

Kenyon Man's Condition Is Grave After Being Struck By Car

Joseph Bellefeuille, 40, of Fourth Kenyon In Hospital With Skull Fracture And Other Injuries As Result Of Accident

The condition of Joseph Bellefeuille was reported grave, yesterday, at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, where he was rushed early Tuesday evening, after being struck by a car while walking on Highway 34 just north of the C.N.R. tracks, Alexandria. A resident of the Fourth Kenyon, the 40-year-old man suffered a double fracture of the skull, a compound fracture of the right leg and a fractured right arm.

Provincial Constable Joseph McBain, who investigated the accident, reported that Bellefeuille was walking north on Highway 34 shortly after 5 p.m. Tuesday. At a point about 300 yards north of the track he was struck by a southbound car driven by Dan Fisher of Alexandria. In a statement to police, Mr. Fisher declared the lights on his automobile failed as he was approaching town and he pulled to the side of the road with the intention of stopping to fix his lights. He said he was travelling about 12 miles per hour when Bellefeuille was struck by the right front fender and headlight of the car.

The victim was rushed to the office of Dr. G. L. Latour where he was given emergency treatment before being conveyed to Hotel Dieu Hospital at Cornwall.

Born in Antigonish County, N.S., Brig. MacGillivray was educated at St. Francis Xavier University and the Urban university in Rome. Ordained in 1915, he was almost immediately posted overseas in the chaplain services of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, later serving with the 26th Battalion and the Army of Occupation. He won the Military Cross for gallantry during the battle of Amiens, August 8, 1918.

Subsequently he assumed duties in various Nova Scotia parishes and at the outbreak of war in 1939 was appointed district chaplain at Halifax.

He went overseas with the 3rd Division in 1941 and later served at Headquarters 2nd Canadian Corps. He was recalled to Canada in 1943 to serve as assistant principal chaplain and has been principal chaplain at Defence Headquarters since August 1944.

Curling Club Sets For Season

Harold Stimson was re-elected President of the Alexandria Curling Club at the Annual meeting, held Wednesday night in the Agricultural Office. Many of the officers were returned and extensive plans were made for what promises to be a very successful season.

The banquet which is a season opener each year is to be held at Shirley's Restaurant next Wednesday evening. Discussion as to the season's play resulted in a decision to have an early membership drive and line up links which will play together in local competitions throughout the season.

There was considerable discussion as to annual fees and it was finally decided by vote that Associate and first-year members would pay $5.00; all others $10.00.

An improvement to the club house is in prospect as a result of the offer by a curler to donate a small water furnace for heating purposes. Others were quick to offer donations of materials needed for its installation and the Property Committee will proceed with the work at once.

The officers are as follows:

Hon. President—Most Rev. Rosario Brodeur, D. D.

Hon. Vice-Pres.—J. E. U. Rouleau. President—Harold Stimson.

Vice President—Leo Lejole.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. P. Gallant.

Chairman of committees—Ice—R. G. Bennett; Match—Donald A. Macdonald, K.C.; Entertainment, W. J. Periard; Property—Jos. Filion.

This bit of poetic witicism was presented to Grade 12 and 13 in our English literature classes by Miss Callaghan on Tuesday morning. The poem proved to be almost prophetic because later that same morning Mr. Stringer showed us a film, entitled "Molecular Theory of Matter."

On that same morning we assembled in Grade 9 at ten o'clock to hear a radio broadcast by the Department of Education. The first half of the programme was dedicated to a talk on the origin and importance of the English Dictionary. The latter half was given over to the singing of French folk songs.

Seek Highway To Montreal

Direct Route From Alexandria Wanted—Bus Line Projected

Representatives of Lochiel township and Alexandria met at Ste Justine, Que., last Saturday, with officials of Ste. Justine and St. Clet, to discuss the question of a direct highway route to Montreal from Alexandria, via Glen Robertson, Ste. Justine and St. Clet. The proposed route would follow the present road which joins Highway 17 northeast of Vaudreuil, and would open up an area not now served by first class highways.

It was decided to send a joint resolution to the Provincial Government of Ontario and Quebec urging consideration of the project.

Glengarryans attending the meeting included Donald A. Macdonald, K.C., and E. A. MacGillivray, M.P.P. Alex andria; Osie Villeneuve, Maxville; G. Chisholm, D. B. Macdonald, Altonic Menard, Adelard Menard, Florimond Legault, Gordon McGillivray, Thos Hay and Lauriat Decoste, all of Lochiel township.

Bus Line To Montreal

Tying in remarkably well with the new highway project, a representative of Victory Bus Lines, who operate 21 bus routes in the Province of Quebec, was in Alexandria, Monday, to discuss a projected bus service between Montreal and Alexandria. It would follow the direct route with stops at Alexandria, Glen Robertson, Ste. Justine, St. Marthe and Vaudreuil.

The bus line representative met with Donald A. Macdonald, K.C. chairman of the Board of Trade and representations will be made to Toronto for the required permit.

Commencement At Maryvale Abbey

The annual Commencement Exercises of Maryvale Abbey, Glen Nevis were held at 3 p.m. on Sunday, November 11, the parents and friends of the graduates assembling in the chapel of Maryvale Abbey for Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Following this, all repaired to St. Margaret's Hall for the graduation exercises, and short programme. The auditorium, decorated with streamers of blue and white, the school colours, with evergreen and late autumn flowers, formed a lovely background for the graduates in their white floor-length dresses. Ronald Macdonald as chairman, welcomed the guests. The programme consisted of songs by the students' choir, "Danny Danny Dando" and "There are Such things," violin selections by Mr. Neil Macdonald; a dance by Miss Rosemary MacNeil and Miss Patricia MacNeil; a vocal solo "Smilin' Thru," by Miss N. Macdonell, solo by Miss M. Morris, Miss Ida Morris, and Mr. John Morris and a piano selection by Miss K. McCarthy.

Following the presentation of prizes and of diplomas by Reverend J. A. Wylie, P.P., the waledictory was spoken by Miss Ruth Ann Rashotte, now a student at St. Joseph's College, Toronto. Miss Muriel Black delivered the address to Reverend Sister Mary Electa, guest of honour at the graduation, expressing gratitude for the years of devotion and capable service which Sister had given at Maryvale. Miss Margaret O'Shea presented Sister with a gift on behalf of the parents of the students and ex-students.

Reverend Father Wylie in his address outlined the duties of a good citizen and urged the graduates to live always as fervent Catholics and loyal Canadians.

