

Memorial Windows Presented At Founders' Day Services At Lancaster

Pioneer Members Of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Remembered — First Days Of Lancaster Church Recalled By Speakers

Special services of an outstanding character were held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lancaster, Sunday, Oct. 13. The occasion was the presentation of two beautiful Memorial Windows by one of the veteran Elders of the church, Colin Macpherson. With the members of the Kirk Session and the Board of Managers, and others who represented families who for three and four generations had been members of the Auld Kirk of Scotland, and later in the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Colin Macpherson presented the windows.

The papers accompanying the gift were handed to the minister, Rev. R. Bertram Nelles, who, on behalf of the Kirk Session and congregation received the gift.

James McArthur introduced Mrs. Alexander R. MacDonell, in whose husband's memory one of the windows had been presented. He told how Alex. MacDonell had spent much of his boyhood in Lancaster, and with his mother and sister, had attended St. Andrew's Church, Lancaster. He was later elected an Elder, in which capacity he served over 25 years. Deeply interested in the young people, for nearly 40 years he worked with the young people, taught the Bible class and for years was Sunday School superintendent. Tribute was paid to his contribution as a Christian citizen and friend; during his long connection as postmaster, Mrs. MacDonell, who was accompanied by her daughter, Miss May MacDonell, then unveiled the window in memory of her husband.

Memorial To Founders

Robert McDougall, a grandson of John McDougall, a U. E. Loyalist and native of Scotland, who walked to Toronto and back to secure the deed of the ground on which the present St. Andrew's Church is built, was introduced and unveiled the window in memory of the host of Founders across the many years.

The windows were dedicated by the minister Rev. R. Bertram Nelles, the congregation standing.

The prayer of dedication was offered by the Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid of Montreal, Clerk of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa.

John G. Harkness K.C. Clerk of Session of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Cornwall, whose knowledge of the early history of the Presbyterian Church in Glengarry and vicinity is wide and whose general knowledge of the early settlers has been gained by personal touch with their descendants gave a very interesting history of these United Empire Loyalists. He gave a brief outline of the church in this district especially related to the coming of the great Scottish missionary, Rev. John Bethune, who held his first services under a canopy on the shore of Lake St. Francis. Later the first log church was erected. The original lock and key of this log building was presented to the church by Mr. Ross T. McRae, a grandson of the Rev. Thomas McPherson, who was for over 40 years minister of Lancaster and associated congregations.

Rev. George Evans brought greetings from Knox Church, Lancaster, and St. Andrew's Church 2nd Congregation and shared in the devotional service. Rev. R. Bertram Nelles, presided.

The evening service was a continuation of the morning service. Along with Rev. R. Bertram Nelles were Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid of Montreal, Rev. Dr. J. U. Tanner, for some years minister of St. Andrew's before union; Rev. George Evans of Knox Church; and Rev. G. W. Irvine of Williamstown. Mr. Irvine brought greetings from Williamstown, while Dr. Tanner paid a high tribute to Alex. MacDonell.

Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid was the guest speaker in the evening. Dr. Reid congratulated St. Andrew's congregation on its continued progress spiritually and financially with the leadership of Mr. Nelles.

Dr. Reid followed with a descriptive historical account of the various ministers of St. Andrew's congregation, beginning with Rev. John Bethune, whose death took place in 1815. Following him were Rev. John McKenzie, who ministered until 1822. Rev. Alexander McNaughton was in-

Back From Trip To Poland

Seven sea-going Alexandrians arrived home Saturday, after a trip to Poland on the American boat Rockland Victory carrying a shipment of U.N.R.R.A. horses from Canada. The seven, who docked at Newport News, Virginia last week are: Ian and Lee McCormick, Douglas Cuthbert, Charlie Gelineau, Elie Leduc, Robert Laroche and Gerald Richer.

It was the second trip to Poland for five of the group, the McCormicks, Cuthbert, Leduc and Gelineau. On the first sailing in August, were two other local youths, Roddie McDonald and John O'Connell. McDonald decided against making the second crossing, while O'Connell a son of Mrs. Rachel O'Connell of Alexandria, landed in an English hospital after developing appendicitis on the return trip from Danzig.

The local mariners saw something of what Poland suffered in the war and while in Polish ports witnessed many signs of the destitution which is an aftermath of war.

Mr. Fleming, a native of Scotland, could speak at first hand of most of the scenes depicted and he had many historical anecdotes to add to the interest with which his predominantly Scottish audience followed his tour through the highlands and lowlands of old Scotia.

