality be framed by a group of ministers who will be doing all in their power to bridge the great industrial gap between war and peace. Their task doesn't cover alone the conversion of war industry into peacetime production, and the preparation of public works programs to help employment during the transition period while the conversion is taking place. They will be charged with helping to restore railway, highway and other capital equipment to peacetime standards, but in their hands really lies the duty of the general direction of the industrial life of the country along the highway to full employment and full production. Naturally if they are to achieve success they will have to have the enthusiastic support of the country's entire population, and with it the confidence of the people that the goal can be reached. The duties of the new department of veterans' affairs is perhaps more clearly defined. It will deal with pensions, demobilization of the armed forces, medical care, vocational guidance and training, the rehabilitation of the veterans in civilian life and all other matters affecting the welfare of these serving in the army, navy, and air force. It is believed that Ian MacKenzie, the present minister of pensions and national health will be appointed to the head of the department. He seems the obvious choice but there has been no definite word about it as yet. The Progressive Conservative house leader, Gordon Graydon has said that "in a large measure the future of Canada will depend upon how well the department of veterans' affairs handles the needs of those who come back from the war." Certainly it offers a challenge to all Canadians.

In the course of a week or two the National War Labor Board will be considering the request of the railway unions for the establishment of U.S. wage levels in this country. There is no definite indication what course the board will take, although it would seem extremely unlikely that it would agree to a demand which would inevitably have such a disrupting influence on the Canadian economy. It is stated that it would mean an increase in the costs of operation of the railways of $85,000,000 but what is of even more importance is that it would be practically a deathblow to the wage ceiling and the whole fabric of price control. There would be demands for increased prices from all quarters. The farmer might well argue for example what if the Canadian railwaymen get U.S. wages he should get U.S. prices for his product. The whole Canadian economy would be set adrift from its moorings.

Outstanding among the decisions and debates of parliament has been the recorded agreement of this country to take its full share in the work of UNRRA, the international organization which will assist on the relief and the economic restoration of the nations who have been ground under the Nazi heel. The UNRRA will bring its charitable machinery into play as soon as the military authorities have driven the invading troops from the territories. First measures of relief will be carried out by the military; then when order is restored and the security of the areas established, UNRRA will take over.

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

Written specially for the weekly newspapers of Canada

By Jim Greenblatt

Having dealt with the Sixth Victory Loan in last week's articles, wherein farmers, as others, were appealed to for support (and at the same time benefit themselves by laying away a nest egg for the future), it's probably timely to give a brief resume of the recently released Report on Housing and Community Planning by Canada's Committee on Reconstruction as affecting farmers generally. The recommendations are most interesting in view of the fact that the National Housing Act will come before Parliament soon.

The committee recommends the building of 188,000 new farm homes over a twenty-year period at an estimated cost of $282,000,000, with 9,400 being built annually. The committee was moved, it is certain, by the important changes brought about by the war in farm population, which has been decreasing steadily.

Housing, it would appear, is considered a dominant factor in getting people back into agriculture, particularly young people now in the armed forces, who will be making their first start in working life after the war. To get a proper perspective of the situation you must know that at the time of the first census in 1871, over 80 per cent of Canada's population were farmers. By 1941 this had dropped to only 45 per cent. Between August 31, 1939 and January 31, 1943, over 430,000 men and boys left their farms, some into the forces, others into industry.

It is interesting to note, too, a shift in farming is slowly taking place. During the '30's both Ontario and Nova Scotia showed 20 per cent decreases in their farm populations. New Brunswick and Saskatchewan reported 10 per cent fewer farmers; while Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and British Columbia indicated 5 per cent declines. Only in Quebec and Manitoba did the number of farmers increase, and by less than 10 per cent. There have been further losses in the last three years.

Then take abandoned farms, rising in number from 32,800 in 1931 to 52,500 in 1941 (and, of course, higher today) all reflecting the flight from the farm. Farm values over the same period decreased from an average of $7,200 in 1931 to $5,700 in 1941, mainly on land and buildings for there has definitely been an increase in value of implements, machinery and livestock.

The Report makes no forecast as to future growth of Canadian farm population, but does visualise a great increase in mixed farming. The recommendations, based on careful study and analysis, would seem to prove one thing, farming must be made more attractive and housing is one of the prime considerations. In addition the Report recommends besides the homes erection of farm laborers' cottage and community centres, and the donation by the Federal Government of electrical, plumbing, heating and refrigeration equipment to farm housing projects in return for the labor of installation.

Other factors of importance in attracting farmers back to the soil are land settlement schemes, production and price policies designed to keep up farm prices, immigration policy, and the scope of farm amenities program, plus the extension of rural facilities such as electrification, schools, etc.