At the conclusion of the programme, the ladies of the Catholic Women's League, under the presidency of Miss Christine MacDonald, were hostesses at a tea in honour of the graduates. Mrs. A. J. Macdonell and Mrs. Donald Macdonald presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. W. J. O'Sea, Mrs. Angus Kennedy, Mrs. James A. Macdonell and Mrs. John Macdonald. During the course of the tea, Miss Cecilia Maloney of Belleville, delighted the audience with a reading, "Registration Day."

Prizes donated by Right Reverend D. R. Macdonald, D.P. for highest standing in Christian Doctrine and English, and for highest aggregate in Junior Matriculation, were won by Miss Elaine MacDonald, Miss Ruth Ann Rashotte, and Miss Margaret O'Shea, respectively.

Hog Raisers May Register Till 27th

Many Attended Meeting Friday—One To Be Held At Apple Hill

More than 150 hog producers attended the meeting held in Alexander Hall, Alexandria, Thursday, November 15th, to hear the new Proposed Hog Marketing Scheme explained. The meeting, under the chairmanship of Gordon McGillivray, Lochiel, was very interesting. W. J. Major, Lancaster, and H. S. Marjorison, Apple Hill, presented the Scheme on behalf of the Ontario Hog Producers Association. A number of questions were asked, and quite a lively discussion took place. Among those figuring prominently in the discussions were D. D. McKinnon, Dunvegan and W. R. MacLeod, MacCrimmon and Francis McPhee, Apple Hill.

Osie Villeneuve of Maxville, gave a very interesting explanation of the present price structure in which hogs are marketed and answered many questions with respect to hog marketing at the present time.

R. G. Bennett, local Agricultural Representative, who is acting as Registrar for the Hog Producers and Deputy Returning Officer for the Hog Marketing Scheme in this district, explained the system of voting and stated that registrations would be received up until November 24th. This time has been extended since to November 27th, as producers are allowed 10 days after the time of the meeting excluding Sundays, which would make the date November 27th. Ballots will be received up until December 8th. Farmers may register in writing or in person at the local Department of Agriculture in Alexandria.

Meeting At Apple Hill Monday

Farmers in the Apple Hill district are advised that a special meeting with relation to the proposed hog marketing scheme will be held in Dancause Hall, Apple Hill, Monday evening, November 26th.

This meeting is being held so that a more comprehensive survey of the hog producers in this area may be had. Farmers in that district are urged to be present at this meeting and to acquaint themselves with the proposed hog marketing scheme. A number of hog producers in this area were of the feeling that there were still a number of farmers who had not registered in this hog producers' scheme nor acquainted themselves with it. There will be special speakers present at this meeting to explain the proposed marketing scheme and also some of the benefits which may accrue under such a scheme.

R. G. Bennett, local Agricultural Representative, who is acting as Registrar for the hog producers and also Deputy Returning Officer for the voting on this scheme, will be present to register farmers in the district who have not already done so. Copies of the proposed scheme will be available to the producers. Any farmers who wish to vote after the meeting may do so or may vote at any time up until December 8th. Every farmer in the district is urged to be present at this meeting.

Following this, all repaired to St. Margaret's Hall for the graduation exercises, and short programme. The auditorium, decorated with streamers of blue and white, the school colours, with evergreen and late autumn flowers, formed a lovely background for the graduates in their white floor-length dresses. Rory Chisholm Laid To Rest

To the strains of the pibroch playing "Lochaber No More," and "At Home," one of Glengarry's oldest, remaining pioneers, Mr. Roderick Chisholm was laid to rest at Vankleek Hill Thursday, November 15th.

This widely known and outstanding Glengarry personality was known to his many friends as "Rory." He was a great historian who knew the genealogy of the early Glengarry families. His retentive memory made of him an authority on the background and development of Glengarry county by those early Highlanders. He died at his home in Vankleek Hill, Monday, November 12th, in his 92nd year, and to the end retained his memory and Celtic sense of humour. All those who came within his sphere of influence were inspired by his fortitude and courage during nine years of complete blindness.

Many of the railroads of Canada were forged through virgin forest by the energy of Rory Chisholm and many of his Glengarry compatriots. He spent a number of years in Michigan and Wisconsin, where he met and married Mary Burke who predeceased him in June 1944.

Mr. Chisholm is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. F. Ryan, at home; Mrs. G. E. W. Cook, Dawson College, St. Johns, Que.; and one son John J. of Toronto. There are three grandchildren; Mrs. Robert Coulthart, Mr. Archibald J. Chisholm Hamilton and Mr. Roderick D. Hamilton, all of Edinburgh, Scotland. Two sisters survive: Mrs. J. R. MacLaurin, Toronto, and Mrs. Robert Campbell, Denver, Colorado.

The funeral service was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, Vankleek Hill, and was conducted by the pastor the Rev. E. E. Preston assisted by the Rev. T. Croighton Cassidy of Montreal. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

The bearers of the casket were six grandsons of a first cousin, the late "Red" John Chisholm, John H. Chisholm, Wesley Chisholm, Duncan A. MacLeod, William K. MacLeod, John S. Campbell and Douglas C. Campbell.

The honorary bearers were all old friends and relatives of the deceased, Alexander Chisholm, William Chisholm, Valentine Chisholm, John C. Meech, William McAlpine, Murdoch Stuart and Alex Dewar.

The floral tributes and the many who came to pay their respects to the late Mr. Chisholm gave evidence that the passing of this old citizen was a loss to his friends.

Glengarry Cheese Producers Have Faith In British Market For Product

Express Opinion Britain Will Continue To Take Canadian Cheese Despite War Drain On Purchasing Power—H. S. Marjorison President

Britain will continue to be the best market for Canadian cheese in the post war world despite the reduction in her purchasing power.

Cheese requisitioning by the Dairy Produce Board has been discontinued commencing with last night's purchases, according to word received yesterday by Mr. Stephen O'Connor, Secretary of the Alexandria Cheese Board, from J. F. Singleton of the Board at Ottawa. The message, dated yesterday gave no explanation of the sudden halt of requisitioning for the British market.

The move restores to the local Cheese Boards the practise of selling cheese on a competitive bid basis to the buyers. During the last few years all cheese had been requisitioned for the export market by the Dairy Produce Board at a set price.

At last week's meeting of the Alexandria Board it had been decided to discontinue the Board meetings for the season and this week's offerings were to go to the same buyers as last week. In view of yesterday's end to requisitioning, however, it has been decided the local Board will be called to meet again next Thursday.

