To Build New Bridge Over The Garry

A new bridge over the Garry River on Dominion street, designed to ease Main street traffic, will be built this summer. It is decided at Monday's meeting of Town Council. The item was incorporated into appropriations for the Roads department which will also include resurfacing of some streets, it is expected.

It was pointed out that all the forms used in building the Bishop street bridge last fall, can be used again and with other materials now on hand will cut the cost of the bridge by from $800. to $1000. Railings on the Bishop street bridge are to be completed and an early start made on the second structure.

A request by the Trophy Committee of the Glengarry Highland Games for a grant of $100. was debated at some length and it was finally decided to make a $25. grant.

Mrs. J.A. Raymond Williamstown. Dies

A widely known and highly respected resident of Williamstown Mrs. Johnson A. Raymond died at Cornwall General Hospital, Wednesday evening, May 5th. Mrs. Raymond had not been well for the past two years and had been seriously ill for the past two months. She was conveyed to hospital the afternoon of her death.

Born in Charlottetown township 50 years ago last October 2, she was a daughter of John P. MacDonald and his wife Barbara Johnson her maiden name being Elizabeth J. MacDonald. She was a member of St. Andrew's United Church, Williamstown and of the women's organizations of that church, and will be greatly missed.

Besides her husband, she leaves two sons and three daughters—LAC Anson Raymond, of the R.C.A.F., Rockcliffe, Ottawa; John K. Raymond, on the S.S. Surewater, somewhere on the lakes or river; Miss Barbara Raymond, Miss Guelda Raymond, and Miss Kay Raymond all at home.

She also leaves three brothers and a sister—Robert L. MacDonald, Arvida, Que.; Alex MacDonald, Cornwall; Jack MacDonald and Mrs. Daniel Barrigan, Lancaster.

Attended by many friends, the funeral was held from her late home in Williamstown, Saturday afternoon to St. Andrew's United Church and cemetery.

The service was conducted by Rev. G. W. Irvine, minister, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. U. Tanner, of Lancaster. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Lead, Kindly Light." Mr. Irvine spoke words of comfort to the sorrowing mother, husband and members of the family.

Pall bearers were Marwood Grant, Tupper MacDonald, Alex MacBain, Wesley Johnson, Gordon MacNaughton and Peter MacNaughton.

Relatives and friends were present from Cornwall, Lancaster, Montreal, Noranda, Que., Chicago, Ill., Arvida, Que., and St. Raphaels.

Many beautiful floral tributes were placed about the casket by relatives and friends. The family received numerous messages of condolence.

Pauline Lefebvre

St. John's Ambulance first-aid course. There were 23 contestants, and all were successful.

Less pleasing to us are the final examinations scheduled for June 8th.

Have you heard about the "Big Noise" from A.H.S.? We don't mean to be insulting but our Pipe Band is certainly blowing its head off... and making a good job of it too. It is to play for the cadets on inspection day.

King To Retire After Convention

Prime Minister Declares Intention At Liberal Gathering In Montreal

Prime Minister King told a Liberal Party rally at Montreal, Saturday that he had "lingered too long" and the August Convention of his party would be the proper time to leave with the least inconvenience to Government and party.

Mr. King paid a surprise visit to the 50th anniversary of the Reform Club, founded by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In his 20-minute address, he said that his successor would need some time "to get into harness" before facing a Federal election. This remark was taken by observers to mean there would be no Federal general election this year.

Speaking to a gathering of 1,500 Liberals, at which head table guests were External Affairs Minister St. Laurent, often referred to as Mr. King's successor, and other cabinet notables, he said his successor should get a chance to get into harness, and get around to know and to be known to Canadians in all parts of the country before the next general election takes place.

Mr. King made clear that he was leaving the office of Prime Minister after the Liberal Party convention next August.

This decision was not made hurriedly, he said "I believe it to be profoundly in the interests of the country, the party and in my own interests."

The 74-year-old Prime Minister said he felt his presence might handicap instead of help the Liberal Party and the country.