Notes from the Services: More than 2,000 British army trained in Canada married Canadian girls. The Canadian Women's Army Corps is making an appeal for 5,000 recruits.

With a staff of only 130 airmen, the salvage section of the R.C.A.F. Repair Depot at Scoudville, N.B. in 1943 recovered 430 aircraft valued at $50 million dollars, of which 229 were repaired, returned to service on Canada's east coast. Warning is again issued of the serious housing situation at Halifax.

Figures have been released on patients in Canadian hospitals. From 1939 to 1942 the number of patients in our public hospitals increased by 239,783 or 27 per cent; in mental institutions 3,286 or 6 per cent. In private hospitals the increase was 11,459 or 31% Tuberculosis sanatoria patients were more by 2,572 or 13%. Figures show that average length of stay in public hospitals was 12.2 days, 16.6 days in private, 226 days for tuberculosis sanatoria and five to six years in mental institutions.

There is a tremendous demand for engineers and science graduates for war industries and essential civilian services, as shown by an analysis from the Department of Labour's Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel. In January and February this year the Bureau got more employers' enquiries for technically trained persons than at any time since November, 1942. There are five vacancies for every three available, although 31,050 persons so listed are low engaged in essential work. A large number of the 1944 engineering and science graduates have already been spoken for by Army, Navy and Air Force.

As close as can be reckoned by the responsible department, there should be at least 8,000,000 bushels of apples for fresh consumption in Canada for 1944-45, or about 35 pounds per head of population, against an average of 26 pounds in the two years just before the war. The prospect is given as good for a healthy demand at or close to ceiling prices for best varieties and packs. There were short crops in 1940, 1941, 1942, but the near normal crop now predicted for 1944 is estimated at about 12,885,000 bushels.

Canadian farms showed fine increases in all types of livestock, the official survey of December 1, 1943 showed. Cattle on farms were up by 672,500 head or 7.6 per cent. Saskatchewan had the highest increase, Ontario showing little. There were 353,000 milk cows in the country at show that average increase in sheep, all benefiting in this regard except British Columbia while Saskatchewan with an up of 127.8 per cent was leading. Hogs went sky-high as to figures with a record of 22 per cent, reaching 9,473,000 head, an increase of 1,723,000 over 1942. The population of hens and chickens (57,512,500) was up by 7,731,200 birds. Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia lead with 20 per cent increases.

This and that: Volunteer workers at six hundred local ration boards distributed 11,500,000 new ration books. Savings deposits in our chartered bank touched a new all-time high end of last February with $2,123,821,000 as against $1,795,469,000 same period year ago. Things are holding up; 80,000 pairs of police-type suspenders are being released from military stores for civilian use; 28,000 of these will go back to be cut down to the narrower size.

As an extension of the nationwide checkup on all civilian men of military age subject to call-up in future all male applicants for unemployment insurance benefit will have to present proof they have complied with mobilization regulations. Birth or marriage certificate would be considered proof.

Recently compiled figures indicate that retail price of beef in the past year contributed half a point to the total increase of two two points in the cost of living index. That is from Feb. 1943 to Feb. 1944.

This Year Push The Pasture

By J. Buchanan, Director of Extension, O.A.C.

Here's thought that might pay dividends to every Ontario farmer. Pasturing is the most efficient and the most economical method of feeding farm animals for meat or milk production.

Why? Well, here are four good reasons—1st, because the feed is well balanced and highly nutritious; 2nd, because animals get it when it is fresh and at its best both in palatability and in nutritive value; 3rd, because there's no labour cost for harvesting and feeding; and finally, because there's little or no waste of feed.

It pays to push the pastures, especially when labour is scarce and when meat and milk are in demand. This year meat and milk products are urgently needed, prices are reasonably good, and labour certainly is scarce. So this is the year to push the pastures and right now is the time to get ready for the push.

How do you go about pushing? Well, top dressing with either manure or commercial fertilizer will help to thicken the pasture and promote vigorous growth. On good land no other crop will give better returns for fertilizer used. This year the government is helping to pay for some of the most needed fertilizers. If you're not sure how the fertilizer subvention works your Agricultural Representative or your fertilizer dealer can tell you. But be sure to get your fertilizer early—the supply may run out.