The Searchlight

BY SPECTATOR

Trade cannot any longer in these post-war years be a one way street. The ordinary citizen might have wished that at the close of a great war in the traffic coming and going must be which Canadians distinguished themselves more nearly in balance than the trade selves in the battle for freedom that between some countries in the days before the war. Those countries which are impoverished by the war, with much of their economy ruined, their investments used up to pay for war purchases and their carrying trade practically at a standstill, cannot buy in large quantities without equivalent exports. They can pay for their imports only by their sales abroad. Britain's investments in Canada have shrunk to practically nothing. There is no doubt that her shipping, in which she has the proficiency in operation which comes from long experience, will again loom large on the oceans of the world, but that takes time. Now Britain needs to borrow money from the United States and from Canada to pay for her immediate needs and for the resurrection of her economy. But beyond that she must have Canadian dollars to pay for her future purchases from Canada and that can only come through exports to this country. That has to be borne in mind by our people.

(Future of Nuclear Energy)

It is natural that Britain will seek to help in the restoration of the economy of the countries, near her in Europe, Scandinavia, Holland and Belgium as well as other states in central and Eastern Europe. Her trade will undoubtedly expand with countries of the "sterling bloc", including Dominions of the British Commonwealth in the East and the nations of Western Europe. The maintenance of our trade with Britain on a level that is satisfactory and in accord with our natural expectations must depend on our acceptance of the cold hard facts of the situation which are the result of the tremendous outlays from British treasure during the war. The first step will be the trade and financial arrangements which will be made when British negotiations in the United States are completed. Then there will be the commonwealth trade parley which will come within a few months and which will precede the larger world trade conference.

(The Flag Controversy)

With a dissenting vote of only two members, the house of commons recently agreed to the setting up with the senate of a joint committee to select the design for a distinctive Canadian flag. There has been of course a great change in the composition of the British Commonwealth, now composed of autonomous states, and a symbol of an autonomous state is a flag.

Gas, Chemicals Effective As Mosquito Exterminator

Walk out on the lawn on a moist day or saunter among the shrubs and presto! you may stir up a blitzkrieg.

One hundred of the 150 varieties of the family culicidae—the hungry mosquito to you—will swarm to the attack. You know the rest.

Hordes of them have been, are now and will continue to raise millions of weevils on thousands of onions.

The best systems of defense against mosquito fleets have been outlined by W. E. Dickinson, Milwaukee, Wis., curator of lower zoology in a special communiqué he gave directions for gas and chemical warfare to prevent the enemy from winning on the garden party and picnic front.

"Spread small heaps of pyrethrum powder strategically over the field of action," his order reads. "Light the powder and gas the enemy. If you have no pyrethrum powder engage in chemical assault by spraying field of action with mixture of four ounces of creosol, one-third ounce of oil of myrrh and two quarts of kerosene."

In a second order he gives explicit rules for protecting the exposed flanks.

"Apply mixture of one ounce citronella, one ounce spirits of camphor and one-half ounce of oil of cedar, or mixture of equal parts of castor oil, alcohol and either oil of lavender or oil of rose geranium."

In case of attack a third order decrees:

"Strike hard, smash the enemy."

Mercury Is Only Metal Common in Liquid Form

Did you ever accidentally break a thermometer and then try to pick up some of the heavy silvery droplets of mercury that had spilled out? They were liquid, yet they did not wet the table's surface. They scurried elusively about; they defied your efforts to seize them. No wonder the Romans christened that mysterious liquid argentum vivum and we today call it by the English translation of that same name—quicksilver.

Many people do not recognize mercury as a metal simply because it is a liquid, writes Harry M. Day in Nature magazine. It is a true metallic element, none the less, just as much a metal as tin, zinc or lead. The fact that we usually see it as a liquid means simply that its melting point happens to fall below our ordinary temperatures; it is, strictly speaking, a molten metal. Professor Braune, at St. Petersburg, first succeeded in freezing it at 40 degrees below zero and recognized its true metallic properties. In its low melting point mercury is unique, and out of its uniqueness arise many of its uses and indispensable services to mankind.

What You Can Do

Neighbors, who are musically inclined, occasion the most disputes. A New York judge, according to news commentator Helen Rowland, ruled with the wisdom of Portia that a man could keep his radio going night and day if he wished but that if one note crossed the air shaft into a neighboring apartment he could be charged with disturbing the peace.

People who know their rights may collect liberally upon this knowledge. A widow in the Bronx and her two daughters received $100,000 from a sheriff's jury in a slander action against a neighbor who had talked with such effect that a policeman engaged to one of the girls broke it off. A manager of a New Jersey country club, who had been charged by a member with forgery, was tried, acquitted, and then won a judgment of $20,000, for false arrest. The "haymaker" that an Omaha detective landed on the jaw of a robbery suspect proved a boomerang for a court awarded the man $1,213 damages for the physical pain and indignities he had suffered.

Perfect Teeth Family Revealed
Declared to be a case virtually unparalleled in dental history, a mother and daughter of Los Angeles were discovered to have perfect teeth, during an exposition of the Los Angeles Health Defense exposition, recently. They are Mrs. Jessie Haden and her daughter, Marthe Haden. Mrs. Haden said that her son, Robert, also has perfect teeth.

Mrs. Haden explained her molar perfection by stating that she has always eaten good food, plenty of vegetables, raw carrots and leafy dishes. "We drink raw milk at our house," she said. "Since I was a child, I have massaged my gums daily. As a youngster I chewed raw meat for the vitamin content—and perhaps that has something to do with it."

Real Causes of Divorce

Divorce laws and decrees seldom recite the real causes for divorce, according to some psychologists. Things are seldom brought out before the court are the differences in temperament, social background, education, life habits, philosophy of life, etc.

When psychologists bring out these real causes, the parties concerned often become reconciled. One noted psychologist states that no couple should ever seek a divorce without first seeking the advice of a psychologist trained in marriage counselling.

Dogs Not Affected by Air Raids in Progress

Dog lovers often ask how the dogs in England are getting along in the terrible air raids now in progress. On this point a letter from a lady who keeps a famous kennel of Irish setters on the outskirts of London was received.

She writes: "You would laugh at my dogs trooping into the dugout when things get lively here. Only one dog, Champion Veracity, was scared by the noise and now she has got completely used to it. My old Champion Vanity has got the whole thing taped, she will stay in the house until guns or bombs are loud, then she scuttles into the dugout."