Highland dances, songs, and instrumental numbers added to the enjoyment of the evening and there were as well Gaelic choruses by four of Glengarry's foremost singers. Members of the Dunvegan Gaelic Class assisted in the programme with popular Alexandria talent.

Glengarry Y. P. S. Had Active Year

Presbytery Was Second Most Vigorous In The Province

Two district young people representing the Presbytery of Glengarry were appointed to the executive of the Presbyterian Young People's Society of the Province of Ontario at the 13th annual provincial convention held in the historic Presbyterian Church, Orillia, over the Thanksgiving week end. Clifford MacRae, Avonmore, was re-elected first vice-president of the provincial body and Miss Vera Shaver, whose home congregation is also Avonmore, was elected to the position of provincial secretary. These young people, together with the other members of the provincial executive, were installed by Rev. J. A. MacInnis, B.D., at an impressive rally service Sunday evening.

The 13th annual convention which brought together more than 500 young people from all parts of the province, had as its theme "A Living Sacrifice." with Professor. Robert Lennox, M.A., Th. B., of the Presbyterian College, Montreal, delivering three outstanding theme addresses during the week end.

An interesting aspect of the convention was the presentation of the coveted Elsie Thomson Trophy which is annually presented to the Presbytery carrying out the most vigorous young people's programme. The honor for the third consecutive year went to the Chatham Presbytery. However, Glengarry Presbytery scored second among the 23 Presbyteries in the province and lacked only a very few points of winning the trophy. Last year Glengarry Presbytery was fourth. In the coming year the Presbytery members have resolved to work faithfully in order that at next year's convention Glengarry will have the honor of bringing home the Elsie Thomson Trophy.

The week end provided the young people of the province with inspiration and fellowship with outstanding leaders in charge of discussion groups. Periods of quiet time, rousing song services and the great Communion Service early Sunday morning were memorable events in the program. The great missionary rally on Sunday afternoon was addressed by M. A. Thangaraj, M.A., a native christian from Ederode, Madras, India, and Miss Margaret Kennedy, a returned missionary from the Bhil field in India.

Sportsmen's Tax Fund Used for Wildlife Aid

Only about one gunner in a hundred can tell you what has happened to the $9,000,000 that has been collected from sportsmen through the federal excise tax on ammunition and sporting arms.

Every dime of it has been earmarked for conservation and propagation since the Pittman-Robertson act was passed in 1937. The job that is being done for conservation with this fund represents the most important forward step in conservation since the Migratory Bird Treaty act of 1918.

Wildlife conservation and restoration in the United States is bound to continue during the war in spite of some curtailment of state funds due to the failure of hunters to purchase hunting licenses.

Army Tries Out Latest Plastic Training Plane

The Fairchild AT-13, two-engine crew trainer built entirely of Duralumin, except for certain members supporting the bombing, machine gun, camera and other equipment, has been successfully test flown at Hagerstown, Md., the war department announced.

The plane is one of the largest and fastest designed and built for training. The AT-13 was designed to meet the necessity of training bombing crews as a unit. It provides places for bombardier, pilot, co-pilot, navigator-radio man, machine gunner, and camera man.

The army air forces ordered the AT-13 in quantity from the design on the drawing board and production will proceed after completion of flight testing.

In the Deep, Dark Sea

It's hard to see deep down in the ocean; and under the difficult conditions of seeing Nature has evolved some curious creatures. One of the most remarkable of the deep sea animals is a type of angler fish that lives about a mile below the surface.

The difficulty of courtship in the darkness of the under-ocean has been solved by the angler fish in a novel way. The male fish are very, very small, and soon after they are born swim about in the dark.

And '30'

The phrase means, "the end," and there are various theories on its origin. The best known is that the first message sent by a telegraph operator to the first press association in this country, which was organized during the Civil war, contained 30 words.

Adobe House Refinished

An old adobe house in California has been decorated by two decorators for their own living quarters. Painting the adobe wall and wood paneling white, the adobe floor green, and slipcovering the couch and fireside chair in bright red and white cotton gave a smart effect to the living room.

Saarbrucken, Heart of Nazi's War Industries

Saarbrucken, frequent target of the RAF, is capital and largest city of the Saar. But more important to British bomber crews, it lies in the heart of Germany's coal and iron region whose industries keep German tanks, guns, and bombers at the battlefront of Europe.