Everybody's busy making plans for the coming season, and nobody will go far wrong to figure pastures in with the general plan. Actually they are your best bet. Push the pastures and produce the food that will help win the war. Good farming means good feeding and in these times good feeding means good fighting. Then don't forget there's another year coming when you will still need good pastures. Very likely you will be seeding down a field or two this year. If you are, get good seed of the most suitable grasses and clovers and have the land well built up with manure in advance, or apply fertilizer at time of seeding. Get your seed and fertilizer as soon as possible. We've lost much in this war by not being ready. Let's not be caught napping any younger—let Agriculture show the way. Farming is producing food, and food is vital to victory. Meat and milk products are urgently needed. Pasture is paramount in meat and milk production so this year push the pastures.

ADDRESSES ON THE MOVE

This Mail has PRIORITY

WHEN a man is wounded in action or seriously ill, he is rushed through field and base hospitals with all possible speed, to the place where most effective treatment can be given. Because of this rapid movement, his mail may not "catch up" for some time, yet, if ever he longed for a letter from home, it is at such a time.

To offset possible delays, a new "Short-Cur" mail service has been put into effect. A Priority Casualty Card is filled in and rushed by Air Mail to his friends or relatives with instructions to add the words "In Hospital" to the unit address they usually use.

Letters mailed from Canada bearing the words "In Hospital" are routed direct to the records office in the United Kingdom or the Central Mediterranean Force, as the case may be. They are given preference in transport, whether sent by Air Mail or regular mail. Thus they will reach the addressee faster than ever before.

It is inevitable that in tracing men who have been moved, or wounded, some delays occur. But you can rest assured everything that can mean speedier deliveries of letters to your men is being well and thoroughly done—and will be done.

When you get a Priority Casualty Card be sure the words "In Hospital" are added to the regular unit address when writing overseas.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

HYDRO HOME ECONOMIST

Hello Homemakers! The sewing machines are going to hum this month. Some people will be making new clothes and some will be remodeling old ones, so a few hints on timesavers for the family dressmaker may be in order.

Take ripping out side seams, to make a little larger. You baste the edges together at the limited edge you can sew along; turn right side out and cut the lower thread of the seam with a sharp razor blade.

Get a pair of scissors sharpened, and then hide them from the family. Scissors get dull very quickly if they are used to cut paper, string or anything that comes along, then you cannot cut fabrics with long even lines that make neat seams.

Sewing is an agreeable job. A little time and patience will produce worthwhile results. Turn the frayed collar of your husband's white shirt and listen to his praise.

Take a Tip:

1. Instead of having the recipes you clip loose in a drawer, keep them pasted in a loose-leaf notebook. Hang it by a shirt hanger, at eye level. You will be able to find what you want and the pages will stay clean.

2. A coating of aluminum paint on the inside of the garbage pail prevents rust and makes the pail easier to clean.

Bran Blueberry Muffins

2 tblspn shortening, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup cereal bran, 3-4 cup milk, 1 cup sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup blueberries (drained).

Cream the shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg and beat well. Stir in bran and milk. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture with the berries and stir only until the flour is mixed. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in electric oven 400° for about 30 minutes.

Cup Cakes

2 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening.

1 cup sugar, 1 egg, unbeaten, 1 cup homemade range peel, 3-4 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift the flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream the butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add flour alternately with the milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in a greased cup-cake or muffin pans in moderate oven 375° for 18 to 20 minutes or until done. Yield; 2 dozen cup cakes.

Pumpkin Chiffon Tarts

1 1-4 cups canned pumpkin, 1-2 cup milk, 1-3 cup sugar, 3 egg yolks, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cook in double boiler like custard and add 1 tablespoon gelatine dissolved in 1-4 cup cold water. When cool, fold in whites of three eggs beaten stiff and 1-3 cup sugar. Put in baked tart shells and place in refrigerator.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. J. asks: Why does home made mayonnaise separate even though I keep it in the refrigerator? Answer: The manufacturers have better mixing equipment for large quantities of material. It may look curdled but a whirl with the beater will make a smooth emulsion. It is not necessary to keep mayonnaise in a cold place.

Mrs. B. Mc suggests. Grated raw yellow turnips is delicious in a vegetable salad. Combine it with chopped

Protect Clothing From Moths

The problem of protecting winter clothing from moths during summer storage entails more care than when summer clothing is put away for the winter, because in warm weather insects are more numerous. At the same time, insects may be quite active in winter in heated buildings. There are two main points to be observed in the protection of household articles subject to damage by moths. The articles to be stored should be thoroughly clean, and the receptacle in which they are placed should not have the slightest hole or crack through which a moth might enter. If there be such a means of entrance, the trunk, box, drawer, bag or whatever receptacle is used, is not moth-proof.