Another letter says: "In a dog's home near the coast the inmates recently showed complete indifference to the sirens and even to exploding bombs. There are cases where both dogs and cats have learned to know what an air-raid warning means and promptly make off and take cover. The other day a heavy bomb fell within a mile of a shed full of dogs, they were unperturbed. Above another dog's home raiders unloaded and the anti-aircraft batteries were in action. Not a dog even barked. They were all less affected than if it had been a thunderstorm."

It would appear that man's best friend is standing up to the raids well.

Salmon and Sudden Death

As Celilo Indians Fish

Every year, tourists flock to Celilo Falls, a hundred miles east of Portland, Ore., to watch the Celilo Indians fish for salmon during the spring and fall runs. The tourists stand around for hours, and occasionally they will be on hand to see an Indian slip into the rapids and drown while his fellows frantically try to save him.

The Celilos were one of the five tribes who peacefully ceded to the United States a strip of territory stretching from Mt. Adams in Washington to the Columbia river in Oregon. In return, the government granted the tribes the right to hunt and fish forever, and to live off the reservations. But one trick clause in this treaty—a clause granting the right to hunt and fish to all other residents of the territory—has deprived the Indians of the opportunity to make a decent living out of the abundance of salmon for which the Columbia river is famous.

John Whiz, a Yakima Indian who married into the Celilo tribe, is the official spokesman for the Celilos. The tribe sends him to Washington to plead their case, but, to date, he has not succeeded in winning for the Indians their demands for a square deal. Their chief complaint: The local cannery contracts to buy salmon at five cents a pound but always finds reasons for paying two and three cents upon delivery.

Why 'Pop' Leads Bride

The conventional wedding dress is white because white has stood for purity since the earliest days. The veil has many traditions. Among the Egyptians, the Hindus, the Arabs, and many other peoples, the groom was not allowed to see the face of his bride until the wedding day. The veil of today's bride is caught with orange blossoms. This too, is an early custom. It was believed that the "golden apple" which Juno gave to Jupiter on their wedding day was in reality an orange. Anyway, the modern bride wears orange blossoms on her wedding veil.

When the bride's father graciously gives her in marriage, he is harking back to the days of marriage by purchase. After the prospective groom had paid the price—and no before—the father led out the girl and turned her over to him.

The custom of best man goes back to the days of marriage by capture. When a man went out to capture a bride he took along his "best man" or "best friend." This friend had to be a strong-armed warrior because it was his duty to hold back the bride's kin by force and knock them out if necessary while the groom carried her, kicking and screaming—unless clubbed into unconsciousness—to some place of safety.

First Bank

The oldest incorporated bank in the United States was the Bank of North America, chartered by congress on November 1, 1781. Described as the "first regularly established bank in America," it opened for business in Philadelphia on January 7, 1782. An earlier bank, the Bank of Pennsylvania, which opened in 1780, soon went out of business, but the Bank of North America, long a landmark at Chestnut near Third, continued in business as a separate institution until 1929, when it merged with the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities.

Dolfuss Murdered
Chancellor Engelbert Dolfuss of Austria was murdered in his room in the Chancellery, Vienna, Austria by Otto Planetta, one of a group of 144 Nazis, who forced their way into the palace on July 25, 1934, apparently in expectation of capturing the whole cabinet. They were dislodged and captured a few hours later. The murderer and one of the leaders were court-martialed and hanged on July 30.

4 tokens for 1/2 lb. bacon

This week's ration fashion calls for an expenditure of two coupons and sixteen tokens. The sixteen tokens are equivalent to two coupons, so that full use is made of the four coupons available each week in a family of four.

If Sunday brings a dinner guest, the rolled shoulder of lamb could be elasticized with your favorite dressing and a tempting brown gravy. The left-overs will provide the wherewithal for the lamb pie suggested for Tuesday's dinner. A pound of hamburger stretched with soft bread crumbs will make a meat loaf which can be served hot on Monday and sliced cold for Tuesday's luncheon, either for the sandwiches packed off to school or work, or for the meal at home along with a crisp salad. You may find you have some tidbits to spare from the roast or loaf which can be added to a spaghetti dish for Wednesday's lunch when sausages will be used for dinner. Braised veal cutlets for Thursday will assure the man of the house that, although rationed, meat can still hold a prominent place on the dinner plate. Fish appears on the Friday menu. For Saturday liver will provide a nutrition-enriching and ration-sparing meal, leaving you with four tokens to devote to half a pound of bacon, or to carry over as a contribution to the next week's roast.

Care in Essentials Will Reduce Cost of Painting

Left over paint can be saved from one year to the next provided it is stored carefully. Paint is something of a fire hazard and should be protected from contact with fire or intense heat. Paint must never be frozen. The basement of a house is a good storage place because the temperature is fairly even. Paint should be at room temperature when it is used.

Paint brushes can be used over and over again if they are properly cleaned and stored. After completing a paint job wash the brushes in turpentine to remove all the paint. Do not attempt to wash too many brushes in the same turpentine. Follow by washing the brushes in warm water and suds. Rinse in warm water and dry thoroughly. Wrap in paper for storage.

Air, in contact with paint, will absorb the solvent dissolved in it. This will form a hard crust over the top of the paint and in time a whole can will become solid. The air must be kept from the surface when it is stored to keep it in a usable condition.

The lid must be replaced so it forms an airtight seal. Remove all the spilled paint along the sealing edge and replace the lid. Put the can on the floor and stand on it with both feet so that the lid is pushed well into the can.

The air that is trapped in a partly used can of paint will cause a thin crust to form over the paint. To lessen this film shake the can for a few seconds after it is sealed. This saturates the trapped air with the solvent in the paint so no more solvent can be absorbed.

Victories of Science Over Madness Disclosed

New victories of science in the unending war against one of mankind's worst enemies—madness—are disclosed in a report made public by Dr. Aaron J. Rosanoff, director of the California state department of institutions.

Remarkable results of the so-called insulin shock treatment of the insane are detailed in the report, compiled by Dr. Jacob P. Frostig, Polish scientist in charge of insulin therapy in the state hospitals.

Boiled down to its essence, Dr. Frostig's report reveals that 111 patients out of a total of 139 who underwent the complete insulin treatment since its inception on August 1, 1939, at the Camarillo State hospital have been discharged. Five more are awaiting parole. Only 23 out of a total of 139 failed to regain sanity in the insulin ward and the less hopeless of these now are receiving further treatment with good prospects of eventual success.

Through disciplined use of controls comes our opportunity to show that patriotism is not a feeble flame but a burning passion. Our dollars properly spent can help to build confidence, enterprise and natural security. So shall such a spirit grow within all Canadians that, when controls are relaxed, there shall have been bred in us the consciousness of our individual responsibility in our country's economy.