Ninety per cent of the Saar's 800,000 population is engaged in industrial or commercial occupations. More than nine billion tons of coal lie beneath the region's wooded hills. Saarbrucken is a three-in-one city. In 1909, three towns, Saarbrucken, St. Johann, and Mystatt-Burbach were joined together as one municipality.

Saarbrucken in Roman times was a settlement built around a bridge across the Saar. (Saarbrucken means "Saar bridge.") The bridge was an important link in the much-used trade route between Metz, 49 miles northeast, and Worms.

Hitler's troops are the most recent of a long series of armies to occupy Saarbrucken. The Romans and the Gauls used the city as a base for warfare against Germanic tribes. The armies of Louis XIV and Napoleon fought there.

Good Tools Necessary

Good tools are necessary for the economical production of fuel wood, foresters of the department of agriculture say. For felling and bucking small-sized material, the new type saw with a tapered blade held under tension in a light tubular steel bow is very good.

'Walkie' Radios Devised For Atlantic City Cops

Development of portable police radio receiving sets for use by Atlantic City officers on foot or motorcycle, and organization of police radio reserves and a mobile radio unit by Santa Monica were reported today by the International City Managers' association.

Atlantic City's portable receiving set, developed after two years' experiment, permits an officer to keep in touch with headquarters at all times whether he is on fixed post duty, eating his lunch, or riding a motorcycle or street car.

The portable set weighs approximately 29 ounces and is 5 1/2 by 2 3/4 by 3 3/4 inches in size, with a small antenna which can be thrown over the shoulder or sewn into the officer's coat. The receiver has four tubes and uses a flashlight cell, good for four to six hours' service, for power.

Santa Monica, Calif., organized its mobile police radio unit, operated by a corps of police radio reserves, for emergency service in event regular police radio equipment is disabled or additional field equipment is required, according to the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Fourteen two-way police radio cars and a 50-watt portable transmitter installed in a house trailer make up equipment of the reserve mobile unit, with the house trailer to be used to supplement the main station or serve as a police sub-station.

12 California Cities Pool Their Police for Defense

Police facilities of 12 California cities have been pooled under a mutual aid plan designed to assure the cities adequate protection in event of a war emergency.

Each city in the agreement maintains permanently in reserve at least one "police unit" of one automobile, one regular police officer and five auxiliary policemen. Each unit is placed at disposal of and subject to emergency call of the law and order co-ordinator of the county civilian defense office.

Purpose of the mutual police aid agreement by the cities, all in San Mateo county, suburban peninsula area south of San Francisco, is to create a reserve supply of police facilities to meet any local police emergency arising within any of the communities or within any war industries or installations in the county.

The 12 cities are Atherton, Belmont, Burlingame, Colma, Daly City, Hillborough, Menlo Park, Redwood City, San Bruno, San Carlos, San Mateo and South San Francisco. Combined population of the 12 cities is around 85,000 as compared to total county population of approximately 112,000.

Printing Improvement

The department of the treasury says that the decision to use the seal on the back of the $1 silver certificate was made in connection with the perfection of a new process by which signatures of the secretary of the treasury and the treasurer of the United States are imprinted when the notes are numbered and sealed, rather than in connection with the face printing. This is a highly desirable improvement in printing methods, on which technical experts at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing had been working for a considerable period.

Clean Fighters

Soldiers and sailors not only look cleaner than most civilians, they really are cleaner. According to the army and navy supply departments, they use approximately twice as much soap as the average man out of uniform.

The quartermaster general's office estimates the soap requirements for military personnel at 2 1/2 pounds per man per month, or 30 pounds a year. The consumption of soap in the United States is 25 pounds a year on a per capita basis, but this means all soap uses, including millions of pounds that enter into various industrial processes.

Colonial Oyster Fishing

Throughout the Colonies the new settlers took to oyster fishing with such enthusiasm that conservation measures were necessary even before the Revolution. In 1766 Rhode Island enacted laws "for the preservation of the oyster" to keep the coastal beds from being scraped bare.

BRIDES-ELECT FETED Mr and Mrs Garnet Campbell entertained some twenty young people at their home at Athol on Monday evening of last week, honoring two popular young ladies, brides of this autumn, Miss Elsie Campbell whose marriage to Mr Alex MacKinnon of East St. Elmo took place in Gordon Church on Saturday and Miss Mae Dixon, whose marriage to Mr Peter Le Gallais, takes place Saturday.

Brief addresses conveying the good wishes of the assembled guests to the prospective brides, were read, and presentation of a set of electric boudoir lamps to Miss Campbell and of china cups and saucers to Miss Dixon were made. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by several of the young ladies. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and was most enjoyable.