Washable articles before being stowed away should be washed. Clothing, blankets, and such-like articles, should be thoroughly brushed. Preferably, where possible, they should be sent to the dry cleaners before being placed in storage. To reduce the chance of infestation, moth balls or other repellent may be used. In trunks or boxes they may be scattered about, but a much tidier way is to obtain pin-up medallion repellents which may be bought at most stores. They may be pinned up in cupboards, and on the inside of the lids of trunks and boxes. The fumes from these chemicals are deadly to insects, and being heavier than air they penetrate to the bottom of the receptacle. Particularly with bags, it is easy to suspend the repellent near the top of the bag above the hanger and away from the clothes. Where naphthalene flakes can be obtained, an effective method is to enclose an ounce or two in a home-made cheese cloth bag and suspend it from the top. Moth balls may be used in the same way.

Piano felting may be guarded by suspending the repellent in a cheese cloth bag inside the piano, and keeping the piano closed when not in use. Further information about the protection of articles in the home will be found in Publication 637 (Circular 137) "Control of Some Common Species of Household Insects," obtainable free by writing to Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

THE ADDRESSES

Mrs. D. MacInnes, Mr. Kenneth MacInnes, Mr. and Mrs. Peter MacInnes and Children.

Dear Friends:— Once again the people of this vicinity meet to bid farewell to a family leaving our midst. And, once again, the destination is Cornwall. It almost seems as though there must be some kind of magnet there, drawing our people towards that city. If so, it certainly magnetizes good citizens, and thereby makes Cornwall that much richer and leaves us that much poorer.

We shall miss you Your home was ever one that was open to all and your generosity and help were certainly appreciated at all times.

You, Mrs. McInnes, Senior, have always shown an unfailing spirit of kindness and we know that it will gain you many new friends in Cornwall. After your days of hard work on the farm, we hope that you will enjoy your new home.

You, Mr. Kenneth, who have spent all your days on this farm, may probably feel that you will be lost, in Cornwall, but there will be much there, to take up your time and attention.

You Peter and Greta, have seen fit to give up the farm. We hope that there, you will have good health. We feel, that you believe in the old saying, "Never venture, never win." We heartily agree with you and, with such a spirit, success is sure to be yours. Many a time you have been awakened from a sound sleep by an urgent knock at the door, and then, on hurrying downstairs have been greeted with such a speech as this, "My car is in the ditch down at the corner! Can I get help?" or again, "Car trouble! May I use your phone?" No matter what the request, your help was always willingly given. I am sure that many of us would have wished the house miles from the road, if we were awakened that way in the middle of the night. On many a summer evening when the day's work was done and we sat outdoors, we would hear the sound of the pipes and someone would remark, "Listen! Peter Donald is playing the pipes." We have all enjoyed your music and shall miss the good Scotch tunes. Our social gatherings will not seem complete when Peter and Greta are absent.

We ask you to accept this gift, and hope that whatever way you use it, it may serve as a reminder that Baltic's Corners with surrounding sections, is still on the map. Your faithful Plymouth, we are sure, would never fail if coming out this way, and if anything happened to it while here the present owner of your "jeep" tractor, would, we think, be quite willing to lend it to you. We hope to see you very often. In closing we can just say:— Good health, good luck, happy hours, May these come to you all; And may God's blessing be with you Whatever may befall. Signed on behalf of your neighbors.

Dear Jean:— We are very sorry that you are leaving our school and we shall miss you very much.

We hope that you will like your new school and playmates. Perhaps you won't see any good old scraps at recess the way you sometimes did here.

We want you to have these little gifts to show you that we will remember you, and, so that you won't forget us. In the locket there is a place for someone's picture. Would you like us to send you Kenzie's or Freddie's?

We hope that you will like Cornwall but also hope that you will often come back here to see us. Your Schoolmates of Baltic's Corner.

Rory and Kenny McLellan went to St Anne de Bellevue Saturday to see Pte. Amedee Ranger who is a patient in the Military Hospital there. They reported that he is coming along fine. We think veal should be rationed. People would like it be thus; would eat more; consequently the price of calves might go up.

PIGS BY THE INSTALLMENT PLAN
Mr E. Lalonde who works on the section here and also operates a farm at St. Justine tells us that one cold morning some time ago before going to work he entered the pig pen to find 7 young pigs all dead due to the cold, but on returning the same evening he found 11 more thriving pigs to take their place which made a total of 18 from the one litter.

To-morrow is often the busiest day of the week.

New Star Is Born In M-G-M Film

A tender and human comedy, full of laughter and just a few tears plays Sunday Mid. and Monday at the Garry Theatre. The film is M-G. M's "Lost Angel," starring Moppet Margaret O'Brien, the wonder child who will forever be remembered by moviegoers for her poignant portrayal of the little role in "Journey for Margaret."