TIME BOMBS

It's not where our sphere of influence is, but what is our influence on the sphere.

They stepped into a church and were made one. Nowadays the question is—which one?

It's the division between parents that adds up to problem children.

"Everybody thinks about himself," said a downcast man, "and I'm the only one who thinks about me."

Children are the product either of our time or of our spare time.

It's not what I possess but what possesses me.

Democracy isn't a scramble where everyone seeks place, but an ensemble where everyone takes part.

Why She Lies

Don't worry because little Geraldine is a liar, but don't spank her when she tells a whopper. Her fibbing is simply the result of overactive pituitary glands.

Dr. Gulielma Fell Alsop, faculty physician at Barnard College, New York city, told the National Association of Deans of Women that her own school is awash with liars, and explained their tall tales are due to glandular activity. Dr. Alsop revealed one girl poses as an Oxonian, but lives in Brooklyn, while the daughter of a New Jersey farmer tells friends he is the American consul in Cairo.

Overactivity of the adrenal glands causes adolescent girls to have ferocious tempers, Dr. Alsop said. Other overworked glands cause loss of memory, or make girls "boy crazy."

Intense Heat

In a new South Dakota flour mill, the heat generated by friction in the grinding machine is so great that heated air it creates, drawn off by a fan and washed, is sufficient to heat the entire six-story building, except in very cold weather, says Collier's.

Announce Medal Winners At Lancaster

The annual Medal Contest, sponsored by the local W.C.T.U., was held in Knox United Church, Lancaster, with a good attendance of children and friends. Dr. J. U. Tanner occupied the chair. The children presented a splendid program of recitations and singing, which was much enjoyed and which the judges found difficult to judge. However, the medals were won by the following: Junior A girls, Carol Seguin; junior boys, Carl Watling; junior B girls, Gertrude Lefebvre; intermediate, Marjory McPherson.

In the two vocal classes the junior medal was won by Rons Watling and the senior by Archie Gaucher.

Between the classes the audience was entertained with selections given by the choir from Maple Ridge School and by the choir from Picnic Grove Schools as well as by various other young artists.

The president, Mrs. D. M. McLennan, thanked the accompanists for their help, the judges and the teachers who had helped to train the pupils for the contest.

In his capacity as chairman, Dr. Tanner told very interesting parables relative to the liquor traffic which appealed to the children and grown-ups as well.

After the distribution of the medals, which was performed by Mrs. J. C. McGillivray, the evening was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

EMERGENCIES
arise in any family

Banks are continually making small loans to meet these emergencies which can upset the best-planned budgets.

Three out of every five bank loans are for less than $500. Many of these are used to take care of such expenses as doctor or hospital bills, temporary embarrassment at tax-time, a sudden journey, the winter's coal bill.

Again, educational needs of the family often are financed by small bank loans.

These small loans enable individuals to consolidate debts, and to pay back from income.

Small loans furnish just one more example of the service available to you at your bank.

Counties Make Grant Of $1000. For Welcome To S.D. & G.'s

A tentative grant of $1,000 in aid of the "Welcome Home" reception for the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders was made by the United Counties' Council at its closing session Saturday afternoon November 10th.

The proposal to actively assist the district committee arranging the homecoming celebration was contained in the report of the Finance Committee which proposed the sum of $1,000 or as much of it as is necessary." The report brought forward by Reeve J. D. McPherson of Alexandria, chairman of the committee was passed by council without debate. It empowered the Warden's Committee to authorize the spending of a further sum for the reception, if it is required.

Council wound up its last session of 1945 in a last-day flurry of business, at which reports of eight standing committees were accepted and four bylaws were passed. Session opened previous Monday afternoon and has been marked by few controversial subjects. Open sessions of council, for the most part were confined to the acceptance of reports of committees with little debate.

A supplementary road expenditure by-law for $45,000 was passed following acceptance of the report of county roads and bridges committee which recommended the supplementary expenditure on county roads.

Also recommended was an expenditure of $10,000 on Cornwall suburban roads and a by-law implementing the expenditure was introduced and passed.

The committee recommended the Advisory Road Committee be authorized, if snowplows are available, to plow certain portions of the county roads leading to adjoining hamlets. A request was received by the committee that the portion of township road from Glen Roy to King's Highway 34 be plowed during the winter months. Also accepted by council was the report of public welfare committee under the chairmanship of A. A. Fraser, Reeve of Kenyon Township.

The committee recommended the counties' solicitor attend meetings of the Juvenile Board when consideration is being given to applications for wardship of children and that he defend the interests of the counties in this matter.

A report of the Board of Health covering their activities to the end of September was accepted and filed.

Chairman of the Board of Health outlined to committee members the plans for mass survey for tuberculosis which is to take place in Cornwall city, Mountain, Finch and Lochiel Townships. Members were asked for their co-operation and it was stressed that it was hoped by this plan to eradicate tuberculosis from the United Counties.

Council endorsed the Hog Marketing Scheme for Ontario proposed by the Department of Agriculture, and urged area hog producers to attend the meetings which are being held, to register and vote for the scheme.

A vote of thanks was extended to the three county agricultural representatives for their work and to J. W. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dancause.

MacRae of the Crop Weed and Seeds Branch of Department of Agriculture. Each of the four men addressed the agriculture committee and outlined work being carried on.

Council approved a grant of $200 to Alexandria High School to aid in setting up a department of agriculture in the school. The grant was recommended in the report of Education Committee.

Providing a new foundation for better understanding of the upper atmosphere, "the most perfect reproduction" of the Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights, ever produced by a scientist was claimed recently by a University of California at Los Angeles physicist.

Announcing results of months of research, Dr. Joseph Kaplan, a professor of physics, revealed that, with the assistance of Dr. Sidney Rubens, he has successfully completed experiments in which he was able to reproduce both the nitrogen and oxygen lines of the upper atmosphere on a single photographic plate.

Previously, he reported, one or the other element has been reproduced singly, "but never together to give a complete picture of the spectrum of the Aurora Borealis."

"Now we have a starting point for really understanding what goes on in the upper atmosphere," Dr. Kaplan said, "and it is hoped that many more problems of the upper air can be investigated."

Practical applications of his experiments may be three-fold, the physicist declared.

1. Knowledge of the upper atmosphere may help solve radio transmission problems.

2. It may provide a more extensive knowledge of radiation from the sun—which some scientists think may become an important source of power to the world.