The ladies of Athol were hostesses at the home of Mr and Mrs J. W. Campbell, Tuesday evening to some sixty guests honoring Miss Elsie Campbell prior to her marriage. The rooms were beautifully decorated in a colour scheme of pink and white streamers tapers and flowers for the occasion.

The guest of honour was escorted to a beautifully decorated bridal chair and presented with an upholstered bedroom chair, a clothes hamper and a substantial sum of money.

Though taken completely by surprise, Miss Campbell expressed her appreciation and sincere thanks to all for their good wishes and gifts and invited them to visit her in her new home. An interesting and entertaining programme of vocal and instrumental music, readings and contests with Mrs. Sinclair, in charge was much enjoyed. The hostess, assisted by the Athol ladies served a delicious lunch and a happy evening was spent.

Reason for 'Doughboy' The nickname doughboy allegedly had its origin in the Revolutionary war when, following the old British army custom, each man of the colonial army was served three or four miniature loaves of bread a day, which usually were under-baked. These loaves were dubbed "doughboys" and by the end of the war the name was applied to the men themselves.

The appellation was revived during the Civil war, partly because of its revolutionary usage, but also because of the ridicule attached to the large brass buttons on the uniforms of the infantrymen, which were said to resemble dumplings.

One authority suggests the pipe clay which was used to whiten uniforms, causing them to become very soggy in the rain, as a possible name source.

March 17, 493 March 17 is the traditional day on which St. Patrick died at Saul (Sabbal), County Down, March 17, 493, at the age of 106. He was buried at the chieftain's dun, or fort, two miles outside the town. From all parts, it is recorded, bishops, priests and people gathered around his tomb to honor the venerable father of their faith. For more than 14 centuries, this spirit of reverencing the memory of Patrick has survived in the hearts of Irish men and women in every part of the world.

The greatest of St. Patrick's miracles was driving the venomous reptiles out of Ireland, and rendering the Irish soil, for ever after, so obnoxious to serpents, that they die on touching it. Colgan seriously relates that St. Patrick accomplished this feat by beating a drum.

W.M.S. Sectional Meeting Kirk Hill

The Annual Sectional Meeting of District No 7 of the Glengarry Presbyterian of the United Church of Canada was held at Kirk Hill on October 16th with all auxiliaries represented. Owing to the recent illness of Mrs. Reid Vice president, the chair was taken by Mrs. Grey.

The meeting opened by singing the hymn "Christ for the World" and Scripture reading from Romans 10, verses 1-15.

Mrs. Grey then very graciously welcomed the guest speakers—Mrs. Atcheson of Cornwall and Mrs. Collins a returned missionary from Africa; also the visiting auxiliaries. She stressed the theme—"Christ for the World."

Encouraging reports were received from Mission Bands and Baby Bands. After which Mrs. J. R. McLeod gave a report of the School for Leaders held at Edgemoor. The keynote of which was. This is the time for action cooperation and greater fellowship.

Mrs. Atcheson gave a report of the Dominion Board annual meeting held in Toronto where one hundred and fifty-eight delegates from across Canada represented the entire W.M.S. membership of 178,792. She pictured the proceedings so vividly, the audience felt as though they had been present and experienced the challenge to action.

Mrs. Collins then told of her work in Africa, showing how Christianity releases the Africans from a life of fear of evil spirits with their attendant witch doctors and magic, to a normal happy life with a higher standard of living.

The meeting closed with the Benediction by Rev. W. D. Reid. A social hour with lunch followed. Mrs. Reid and Mrs. R. Fraser moved and seconded a vote of thanks to all who contributed to the success of the meeting.

MISSING....

Bottles, jars, all sorts of glass containers are MISSING! The warehouse shelf, the wholesaler's storeroom, your retailer's shop... they're all feeling the bottle shortage. The shelves that used to be packed with full bottles, jars and containers are now empty—very empty. Your manufacturer and dealer are depending on you to return these empty bottles so that he can refill them again. You depend on him to deliver the goods you need. Doesn't it seem reasonable for you to help each other out? Remember, no bottle means no refill. Please gather up and return to the dealer ALL your empty bottles today.

WHY A BOTTLE SHORTAGE?