This time Margaret stars in a comedy about a child who is raised as a prodigy by a group of professors and thinks she is happy until an irresponsible reporter, played by James Craig enters her tiny sphere and captures her imagination with a promise to show her magic. The result is an evening's fun for all

LET US REMIND YOU

The question is often asked of us if we do certain kinds of printing.

THIS is due perhaps to the fact that printing orders are unlike goods sold from the shelf. Practically every piece of printing is different. Each job of printing is manufactured for each individual order. Good printing takes a little time to produce, and that is why it is often necessary for The Glengarry News to suggest a day or two longer for the "curing" of the finer lines of printing.

But The Glengarry News is equipped to rush orders in record time.

Let us remind you of some of our lines which we produce promptly and cheaply:—

- LETTERHEADS
- ENVELOPES
- STATEMENTS
- BILLHEADS
- LEDGER SHEETS and DUPLICATES
- PRIVATE CHEQUES
- CIRCULARS, TAGS
- CARDS, TICKETS

Importance Of Test Seed Grain

The importance of test seed grain for germination prior to planting is stressed in a statement issued by J. D. McLeod, Director of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. Seeds are tested for germination to determine their ability to develop into normal plants under favourable conditions.

If available, seed of a recommended variety, of good colour, clean, well graded and treated for disease, should always be sown. If, however, such seed is not available, the advisability of sowing homegrown grains lacking the desired colour and weight should be investigated. Dark colour or light weight is not always an indication of poor germination. Therefore it is advisable that home grown grain to be used for seeding, be tested for germination. The test, which is a simple one, can be conducted right on the farm and should be started immediately in order that seed may be purchased, if required.

Cereal crops may be tested in sand or loamy soil. Any type of container with drainage holes in the bottom will be suitable. Fifty to 100 seeds may be sown and the soil kept moist at all times, but never so wet that a film of moisture would form around the seeds.

If the test is being made during cold weather, place the containers where the temperature will not fall below 40 at night and will be 65' to 70' by day. Most seeds germinate well at ordinary house temperatures. Keep containers away from stoves and do not place on window sills at night.

Cereals should be tested for about ten days. Normal healthy sprouts, however, should be counted and removed after six days to allow the remaining seeds to develop. After ten days the percentage of germination may be figured by multiplying the total number of normal healthy sprouts by 100 and dividing by the number of seeds planted. If 80% of the seeds germinate, the bulk lot will make satisfactory seed. If the germination is between 70 and 80% the rate of seeding should be increased slightly to make provision for seed of poor quality. If the rate of germination is less than 70% the bulk should not be used for seeding purposes.

Badly sprouted, musty heated grain, or grain of an unknown variety should not be used for seeding purposes under any circumstances.

Building A World That Works

High up on a pine-clad ridge of the lower Himalayas lies the historic city of Simla, the summer capital of India. There for the duration the Burma government-in-exile has its headquarters. Amidst this snow-capped grandeur meet the political leaders of the vast sub-continent which forms such a vital link in the United Nations' world front. Just now with the Japanese army forcing its foot across the Burma frontier into India, it is more than ever important that these men match the mountains with the coolness and far-sightedness of their decisions. Otherwise the attempted Jap invasion threatens an even greater danger—that propagandists will be able to use it to stir up further internal disunity.

Simla in recent weeks has been the scene of a minorities settlements that sets a pattern for statesmen tackling problems of conflicting groups anywhere in the world. Recently there a delegation representing on of the minority groups in Burma arrived to present to the Government a series of demands. In Burma, as you may know besides the British and Burmans there are a number of minorities—Indians, Anglo-Burmans, Karens, Shans, Kachins, etc. They differ in colour, language, creeds and customs.

The five delegates were sent to press the claims for their particular section of the population for special guarantees in the post-war reconstruction of Burma now being planned in Simla. They demanded protection of their religious rights—especially as regards teaching of religion in the government schools. They asked assurances about the use of their own language in classrooms rather than compelling them to accept another language or culture as dominant. They wanted legal safeguards for their own customs and social practices.

The night before the conference convened, the leader of the minority delegation sought the advice of George West, Bishop of Rangoon, who less than a year ago addressed a group of Members of Parliament in Ottawa on the work of Moral Re-Armament in Burma. Outlining his program of demands, the minority leader said: "We want you to back us up in these things to-morrow. The Bishop looked out the window at the gently falling snowflakes and then turned to his visitor: "How about thinking in terms of what your group can give to the country, rather than what you can get?" he asked simply.