3. Study of our own atmosphere may help astronomers to understand the atmosphere of distant stars.

Human Body Is Managed Better Than Democracy

The human body runs itself better than democracies, it was cited recently in a medical discussion at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, founded in 1848.

The reactions of the human body were cited as an example for democracies in meeting changing conditions such as the current world crisis, because it "runs itself better than the world." In its ability to meet emergency, the human body, it was pointed out, has evolved a self-regulated internal economy which keeps it in a fit state for action, and keeps it prepared for extra effort when confronted by critical situations.

The scientists suggested that the organization of the physiologic body might well be studied in connection with disturbances of the body politic in the interest of meeting disturbing forces in democracies, such as economic upheavals, financial panics and the general run of disturbing forces.

The current crisis with its rush to produce tools, buildings and machines was compared with the preparedness of the human body to provide defense reactions for emergency.

Quick-Frozen Foods

Foods have been quick-frozen so successfully, are so convenient for quick meal preparation, retain vitamin value so much better than foods preserved by other methods that the industry has grown by leaps and bounds!

New containers have been developed to provide the household with adequate storage space for frozen foods, enabling homemakers to buy large quantities of these foods at lower cost. Farmers have built quick-freezing units in their homes and community locker plants have been established in rural sections. Universities as well as commercial houses are working to promote better frozen products and more economical storage facilities.

Remember that no vegetable should ever be boiled rapidly. Cover the pan used in cooking vegetables, bring to boil, then reduce heat to keep product simmering.

Mona Lisa, Mrs. Siddons

Mona Lisa and Mrs. Siddons are the subjects of two of the world's most famous portraits. Mona Lisa was the third wife of a Florentine, Francesco Del Giocondo. She was painted by Leonardo da Vinci during a residence at Florence from 1503 to 1506. Though he worked on the portrait for four years he never considered that he had finished it. This Mona Lisa, or "La Joconde," is the pride of the Louvre. It was stolen from the gallery August 22, 1911, but was subsequently recovered.

Mrs. Sarah Siddons was a celebrated English actress, born of a famous stage family. She lived from 1755 to 1831, and for 30 years, until her retirement in 1812, she reigned in London as the greatest actress of her time. Her most famous role was as Lady Macbeth. "Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse" is one of Sir Joshua Reynolds' best known pictures.

Why Nazi Planes Explode

A correspondent, recently returning from England, was asked to explain the fairly frequent reports that "another German plane exploded in the air almost above us." He replied that the current theory is that the Nazi planes blow up when their oxygen bottles are struck by British missiles. It is not believed that the explosion of the planes in midair is caused by the premature ignition of bombs by gunfire, the bomb fuses being well protected.

PLANNING for EXPANSION of RURAL TELEPHONE SERVICE

To keep step with farm progress and to extend service to more farm families, the telephone industry is working on important new devices and methods.

Plans are already under way for resuming the rural telephone expansion program suspended in 1940, when equipment and material became urgently needed for the armed forces. Surveys are being made to determine the needs and to provide the facts for carrying out plans to expand farm telephone service.

The goal is to bring the telephone to the greatest possible number of farm families.

WEEKLY RATION FASHION

| SUN. | MON. | TUES. | WED. | THUR. | FRI. | SAT. |
|------------------------------|--------------------------------|----------------|--------------------------------|------------------------------|------------|------------------------------|
| Meat Ring | Lamb Chops | Eggs a la king | Veal Cutlets | Steak and Kidney Pie | Fish | Sausages |
| Group C 3/4 lb. tokens | Graup C 1/2 lb. 2 tokens | unrationed | Graup B 1/2 lb. 3 tokens | Graup B 6 oz. 2 tokens | unrationed | Graup D 1 lb. 3 tokens |

3 tokens for lunch problems or next week's roast.

Menu planning need not be fog-bound by meat rationing. Within the bounds of a twosome's weekly ration there is much scope for gastronomical enjoyment and satisfaction. In planning the purchases it will be found useful to translate the ration in terms of tokens, eight of which are equivalent to the coupon available to each person weekly.

With hospitality a week-end keynote, an extender dish is suggested as ration economy for Sunday's dinner guests. A meat loaf can be tastefully made from 3/4 lb. hamburger with added egg, bread crumbs and suitable seasonings. To give this old friend a new guise, bake it in a ring mould, turn out on serving platter and vegetable-fill the centre. Lamb chops make delectable eating for two tokens on Monday. And eggs are suggested as the basis for Tuesday's protein dish. Hard cooked eggs combined with fresh mushrooms, now market-plentiful, and a good cream sauce, and served on a mound of hot noodles is indeed a regal dish which only needs to be rounded out with a green or yellow vegetable for eye appeal and nutritive satisfaction. Wednesday's veal cutlets will bring you to the middle of the week with half your ration still intact. For Thursday two tokens worth of round steak supplemented with unrationed kidney will provide the makings for a steak and kidney pie. And for a top with taste, add some celery seed to the pastry or biscuit dough. Friday is an opportunity day for fish to appear on the bill of fare. Three tokens are ration currency for one pound of sausages, a double duty purchase which will provide Saturday's dinner and glorify Sunday's breakfast. The week's expenditure of thirteen tokens will leave you with three as a contribution to luncheon problems or next week's small roast.

THE PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY OF CANADA

THOSE CRAZY BARTLETT'S

By Peggy Dern

CHAPTER V

"Yes, it's very nice," she said. The woman looked at Celia and said jolly, "The blouse is not for sale."

Puzzled, Celia said, "Oh, well, something similar. Let me see what you have."

"I have nothing to sell you or your friend, now or at any other time," said the woman slowly, distinctly, each word seeming to carry a tiny separate sting.

Celia straightened and stared at the woman incredulously. Catherine's cheeks were scarlet, but she laughed a little and drawled, "So sorry to have troubled you."

She turned toward the door, but Celia held her ground.

I think I'd like an explanation, please," she said swiftly. You have a shop here, and it's open for business—

"But not to do business with Hitlerites," said the woman furiously. "Not with people that use their money to buy up the things that everybody needs and to hoard them selfishly for their own use. There's nothing in this town that any of the Mallorys can buy—unless it's on a black market."

"This is ridiculous!" blazed Celia.

"Come on, Celia—let's get out!" said Catherine at the door.

Celia turned and went out of the shop, her head held high, her cheeks crimson. Catherine, waiting for her, said wryly, "Sorry, Celia—I knew how they hated and resented Win and me, but I didn't know that their resentment would extend even to a Bartlett. Sorry I let you in for that."