Canadian glass factories normally produce MILLIONS of bottles every month. The vital ingredient in bottle making is soda ash. The only big Canadian soda ash factory was strike-bound for months. Stocks of soda ash have been used up... bottle factories are closed down... bottles are not being made today. Beverage bottlers and all producers of bottled liquids must have your bottles back to keep going. Bottling plants will close down too... if your empties are not returned.

Let's do THIS Together, too!

The new Canada Savings Bonds are here because most Canadians who bought Victory Bonds during the war said they would like to buy similar government securities with their savings after the war.

There will be no organized house-to-house selling campaign. But your Bank of Nova Scotia Branch will gladly give you full information about Canada Savings Bonds, and arrange your purchase if you like. Let's talk it over together.

Cost-of-living data is from Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Electricity costs are average for Hydro in Ontario.

Prices! Have they got you worried? Well, here is one price to feel good about. You can buy more Hydro energy for one cent today than at any time in history!

Compared with the dips and peaks of general living costs, the cost of Hydro service to Ontario consumers has come down constantly since 1914 . . . even dropping during war years. Today one cent buys about twice as much as in 1923 . . . almost five times as much as in 1914.

Think of the work that one cent's worth of electricity can do today, in an average Ontario home. It will give electric refrigeration for 24 hours . . . cook a full meal for two people on an electric range . . . operate a washing machine for two hours, an electric ironer for half an hour, a hand iron for an hour . . . light a 100-watt lamp for 10 hours, or run an average radio all day.

Few people in the world have electricity available to them at such low cost as prevails in Ontario, and as a result, electricity is extensively used. Present demands tax supply facilities to capacity since Hydro construction and expansion were restricted by wartime necessity. Present shortage of materials and equipment makes it impossible to rapidly carry out expansion already planned. Until these conditions are relieved, use this economical servant wisely.

IN RECENT ADVERTISEMENTS we have been suggesting that the way to save money is to have a plan and stick to it. Now comes this Dominion Government savings plan, ready-made for your needs. It enables you to add to your present holdings of Victory Bonds by the same tried-and-true method you used during the war; paying for your purchase in cash, if you like; but better still by convenient instalments, as you earn.

You found out for yourself, with every Victory Bond you bought, that this is a savings system that works . . . convincing proof that you can "save some for yourself."

Simply call at your Royal Bank branch, sign an application for one or more bonds, to be paid for by convenient instalments spread over a year if you wish. Keep up the war-time saving habit. Invest in Canada Savings Bonds.

CHAPTER IX

So had they all—Abby, the Mileses and herself, but on Richard had fallen the responsibility of establishing its medical reputation.

His perception had helped build that. The case of Rodney Becker because of its rarity and his parent's social position had received much publicity in newspapers all over the country. Richard had been quite correct in diagnosing the trouble not as rheumatic fever but as a duct that normally closed in babyhood, but had failed in Rodney's case; thereby putting a strain on the heart.

The little boy had been flown to another city where an expert surgeon had performed the operation. In a few weeks Rodney would be able to run and play as other children; thereby releasing the terrible inner tension that Janet had feared might affect him psychologically.

After that, applications had come pouring in. Richard groaned as he wrote letters of refusal.

"Janet, what am I going to tell these distracted parents?" he said bitterly. "That we have only ten beds no more room?"

"No more money, no more hands," she added.

"Their letters are so pitiful—if they were here I'm sure they'd be on their knees."

"I know how you felt, Richard, but if we take any more than ten patients they won't receive proper care."

"You're right, of course. But it gives me a wrench to think of all these children. Lord, why aren't there more homes in Oakhart—or more money so that we could build an addition."

The countryside was buried under two feet of firmly packed snow. Dozens of childishly constructed forts and snow men stood guard under the gnarled scraggy apple trees and the tracks of sleds crisscrossed a gentle slope beyond the house.

Almost a month had passed since Christmas.

It was good hearing their voices again, their gossip about the big hospital, their teasing remarks. With Richard they were friendly but deferential as though his eight or nine years more experience entitled him to a place apart.

After a time Abby brought in a tray of turkey sandwiches and was introduced all around. They liked the brusque, out-spoken, moon-faced woman immediately and were calling her "Aunt Abby" before they left.

But the moment with Richard that

New Car Ferry To Be Operated By C.N.R.