Glee Club Concert Enjoyable Event

An enjoyable event, Friday night, was the concert staged in Alexander Hall by the Glee Club of Alexandria High School. There was a large and appreciative audience to hear the members of the Glee Club in choruses and solos, as well as guest artists, three former students at A.H.S.

Most entertaining, too, were the talks given by the six top winners in an elocution contest which had been participated in by every pupil in the school. Ann McIntosh, who spoke on "personality," was awarded first place by the judges who commended all six speakers for their very fine efforts.

Donald Racine proved a very capable chairman for the programme which got underway with a chorus by the Glee Club under the direction of the instructor, Miss Catherine MacRae. Recognition of her work with the Glee Club was made with the presentation by Irene Viau of a corsage of yellow carnations to Miss MacRae.

Mr. Campbell Fraser, B.A., of the teaching staff, explained for the benefit of the audience how the six finalists in public speaking had been chosen. Every student had delivered a talk in his own classroom and those judged best had then competed further until three pupils representing Grades IX and X and three from the top grades had been selected to speak at the concert.

Sojists for the evening were Miss Monique Lafleche, a student, and three ex-pupils, Misses Beatrice MacDonald and Ida Morris, and at the piano Gordon Fleming, who demonstrated that he has made great strides in his musical studies at Ottawa. The songsters, too, showed much talent in their numbers.

Mrs. Lauchie MacDonald, Mrs. Gabriel Aubry and D. J. Hynes, Inspector of Public Schools for Glengarry had the difficult task of judging the speakers and Mr. Hynes proved most constructive in his criticisms when announcing the results. The ranking given the speakers was: 1st—Ann McIntosh; 2nd—Margaret Macleod; and Boyce MacDougall (tied) 4th—Lorraine Lavigne; 5th—Ronald Shirliff; 6th—Evelyn Johnson.

Principal J. T. Smith spoke briefly on the work of the Glee Club and welcomed the audience on behalf of the student body. Miss Pauline Lefebvre delivered a short talk on the Glee Club, relating something of its history and its revival.

Accompanists for the evening were: Miss Margaret Macleod, Miss Lise Quintal, Mrs. J. J. MacDonald and Mrs. D. M. Macleod.

The loss to Mr. MacEwen included some 400 chickens and considerable lumber and building supplies. A car in the Welsh garage was also lost.

The alarm was sounded about 5:30 a.m. and the volunteer brigade was quickly on the scene to prevent spread of the blaze.

Lacrosse Boys Play Next Week

League Schedule Sees Alexandrians Playing In Ottawa, Tuesday

The two Quebec entries in the Interprovincial Lacrosse League got off to a flying start, Sunday when Montreal Canadiens downed Cornwall Flyers 12-8 at Montreal, and Quebec Montagnards defeated Ottawa 15-10 in Quebec. Alexandria goes to Ottawa for its first test on Tuesday and will be at home to Montreal Canadiens, Saturday, May 22nd, if Glengarry Gardens is by that time in shape for playing.

Practise sessions for the local Maroons are still being held on the High School grounds because of the condition of the grounds in the Gardens which still is not entirely free of frost. A tractor and grader were in use this week to hurry the drying out. Meanwhile Mr. Alex Da Prato is busy readying the Gardens for the lacrosse season. Flooring is being laid and stands are to go up immediately along the south side.

The local team got down to intensive practise this week, journeying to Cornwall, Tuesday night for a session under the lights. Five Cornwall players turned out with the Maroons, Wednesday night, and Frank McCormick should have a promising aggregation within a short time.

Meeting Tuesday night, the local Lacrosse committee decided to leave the running of the Maroons in the hands of Alex Da Prato while they concentrate their energies on developing the young players. Sticks will be secured for distribution and later junior and juveniles games will be arranged. The committee is sponsoring a dance in Green Valley Pavilion next Friday night.