"It's all right," answered Celia curtly. It wasn't too pleasant, of course, but after all—" She shrugged, and the two girls walked back to the car.

Win, seeing the look on their faces, said savagely to Catherine, Why did you let her go into that place?"

Catherine said briefly, "Sorry."

Jennifer looked like the cat that had swallowed a whole nestful of canaries, and Win, helping Celia into the car, said to her, "Don't look like that, darling. These be-nighted souls are envious and this is the only way they can show their resentment. I'll drive you to Atlanta tomorrow or next day and you can shop to your heart's content."

Celia went quickly down the road until she was out of sight. But as she reached the little wooden bridge, she stopped and tugged off her hat and stood leaning on the old, splintery railing of the bridge.

She wondered uneasily if he were really going to marry Jennifer, if he had been merely using her, Celia, to pique Jennifer.

Catherine disliked Jennifer, and made no pretense of hiding it. Jennifer was completely aware of this dislike, and returned it in full, yet was thick-skinned enough to stay on at Azalea Court long after the original visit for which she had been invited had expired. A girl would have to be tremendously in love with a man, or terribly keen on getting a rich husband, to do that, Celia told herself.

She had been standing so still, lost in thought there on the old bridge, that a movement in the green forest below passed her unnoticed. But she started as a man stepped out of the woods, and looked up, as surprised as she was to find that he was not completely alone.

"Oh, hello," said Rusty. "What's the matter? Have a fight with your boy friend and have to walk home?"

Celia's cheeks burned beneath the slight taunt in the words, and she answered him stiffly, "Certainly not! The Mallorys brought some guests out from town, and I preferred to walk, rather than have them make an extra trip to bring me home."

Rusty nodded, accepting that and dismissing it, his lack of interest almost insolently strong.

He was winding a line carefully about a bamboo fishing pole, a disreputable old pipe gripped in his teeth. His slacks were mud-stained, his shirt was open at the throat and dark with perspiration, as he finished the job and said cheerfully, "Who is it around here that gives the fish a college education so that they won't bite on a hook, baited or otherwise?"

"It seems to me," said Celia. "I heard Win Mallory tell somebody the other day that there had never been a fish in this creek larger than a tadpole. Of course, I know a tadpole isn't a fish, but anyway, Win said that there was no fishing nearer than the river, and that's three miles back of their place."

Rusty grinned dryly. "So they have even got the fish sewed up, have they?" he commented.

Celia's color rose, but before she could say anything Rusty said

"Oh, hello," said Rusty. "Have a fight with your boy friend and have to walk home?"

quickly, "Skip it! That was very ill-mannered of me, to throw rocks at your friends! I didn't really mean it."

"I suppose you despise them, too," said Celia hotly.

Rusty's eyebrows went up a little.

"Why should I? It's their life and they live it their way! I try to live my own and let the other fellow manage his! I've never felt that my own—er—morals were high enough to permit me to throw rocks at other people! Live and let live—that's my motto. Remember?"

With Susan, Rusty was the perfect companion, friendly, amusing, gay. Often the little girl's gay laughter would ring out joyously, and Celia would be touched and happy at this evidence of Susan's pleasure in Rusty's friendship.

With Honey, Rusty was like an older brother, teasing her, dancing with her in the big living room after dinner; with Buzz and Ma' Sue, he was friendly and respectful and interested; and with Pete, he had been friends ten minutes after meeting. But with Celia he was still polite, remote, elaborately casual a fact that Celia had scarcely noticed during the first days of her friendship with the Mallorys, because she hadn't been at home much.

But now, walking beside him up the drive and across the shaggy lawn, she realized that although they had been fellow-guests here for more than a week, today was the first time they had really talked together; and Rusty had ended that talk abruptly and as though anxious to get away from her.

At dinner that night, Buzz looked along the table at Mary Sue and said, rubbing his hands gleefully, "Well, darling, you can stop worrying about the lawn and the drive and all looking so untidy. Looks like we're going to get 'em taken care of."

"Are we, my dear? That's nice," said Mary Sue placidly.

"A couple of house guests arriving tomorrow for an indefinite stay! I'll have 'em mow the lawn first, I guess," mused Buzz.

Celia said, surprised, "I thought you said they were guests?"

"They are," answered her father, though puzzled at her surprise.

"They'll work just the same," he said. "You forget it. The two of us will be here tomorrow."

"Tugs Donovan and Doc L."

Mary Sue's eyes lit up with a mirthful gleam, but she did not speak. There was a close-ness between them that made words clumsy, inept things to carry their thoughts back and forth.

Mary Sue hesitated, and then she said anxiously, "Well, I'm terribly glad they're coming, if you want them. But frankly, I'm afraid of Ruby Pearle! She'll just about have a fit!"

The swinging door into the pantry opened and Ruby Pearle herself padded into the room, like a gaunt panther.

She carried an enormous tray and when she had served the dessert, she paused for a moment at the door and looked sternly at Celia, who looked back at her, her head up, her eyes cool.

"I like to speak to you soon's you finish yo' dinner," said Ruby Pearle compositely, and walked out.

The table was silent for a moment, and Mary Sue said anxiously, "Oh, darling, I'm afraid she heard you and she's angry."

"And that," said Celia, digging a fork into delicious pineapple chiffon pie topped by fluffy meringue, "just about scares me to death."

When dinner was over, Celia turned toward the kitchen, but at the door of the butler's pantry she was surprised to find Rusty, saying lightly, "Want a strong box to run interference for you?"

Experts Offer Advice

On Improving Your Lawn

Essential factors in caring for your lawn are fertilizing, watering, mowing, raking and weed control, according to George Hanser and James G. Moore of the University of Wisconsin.

Of course, there must be good soil and the seed should be high grade or there may never be a lawn. If the grass just won't grow on your land, show a sample of the soil to your county agricultural agent, Hanser suggests.

If grass grows, then the experts offer these suggestions:

Every lawn will be improved by at least one application each year of the proper commercial fertilizer, Moore says. He does not favor the use of manure on a lawn because of the danger of introducing weeds.

"In distributing fertilizer, spread it evenly to avoid burning the grass," cautions Moore. "On most small lawns it would be wise for the inexperienced person to mix the fertilizer with two or three times its bulk in dry, fine soil or sand.

"If you work out the lumps and distribute the fertilizer evenly, you will not burn the grass."

Hansen asserts that more lawns are ruined by improper mowing than by any other cause.

"Don't mow your lawn too closely," he advises. "Almost everything the grass needs to keep it alive is taken from the air through its leaves. If you mow your lawn too short, the grass won't have enough leaf space to absorb what it needs to keep it alive."