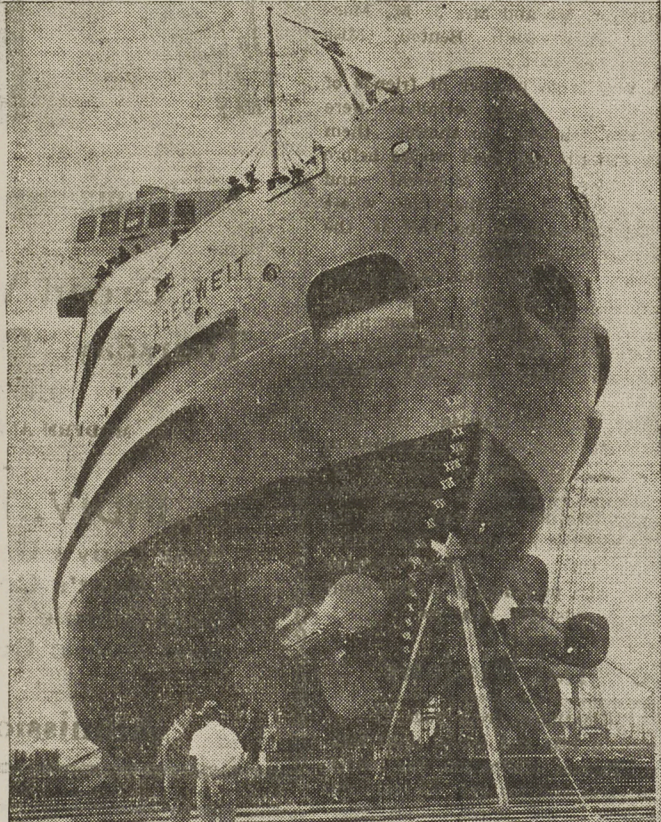

THE world's largest ice-breaking car ferry, the Abegweit, built for the Canadian Government to be operated by the Canadian National Railways in the Prince Edward Island service between Cape Tormentine, N.B., and Port Borden, P.E.I., was launched recently at the Marine Industries shipbuilding yards at Sorel, Que. The new ferry, when completed, will be the most modern and powerful afloat.

The Abegweit will be considerably larger than any ship previously built for this service, being 372½ feet long, 61 feet wide and having a 7,000 gross tonnage. A five-deck vessel of all welded steel plate construction, she will accommodate 950 passengers, 60 automobiles and 19 railway cars. Her speed will be 16½ knots.

Eight 1,500 horsepower diesel-electric generating units will power four motors, each operating a propeller, two forward and two astern. The blades of the propellers, which are 13 feet in diameter, are made of a heavy thickness of cast nickel steel to withstand the additional heavy work as ice choppers. The four blades of each propeller are bolted on the hub and are adjustable in pitch. Each can be individually replaced.

Modern in every way, the Abegweit will be completely equipped with radar and ship-to-shore telephone. The propulsion motors will be directly operated by four engine-controllers located in the pilot house. Telegraphing to the engine room will be a thing of the past for the new car ferry's crew.

car ferry, which will go into Canadian National Railways service when the work on its luxurious and up-to-date passenger accommodation is completed, is shown in the top photograph immediately after the launching. In the lower picture, the Abegweit is seen just before she was lowered to the water.

Janet had hoped for was shattered. By the time the last "Merry Christmas" had floated across the cold air, they were both too tired to say anything more than goodnight.

"Janet, I want to talk to you." She looked up from the analysis she was making, suddenly anxious. Richard's voice sounded too serious.

"What is it, Richard?"

"I've been thinking of all the letters I've received since the recovery of little Rodney Becker. All those children that aren't getting the proper care—I can't get it off my mind."

"I know, it is upsetting. But the world is full of unfortunate children, Richard—we can't help them all."

"No, but we can help more than we are."

"How?"

"By building a wing onto Oakhart."

"A wing! But, Richard, that takes money."

"I know it does—a good deal of it. It would put Oakhart on the basis of a regular hospital; it would mean about thirty patients instead of ten, additional nurses, servants and cooks."

"Exactly. How would we finance it?"

He leaned forward resting his large hand on the white enamel examination table. His eyes searched her face but seemed uncertain of what they found. "We could mortgage Oakhart."

"Then you don't like the idea?" Deep lines of disappointment formed around his mouth.

"Yes, I do like the idea, but . . ."

"But what? You must have some objection."

"I don't think Mr. Hartigan would like the idea of a mortgage."

His hands dropped to his sides. "Well, it's your property."

Scarlet crept over her face, lighting her hair to pale gold.

"Don't say that Richard. We went into this as a partnership."

"Of course, my dear, but legally Oakhart is yours."

"And yours. In this state half of what a wife has is her husband's." She stared at him curiously. "Didn't you know that, Richard?"