When Bishop West arrived to preside at the conference next day he outlined for the Burmese, British and minority representatives the same ideas he had expressed in his hotel room the previous night. It had telling effect. Within twenty-four hours the Burmese leader and the minority leader had changed their attitude about each other, each admitting the other was "not the hard nut he used to be."

Discussion over details continued for the next four days. Meanwhile the members of the minority delegation who were hopelessly divided, forged among themselves a unity of purpose and policy. They agreed to make no demands. The Government, bowled over by this turn-about-face, decided to give everything the minority group had first wanted. On the final day the official communique was issued:

"The principal result of the conference was a declaration by the minority members that their community considers itself to be a people of Burma and desires to continue as such. As a token of their trust in the good faith of the Burmese people and their desire for a closer association with them, these members have agreed unanimously to recommend to the members of their community the abandonment of all claims to special privileges."

"The Burmese members of the conference have in their turn given assurances that the Burmese would reciprocate this spirit of generosity and trust, and that they foresee no difficulty in making satisfactory provisions to preserve to the minority community freedom to worship and to teach its own religion, freedom to continue its own habits and customs, and freedom and facilities to maintain its home language."

The settling of a minorities problem in that spirit is something new in the history of diplomacy. It is a blueprint for the Balkans, for Central Europe, for conflicting factions in this country. It is test tube evidence of how to build a world that works.

CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are further away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly... less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

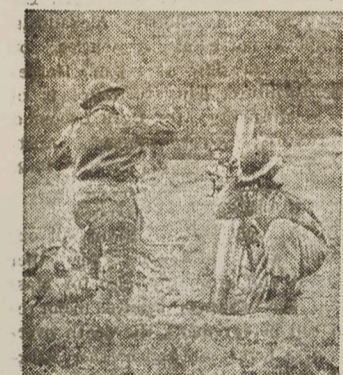

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

Sends Telegram to 94,000 Workers

A telegram addressed to 94,000 railway workers has been sent over the wires from the office of the Canadian National Telegraphs in Montreal. It was from R. C. Vaughan, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways, and was addressed to all employees of the National System in Canada, asking their complete co-operation in putting victory first so that the Sixth Victory Loan will be successful. This message was carried through a special relay by which the company's teleprinters were linked by relay from coast to coast to receive the president's telegram despatched from Montreal. The employees of the National System and affiliated companies have gone over the top in each of the five previous Victory Loans and in the present campaign they are out to surpass their previous high record of $8,699,600 subscribed in the Fifth Loan.

The photograph shows Mr. Vaughan in the main office of the Canadian National Telegraphs watching his message take form under the deft and sure touch of Miss Beatrice Tilley, one of the most expert of the company's automatic telegraph operators.

Twenty-Four Hours Leave

CHAPTER XI

When John, overhearing the girls talking, had asked: "What's the indignation meeting all about?" Cherry told him what had happened. He'd looked at her sympathetically. "Well, the best thing you can do is to go right off at this moment and get some sleep." But Cherry had other plans. Somehow or other she had to get to London and back before going on duty again.

John was free for the next few hours and at her service. When she'd protested, he'd said reproachfully, "What about our pact, Cherry-Lindon?"

Cherry said now, "This is really terribly sweet of you, John. I can't tell you how I appreciate it."

"Nonsense. I'm enjoying it. It's some little time since I've seen you."

"I know."

"How are things going?"

"I'm touching wood all the time, but I have an idea they're going to come right for me. That's why I'm so anxious to go to London today."

"I see. Well, thank goodness I am able to take you. What happens when we get there? Do I make myself scarce?"

Cherry smiled. "I'm not seeing Simon if that's what you mean. He's still in Scotland. But could you perhaps drop me somewhere and pick me up again an hour later?"

"That's all right with me. Let's meet at the Mayfair for tea."

He dropped her at Piccadilly Circus where she asked a policeman to direct her to Blatton street. "Straight up Regent Street and then second on the right. First on the left after that. You can't miss it. Old Adolf didn't when he was round this way last May. A nice mess he made of it."

Cherry's thanks were fleeting. She wanted to get there quickly, quickly. If only this ring she'd found was the one mentioned in that bill, the one that irrefutable proof that it had been de-

She must have done so by mistake. No doubt the copy had been so expert that even she had sometimes mistaken it for the original.

She walked slowly toward the Mayfair to meet John. She didn't feel in the least like being bright and gay and having tea and chatter. But John would be expecting her to be top-of-the-world. He knew that she had been hoping to find out something that would mean that Simon and she would be reconciled.

She found John waiting for her at the hotel. He wanted to know how things had turned out but she didn't want to talk about it. "It'll be all right in the end, John," she said with a confidence she was far from feeling.