"Set your mower to cut 1 1/2 to 2 inches high. Maybe the lawn won't look quite as neat as grass cut shorter but the grass will grow thicker and you will have less trouble with weeds."

After mowing, Moore says, all clippings should be removed unless the turf is thin and the lawn is making slow growth. Clippings left on heavy turf are unsightly, choke off the air and cut off moisture. Clippings do not add to the soil's organic matter.

Mowing should be continued at the usual height until the grass has virtually ceased to grow. Moore says it is unnecessary, and may be injurious, to leave long grass on a heavy turf.

U. S. Imports of Coffee

Reach New Record High

"Advertising pays," the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange said in an announcement which showed that imports of coffee in the crop year ended June 30 had reached a record total of 15,432,830 bags of 132 pounds each, or 15 1/2 pounds for each person.

Maids also leave service, said George J. Smith, Indianapolis manager of the service, because employers contend that their help should run a "short-order house," serving snacks at all hours, including the wee ones.

Smith contends that factory and industrial jobs, which are now becoming more plentiful for women, are more desirable than positions as maids because in the latter capacity:

Half of Our Presidents

Were Habitual Smokers

It is estimated that about half the men who have been President of the United States have been regular smokers.

Chester A. Arthur and Warren G. Harding, like Franklin D. Roosevelt, were habitual smokers of cigarettes.

Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson both smoked an occasional cigarette or cigar, but apparently neither was a regular smoker.

Grover Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison were both perpetual cigar and pipe smokers.

U. S. Grant was seldom seen with a cigar in his mouth.

Calvin Coolidge was an indefatigable cigar smoker and inaugurated the custom of supplying cigars for cabinet sessions. His own favorite was a cheroot.

William Howard Taft is said to have tried every possible kind of smoking, but never was a heavy smoker.

James A. Garfield smoked large, thick cigars.

Both Andrew Jackson and his wife smoked corn-cob pipes.

Abraham Lincoln never used tobacco in any form.

George Washington seems to have been definitely allergic to tobacco smoke. His adopted son says that Washington, though a tobacco planter, had the "utmost abhorrence" of the weed, and even when compelled by custom to take a whiff of the calumet while conferring with Indians, the Father of His Country made a wry face and passed the Indian pipe along after one weak puff.

Some writers say that Washington's mother, like many other women of the time, smoked a pipe.

Washington had many snuff-boxes, but it is not certain that he took snuff.

Borrowing Wives Cause

Of Servant Shortage

The fact that housewives often borrow all their maids' wages was cited by the Indiana state employment service as one of the many reasons explaining the shortage of domestic help.

Maids also leave service, said George J. Smith, Indianapolis manager of the service, because employers contend that their help should run a "short-order house," serving snacks at all hours, including the wee ones.

Smith contends that factory and industrial jobs, which are now becoming more plentiful for women, are more desirable than positions as maids because in the latter capacity:

1. The pay is too small in comparison to the work.

2. The employers give too little consideration.

3. The care of children is too trying.

4. No private quarters are provided.

5. There is no leisure time.

However, Smith said, most maids regard their work as "good training—professionally and matrimony."

Greenland Important Today

Greenland, the icy island inside the Arctic circle, assumes new importance in America's hemisphere defense program, for Greenland is a Danish possession and Denmark is under German rule.

Although the island boasts only 17,000 residents today, it is the site of the first attempts at European colonization in the New world. Settlements there antedate Spanish and English colonization by 500 years.

Eric the Red, the Viking adventurer, explored the country in 982 and named it Greenland to attract colonists. He returned in 986 and founded colonies. Soon there were 3,000 settlers on the island.

For 400 years the colonies remained in existence. But when the island was "rediscovered" in 1585 all traces of the settlements had disappeared. Modern colonization began in 1721.

Greenland's great ice pack has been called the world's best potential landing field.

Birds Get Asthma Too

Birds exposed to drafts in wet, chilly weather may develop catarrh or head colds. This will be manifested by sneezing, a discharge from the nostrils and a thickness due to mucus in the throat. As usual with any ailment of your bird, it will not be so lively and will have a dullness of feathers.

If your bird is affected by a noisy, dry wheeziness it is usually asthma known as aspergillosis, rather than a head cold. A bird has nine air sacs distributed in the lower portion of the neck, between the lungs and ribs, and inside the wall of the abdomen, and if these sacs become clogged with this fungus or mold, your bird will have great difficulty in breathing, which in turn will make him very weak. This is very similar to hay fever or rose fever in human beings.

Lighted Match Visible Half-Mile

German scientists have been conducting experiments with the black-out to determine how serious infractions of regulations may afford possible guidance to British fliers. They have discovered among other things it is reported, that a lighted match is visible for more than a half mile, a stable lantern for a mile and a quarter, and the light from one window of a fully lighted room for 12 1/2 miles.

British Drill Barefooted

British soldiers are entering the bunion derby stage, drilling and marching barefooted in order to toughen their feet. First they will use soft ground, then harder turf. The war office, in disclosing the innovation, said: "British soldiers are being made the toughest fighting men in the world."

Origination of Rats Is

Traced to Asia, China

The white rat is very similar to the mouse and requires very much the same care. There originally were two kinds of rats—the black rat and the Norway rat. Both species are supposed to have originated in Asia, probably in China.

In the beginning there was almost a fight to the finish between these two species in Asia. You doubtless know the story of the rats being transported to America by boats.

The white rat had been selected and bred until it is a race of its own, but originally it was just a pure-white albino offspring. These rats are far more delicate than the common breeds but are more easily kept.

There are many kinds of cages, but any box with a lid, that has a floor area of at least two feet long and one foot wide and high, will do for a pair. One side of the box may be covered with wire screen or glass so that the pets may be observed.

In the corner of the cage should be a sleeping compartment, made of an inverted box, with a hole at one side large enough to admit the rat. This box should be filled with strips of paper or excelsior. There should be another jar or cage of the same size to which the rat may be changed when its nest needs cleaning which is as often as once or twice a week.

It is rather difficult to change the rat from one jar or cage to the other and this is the way to do it: Take off the cover and invert the clean cage to take its place, then turn both jars on their sides mouth to mouth. Wait until the rat is exploring its new quarters, then thrust a piece of wire netting in for a cover and bring the fresh jar to an upright position. A small slot can be left along the bottom of the cage so that a scraper can be used to reach in and scrape out the unclean bedding. Be sure to keep this slot covered with a board the rest of the time.</