His face had paled. "My Lord, what must they be saying about me at the hospital! And you, Janet, what must you have thought of me?"

His embarrassment amused her. "I married you. Didn't I?"

"Yes . . ." he said slowly, "and I'm beginning to wonder why."

Because I love you and believe in you she wanted to say. "Because I thought we'd make a good team," was what came out. "How much would it cost, Richard?"

"About fifteen thousand."

"I'll go to see Mr. Prentice. He may think of something."

Janet entered Mr. Prentice's luxurious offices with a feeling of trepidation.

"Ah, Mrs. Eynon—what can I do for you."

She remained standing, facing him across formidable expanse of polished mahogany desk and a set of very dry law books.

"Mr. Prentice, how much would you say Oakhart was worth?"

He frowned. "About sixty thousand dollars, including the land. But by the terms of Mr. Hartigan's will it can't be put for sale for ten years."

"I realize that, but I was wondering if it would be considered a good risk from the viewpoint of a bank?"

His thin, bloodless lips tightened into an even thinner line . . .

"Are you in debt, Mrs. Eynon?"

His eyes seemed to say, I knew Hartigan was making a mistake when he left his place to this incompetent young woman. It's easy to see she hasn't a brain in her head.

"Not yet—" Janet said slowly.

"Not yet?" Just what do you mean by that?"

"My husband has a dream, Mr. Prentice—I'd like to make that dream come true if it's possible."

He stared at her as though she had suddenly announced that the world was coming to an end on a certain date, then motioned her to a chair.

As she talked, J. D. Prentice seemed to relax. Some of the lines in his thin face softened and his eyes were less severe. Janet realized suddenly that she was talking to a man who was under a great strain of some sort.

"I can't alter the will," he said now, "even though it's possible Sean Hartigan might have approved your plan. There's no way you can borrow on the tax money either, I'm afraid."

"I won't put a mortgage on Oakhart," she said firmly. "That seems to strike at the very core of the estate itself. I'm sure Mr. Hartigan wouldn't like that."

He looked mildly pleased at that remark. "Suppose I drive out today and see Oakhart—I may be able to suggest something."

The white myriad windowed facade of Cosmopolitan hospital loomed before Janet. She felt a strange nostalgic lump swell in her throat. It was absurd she told herself, to be so sentimental about this great edifice that was running efficiently as a well-oiled machine, yet it was here that she had come to know Richard and here that Cliff Bronson had more or less gone out of her life.

She moved down the corridor, to his office and knocked on the inner door. His "Come in" was bored.

"Janet!"

"In person—not a ghost."

"I've been so used to having school children troop in here all morning that I thought you were another. I almost said, 'Say Ah!'"

"If it'll make you feel more professional I'll go through the motions."

"Haven't you been doing any operations, Cliff?"

"Only a few since you left. They handed me a large slice of your husband's practice. Jane you don't know how I hate him for leaving here, aside from the fact that he took you with him."

"Your chance will come, Cliff."

"It had better come soon. I found a grey hair today—it was a terrific shock, I can tell you." He laughed at himself then instantly sobered.

"How are things with you, Janet?"

"About the same. There was an evening when I thought something might happen to change them, but Naomi appeared with a carload of internes, and that ended it."

"She's an attractive infant," remarked Cliff, "but I'm afraid she rather fancies herself as a femme fatale."

"In a way, Naomi is my reason for coming in to see you."

"Oh, oh." His eyes twinkled.

"Do you need a reason, Janet?"

"I'm afraid so, now. Anyway, she is the reason this time." "Do I smell a plot?"

"Not much of one. She's invited herself to spend Sunday with us. Dr. and Mrs. Farquhar are going to be out of town. I wondered if you wouldn't drive her out and have Sunday dinner with us?"

What am I supposed to be doing—keeping Naomi away from Richard?"

A New Pattern For The World

A new idea of Empire and the whole question of world imperialism was given when the British Parliamentary Labor Whip, C. J. Simmons, spoke recently at the European Assembly for Moral Re-Armament, at Caux sur Montreux, Switzerland.

In the past Mr. Simmons declared, Britain's feeling of superiority and her desire for power for power's sake had often prevented her from winning the hearts of the people she was trying to lead. Just walking out of the country, he said, leaving nothing but repercussions, was no solution to the problem of India. "We have got to stay in the hearts of the peoples in these countries we have wronged in the past. We have got to win their hearts by showing repentance for what we have done in the past. We have got to inspire them to greater efforts themselves by the force of the example of this kind of change in us."