He saw tears in her eyes and her lips trembling. "You wouldn't care to tell me?"

"I can't, John."

"A trouble shared . . ."

"I can't share this one."

"All right, my pet. Come on, let's find a table."

But they didn't stay very long. John said he had her sleep on his conscience. He also wanted to snatch a nap himself. He got her back to the aeroplane a little after six. "Good night," he said. "Pleasant dreams. Maybe I'll be speaking to you later."

"Maybe." She laid a hand on his arm. "Be careful, John, won't you?"

"You bet."

Sometimes she did speak to him. The pilots in the planes were in touch with the Operations room. She dreaded going on duty that evening—she didn't quite know why. Perhaps it was because she'd been so disappointed. None of the girls seemed in her usual form. All were tired and irritable.

They showed their passes and went through the doors that led toward the holy of holies, wondering what sort of a night lay ahead of them, whether much would be doing. Then they went into the Ops. room. Within an hour all their personal troubles were forgotten. They were keyed up and anxious. Things were happening and they weren't too healthy for their men up in the skies. Cherry's face was white and set. Bob Kennedy was in danger, and John, too. Ah new. Bob was through the worst. He was being ordered to return. But John . . .

Sun Operates to Give Life to Dead Plants

Blacked-out overseas radio and stuttering telegraph and teletype machines recently gave another demonstration of the long arm of the sun reaching across 93 million miles of space into man's everyday affairs. "Sun spots" were credited with the disturbances.

Such dramatic demonstrations of the sun's power come only now and then, sometimes unseen, sometimes along with the flashing colored lights of the aurora. But day in and day out, as everyone knows but often forgets, the sun has completely dominated the earth and its life for some hundreds of millions of years.

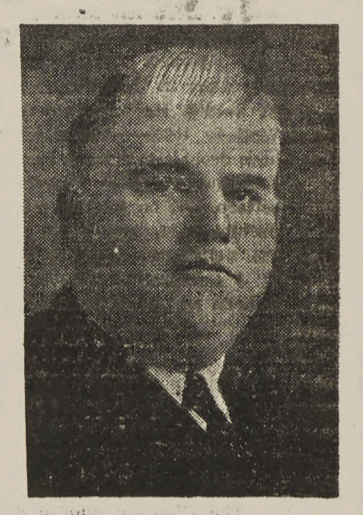

It is the earth's lighting plant, its heating system, and its power source. It dishes up all weather. With its gravitational pull—as real as if it depended on gigantic steel cables—the sun holds the earth captive and swings it along its oval path, clocking off the years.

Most vital, and at the same time one of the most mysterious effects of the distant sun on the earth is the process by which sunlight is transformed into food. This is known as photosynthesis: "light-put-together." When sunlight shines on the green coloring matter in plant leaves and in the tiny floating algae of the sea it operates in some magic way to turn "dead" water and other chemical compounds into "living" food. Since all animals live on plants or on other plant-sustained animals, sunlight is literally manna from heaven which feeds all living things.

Cherry turned away with a heavy heart. Disappointment weighed her down. Dully she realized that there was still something she could do. She went into a jeweler's in Regent Street. "I want to know if this is a good ring, if these stones are real or if it is a copy?"

It didn't take the man long to make up his mind. "That's a very valuable ring, Miss. It's certainly not a copy."

"Thank you."

Now she was out in the street again. This then was, Denise's engagement ring. But one of the rings was a copy and if only it had been this one. But she didn't know. She was really still where she was. She knew nothing definite. If only the one she had with her now had been the duplicate. Funny that Denise had gone off and left it behind.

Cherry came out of a daze as, later, she was at last leaving the Ops. room. She heard two officers talking. "Bad luck about old Harrap," one of them was saying.

"Bad luck about old Harrap. Oh, John John, why did you do it? You were crazy. You were warned . . ."

"He'll probably get a posthumous V.C. for that," said the second officer.

"Mind you, it may not necessarily be posthumous. There's a chance he'll turn up wet."

"Think so?"

"Well I'll admit he'll have to be lucky."

She thought of their conversation as they'd driven to town. "I may get my opportunity, but it's got to be something big. A couple of Messerschmitts or an odd Dornier or so won't mean a thing to me . . ." Had that been in his mind when he'd been up there tonight?

Valerie was at her side. She tucked her arm through hers. "How I hate this war," she said grimly.

"I know. We all do. It seems to get worse and worse."

None of them slept during the remainder of the night that was left to them. There were heavy eyes and many yawns when they gradually awoke late the following morning. They went over to the cookhouse for breakfast without any enthusiasm. No one felt like eating or talking. John Harrap wasn't the only plane that had failed to return from the night's operations. There were five missing in all. "It's a lot for one station," said Stafford grimly.