Liberal And Prog. Conservative Leaders To Speak In Riding

Oliver To Be At Vankleek Hill Next Friday Night, While Premier Drew To Address Afternoon Meeting Here Saturday

Football Team Practising Steadily

Alexandria's new entry in the Glengarry Football League is rounding into shape with nightly practices under playing-coach Alden MacMillan. He reports a good number of prospective players turning out and arrangements have been completed for an exhibition game with Dunvegan prior to the league opener.

Much organization work remains to be done before the local team starts play and a canvass of our businessmen is to be made this week. Football shoes and other indispensable items must be secured and a field readied for play. We understand the field immediately west of the Monastery has been secured for play. It is to be hoped generous support will be accorded the canvassers.

The complete schedule for the Glengarry League has reached our desk and will be published next week. Pine Grove and McCrimmon open the season May 24th at McCrimmon.

Funeral Of D. A. Williams Held

The funeral of the late Donald Alexander Williams of Montreal was held to St. Finnan's cemetery, here, Friday morning, May 7th. Rev. R. J. MacDonald, rector, said the prayers at the grave.

A native of Greenfield who had resided in Montreal throughout his adult lifetime, Mr. Williams died, January 28th at Montreal, aged 65. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Williams and had been employed with the Canadian National Railways until a few months prior to his passing.

One sister, Mrs. A. A. McMaster of Montreal, survives.

Among Montrealeers who accompanied the body here, were his sister, Mrs. McMaster, Mrs. J. I. Hunter, Catherine and Bruce Hunter, Angus Daniel Williams and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. MacDonald.

Lost Husband In Car Accident

Leaders of both the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties, Farquhar Oliver and Premier George Drew, will address Public Meetings in Glengarry next week end while touring Eastern Ontario constituencies.

Mr. Oliver will not come to Alexandria but he will address a Public Meeting in Vankleek Hill, next Friday evening, May 21.

Premier Drew comes to the Armouries, Alexandria, next Saturday, May 22nd, for an afternoon meeting at 2 o'clock.

Relatives and friends in Glengarry have learned with regret of the death of Mr. Ivan Smith, who was killed instantly on April 28th, in an automobile accident at Clare, Michigan. Details of the accident are not available.

The late Mr. Smith was the husband of the former Mayme MacLeod a daughter of the late William and Louisa MacLeod, lifelong residents of Dalkeith. In addition to his widow, he leaves four sons, two daughters and six grandchildren.

The funeral was held Sunday, May 2nd to the Methodist Church in Harrison, Mich. Among relatives of Mrs. Smith attending the funeral were two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Jack Rowley, Mrs. Traftin Smith and Colin MacLeod with members of their families from Detroit; her aunt Mrs. Bella MacKinnon and her cousin Mrs. Lewis White of Flint Mich.

To Erect Garage

The old barns in rear of the Bishop's House are being razed this week and on the spot is to be erected a 4-car private garage. Mr. Isaac Boisvenue is in charge of the work.

Presbyterial W.M.S. Met At Aultsville

Mrs. W. S. Atchison presided throughout the sessions of the twenty-second annual meeting of Glengarry Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society held in Aultsville United Church, May 6 and 7. Miss Gertrude Weagant, president of the Aultsville Auxiliary, welcomed the delegates to Trinity United Church. There were 149 registered delegates of whom 80 were billeted by the ladies of Aultsville. The theme for the convention was The Word of God in Action, with emphasis on the fact that it must be done by me.

In her presidential address, Mrs. Atchison spoke of builders of tomorrow's world, pointing out that a writer who had eleven years ago written a book "Building for Tomorrow" has written a new book "Tomorrow is Here". After a comprehensive survey of world missions, Mrs. Atchison said: May we catch the urgency of the task and rise to meet the challenge of the hour: It must be done now by me.