In this way, he said, Great Britain would be working not to "extend the bounds of material Empire", but of "a spiritual Empire" where "our united hearts and minds will work together under God's direction to build a great new Empire in the future—an Empire where people of all colors, creeds and races will cooperate and work just to one end—the happiness of their fellow human beings and the establishment of God's Kingdom throughout the earth."

This is a new pattern of world statesmanship through which we could indeed fashion a new world.

TIME BOMBS

Unless the nations soon begin to live under God they will soon again begin to live underground.

As for the future, unless we raise our moral standards there is no use raising our hopes.

The mind is like a parachute. It works best when its open.

Only a common God can give men a common goal.

Where self does not die the home does.

Belgian Congo Capital Is Marvel in Jungle Center

Mention of the Belgian Congo presents a mental picture of impenetrable jungle, wild beasts, and natives who feast on human flesh.

There are jungles, wild beasts, and tribes still inclined to augment their bill of fare with an occasional rival enemy or unwary traveler in the vast Belgian colony, but the American soldiers just arrived at Leopoldville will be amazed that the colonial capital is a modern city with a normal population of 30,000.

Three hundred and fifty miles up the Congo river, the soldier boy from Keokuk or Kalamazoo will find here electrically lighted streets, palm fringed, and lined with brick and cement buildings. Invited to dine in a Leopoldville home, he will be cooled by electric fans, and served food from an electric refrigerator.

The capital is the nerve center of the colony's economic life. Eastern termini of the recently established trans-Atlantic plane route from Miami, Fla., it also has air connection with every commercially important colonial settlement.

Usefulness of the air service is apparent in the quantity of gold and diamonds shipped from Congo mines by plane. Falls in the section of the river between the city and the Atlantic outlet drop the water level 800 feet and balk steamer navigation. North of the city the Congo is navigable for more than a thousand miles. The colony spreads over an area almost one-third as large as the United States. In square mileage it is roughly equivalent to the aggregate of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, California, Nevada and Montana.

French Guiana Noted for Notorious Penal Island

Before the war, gold, sugar, rum, hides, fish glue, and various woods were exported from French Guiana, South America. The banana market was expanding. Growers of maize, sweet potatoes, and cassava, or the most part consumed their products themselves.

In a move to open up the interior the French government, in 1930, made the hinterland a separate territory, named it Imini, and left its supervision to the colonial governor. Development was made difficult by the lack of good roads and navigable waterways, and by the death of workers able to stand the heat.

French Guiana is best known as a penal settlement. For almost a century convicts have been sent from France to the Guiana mainland or to one of the penal islands off the coast. Devil's Island is a green bit of tree-capped land about 27 miles from the mainland. It was reserved for political prisoners sentenced to life imprisonment. At times it has held less than a dozen convicts. Its ill-fame has been epitomized in its other name, "the dry guillotine."

First Time Used

Mr. Albert Matthews has shown that the expression Indian Summer does not occur anywhere either in printed books or manuscripts until the year 1794; but at that time it was in use throughout the Atlantic states. The popular belief that Indian Summer weather was predicted by the native Indians in conversation with the first European settlers finds no documentary corroboration, and the idea that the term Indian Summer was employed by the early settlers seems to be a myth. In general, neither this term nor anything corresponding to it is to be found in any Indian language. The term Indian Summer in its present usage was introduced into England from America. In 1778 Horace Walpole used the same expression, but he evidently had in mind the intense heats of the midsummer weather in India and the West Indies.

'Gibraltar of the North'

Victim of geographical position, Luxembourg's destiny as a stadium for the contests of warring neighbors goes back to the ancient Huns and Goths. It has been overrun by the Romans, Burgundians, Spaniards, Austrians, French, and Prussians. For centuries before the treaty of 1867, the capital of the state was known as the "Gibraltar of the North" because of its stoutly fortified cliffs.

The first shot fired on to neutral ground in 1914 was fired into the vineyard village of Remich on Luxembourg's southeastern frontier. In 1919 General Pershing and the dough boys of the American army of occupation were heartily welcomed by the "relieved citizens of the re-empowered state."

Chartered by Congress

The American National Red Cross is not a part of the government, but it was chartered by congress, by an act of 1705, "to furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war in accordance with the convention of Geneva; to act in matters of voluntary relief and in accord with the military and naval authorities as a medium of communication between the American people and their army and navy; to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace, and to apply the same in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other great national calamities, and devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."