The little new Waaf paused at Cherry's elbow before she went to her own place at the table. "Here's a letter for you. It was in the rack. Didn't you notice it?"

Cherry hadn't even looked for any letters. She had schooled herself to refrain these days, the disappointment was so acute when there was no word from Simon. But here was an envelope in his handwriting. She tore it open with trembling fingers, realizing in a flash that the postmark was once again London. It was brief, as were all his letters since things had gone wrong between them. But it did at least suggest a meeting. "I'm back again, Cherry, I returned yesterday. When do you next get leave? Don't you think we should meet and talk things over together again?"

Oh, yes, she did, she did. Only she didn't know quite what she could say to him, or he to her, that would make things any better. She might,

Army's Smoke Generator Throws Protecting Screen

The army's new smoke generator proved a lifesaver in the invasion of Sicily, according to a statement by Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, chief of the army chemical warfare service.

"Smoke is our greatest protective weapon," General Porter said. "It is the greatest lifesaver of our troops and was responsible for the small number of casualties in Sicily where it was used."

This is the second time that commendation has been given by the army to the smoke generator. When the American forces landed in North Africa, they were protected by a pall of dense white smoke that poured out of these wheeled machines, completely concealing their movements, yet of no discomfort to the troops.

In the early days of the war the chemical warfare service called on the national defense research committee for a smoke generator. It was not long before a smoke box was developed. Then a mobile unit was built. It was the successful tests of this unit in the Schorarie valley that led the army to adopting it as an essential protective machine for its troops.

Cricket Seek Indoors

As the cool nights of early September warn him of the approach of winter, the cricket leaves the Victory garden and begins to look for more protected quarters. For a while he may be satisfied with such shelter as your garden compost heap provides, but when crickets are very numerous, as they are this year, many often find their way into the house.

Both the common black field crickets and the gray European house cricket are harmful household pests. The gray cricket is not as common as the black cricket, being limited out-of-doors to garbage dumps. They differ somewhat in their general eating habits, but both will eat holes in woollens and linens as well as in starched articles. In addition, their incessant chirping at night soon becomes a distracting nuisance. Check your cellar doors and windows for possible points of entry.

Develop Petroleum

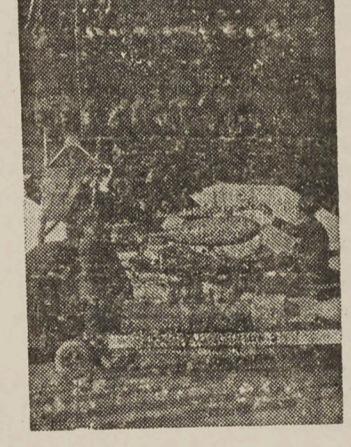

British interests have taken active part in developments since 1859 that have brought world petroleum production to two billion barrels annually. Refineries and ports have been built on the banks of the Thames and the Bristol Channel to receive crude oil from the United States, Venezuela, Trinidad, Iran, Iraq, Bahrain, Burma and the Netherlands Indies. Despite all these importations, oil production from shales has been continued and encouraged in Scotland. When shales yielding 80 gallons of oil to the ton could be found, distillation was profitable. Since 1923, however, production has been continued by aid of government subsidies from shales yielding as little as 20 gallons to a ton.

Fowl Paralysis

Long a scourge of laying flocks and the costliest of poultry diseases, fowl paralysis is indicated by a gray eye with an irregular pupil. That is, when a bird is affected with this form of disease, the iris or colored part of a normal eye is gray and the pupil is irregular in outline instead of being evenly oval or well rounded. In addition, the eye may be "fishy" or bulging.

Birds showing this eye condition should be removed from the flock. Lame birds that show no foot injuries to account for the lameness should be removed, too, as suspected carriers of fowl paralysis. Diseased birds may lay for a while, but they eventually lose weight and go out of production. If left in the flock, they endanger other birds.

"I'M MOVING UP FRONT NOW"

...Are you with me?"

"The going's getting tougher. It's raining again! The mud is like gumbo! Over on the other side of the hill, the enemy is shelling us! In a few hours we attack. I've got to go on, now! My job's up ahead!"

Your job lies ahead too; just as clearly defined as this Canadian soldier's at the battlefield. Are you backing him? : : : to the limit? You're not giving up anything when you buy Victory Bonds. All you are asked to do is lend, not give; invest not donate! Surely the buying of extra Bonds is no hardship compared to the sacrifice of the lad who is "moving up front" today.