Special speakers were Mrs. D. E. Carson, Ottawa, a former president of Montreal and Ottawa Conference Branch, and Miss Ruth Churchill, B. E. E. of St. Columba House, Montreal. Following Mrs. Atchison's survey of world missions, Mrs. Carson gave a very practical address on how we administer our own particular part of this work. On Friday afternoon, she spoke on Pentecost in our day, tracing the journey westward of the Bible, sent forward by the power of the Holy Spirit through the hearts and minds of brilliant men. She reminded us that we are stewards of the Bible. Are we worthy of that stewardship. On Thursday evening Miss Churchill appealed for more missionary workers, telling of the great need in all countries. The time is now, Tomorrow is too late; They will have gone another way. It must begin with me, she said.

We are the channels through which God can work. Prayer reaches to the uttermost part of the earth. Friday morning Miss Churchill told of the work done in various community missions.

NOTHING OFFICIAL

Stories in circulation about an impending conference of the Prime Ministers of the British Commonwealth of Nations have aroused deep interest in this capital but it is now learned that there has been no communication of an official character between Ottawa and London regarding such a meeting.

HINTS ON RATES

I would say that we should not reduce the postage rates too soon for this reason "said Postmaster General Ernest Bertrand." In the United States immediately after the war their ordinary letter rates were reduced from three cents to two cents and from four cents to three cents. The air mail postage rate was also reduced. The result was that at the end of last year there was a deficit of $442,000,000."

Nevertheless, there is a growing opinion along Parliament Hill among observers that the lower postage rates in the United States compared with Canadian rates is causing much discontent in this country, especially since the planes in Canada are only partially loaded now and the American air mail rates are definitely lower

NORTHERN DEFENCES

When he was asked about a statement in the press to the effect that $100 million is being spent by the United States for the improvements of northern defences, including areas in Canadian territory, Defence Minister Brooks Claxton pointed out that, under a declaration already made in Parliament by Premier King as well as an identical statement made at the same time in the United States arrangements for defence cooperation between the two countries which had been in force during the war were continued.

Under those arrangements it is expressly stated that any activities in either country will be completely under the control of the country in which it is done. Mr. Claxton stated, and will be done only after an express arrangement is made with respect to that work. If any work is being done in Canada, it is in accordance with that arrangement.

NO SIGNIFICANT CHANGES

It is evident from the general reaction of the business public across Canada that many Canadians are expecting a tremendous "boom" in purchases resulting from the operations of the European Recovery Program and "off shore" buying in this country for the ERP, with considerable opinion growing that the ERP would soon be responsible for easing the import bans imposed by the Canadian Government due to the shortage of U.S. dollars. However no early results along these lines seem to be expected by those who should know along Parliament Hill, with the importance of this being apparent.

It is not expected however either the volume or direction of Canadian trade will be significantly altered by this development from that of recent years, said External Affairs Minister Louis St. Laurent, indicating that a sizeable proportion of the ERP funds which the U.S. Congress has authorized will be used for purchases outside the U.S. such as in Canada but these latter so-called off-shore purchases may only enable us to continue to send to Western Europe commodities which otherwise because of our own dollar difficulties we would have had to direct to countries that could provide us with dollars or goods in return.

In view of the expected extent of U.S. dollar purchases in Canada under ERP, it has been suggested that we might now be expected to contribute further substantial direct financial assistance to Western Europe, Mr. St. Laurent stressed. However our U.S. dollar reserves are still lower than they should be.

In other words Mr. St. Laurent on behalf of the Canadian Government simply said that Canada must have a surplus in our international balance of payments before Canada can even consider the extension of any further financial aid to Western Europe. In order to secure such a surplus we must be emphasized in no uncertain language, among other things expand our exports, continue to do without many of our traditional imports from dollar countries and secure more of our imports from countries in the sterling area.

Bluntly this means to a veteran observer backstage in this capital that, even with the ERP providing Canada with U.S. dollars now, no early easing of the Canadian Government's austerity program or import controls on U.S. goods can be expected.

WATCHING COMMUNISTS

I am not in position to make a statement about the program of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in watching Communists in Canada, said Justice Minister J. L. Ilsley in the House of Commons. I do not think it would be desirable for me to make such a statement in the House. It is well known that for many years the R.C.M.P. has been keenly alive to the possibilities of subversive action and I think they are as much alive today as they ever were, perhaps more so.

New Plaids Seen In Week End Show

Because the Columbia Studio was anxious not to offend existing Scottish clans, the research and costume departments of the film company literally led a "checkered" existence during preparations for the making of "The Swordsman." Technicolor saga of two lovers who loved so madly even an age-old feud in 18th Century Scotland couldn't keep them apart. Starring Larry Parks in the title role, with Ellen Drew in the principal featured part, "The Swordsman", is this week end at the Garry Theatre.

In order to devise two plaid designs unlike any used by actual clans during the past several hundred years Russ Hanlin, chief costumer at Columbia, assigned a staff of researchers to invent two distinctive new patterns of tartans — the checkered or cross-barred woolen cloth with narrow bands of various colors which served as the insignia of Scottish clans.

The family histories of dozens of clans were subject to exhaustive investigation before "The Swordsman" could go into production. Among them were clans with names like Gordon, MacDonald, Campbell, MacIntosh, MacKinnon, Robertson, MacPherson, Innes, Fraser, MacDonald of Seat, MacKenzie, Douglas, MacTavish and MacDougall.

For the story of the picture itself, which — though based on an actual incident in Scottish history — is fictional, the studio decided to name the feuding clans the Glowans and the MacArdens.

When the tartans had been chosen, two new difficulties beset Hanlin and his co-workers: an acute shortage of plaid material, and the task of properly reproducing the colors of that day, since Hollywood had never before made any Technicolor film of this period of Scottish history.

Hanlin was finally able to obtain a total of 2,000 yards of plaid — 1,000 for each of the feuding clans — by resorting to a difficult procedure of dyeing material several times. As the result of his work, the Technicolor film will show two completely original tartan designs. Besides Parks and Miss Drew, principal actors in the cast of "The Swordsman" include George Macready, Edgar Buchanan, Ray Collins and Marc Platt, Joseph H. Lewis directed from Wilfrid H. Pettitt's original screenplay. Burt Kelly produced.

Have you $10.00 in UNITED STATES Money?

Existing regulations make it illegal for any Canadian resident to retain in his possession more than $10 in United States cash.

You are required to turn in to your bank, for exchange into Canadian money, any amount you have in excess of $10 in United States funds, without delay.

THERE'S A REASON

The reason is that Canada must have the U.S. dollars spent here by tourists, in order to make them available for the payment of imported goods and services needed to keep production and employment at a high level.

BLUSHING BETTY
2 lbs. rhubarb, 1 1-3 cups sugar, 1-3 cup raisins, 2 tps. shortening, 1 egg, 1 1-2 tps. baking powder 1-4 tsp salt, 1-3 cup milk, 1-2 tsp. vanilla, 1 cup flour.
Wash rhubarb, do not peel. Cut in 1 inch pieces; mix with 1 cup sugar. Place in greased casserole, add raisins. Cream shortening, vanilla and 1-3 cup sugar. Add beaten egg. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Spread over fruit. Bake in electric oven, 350 degs., for 50 minutes. Serves 5.
TAKE A TIP
1. To bake vegetables: It is not always necessary to leave them whole in the skin. For instance, scrub potatoes, cut in half and place cut side down in an open baking dish.
2. To steam vegetables in the oven. Place peeled firm vegetables in a pan. Salt to taste. Add not more than 4 or 5 tps. of water. Cover. If your oven dish has no cover to fit tie cookery parchment on with a string. This will keep the steam in.
3. To bake desserts with an oven meal: These should be placed on the upper rack and only covered if they contain a small amount of liquid.
4. To obtain even browning of baked foods: The pans must never touch each other or the sides of the oven. Arrange them on the racks so that they do not sit directly over one another.

ter cake?
Answer: 1 cup maple syrup plus 1-4 teaspoon baking soda less 1-4 cup of milk for 1 cup sugar.
Mrs. D. M. says: I have tried to make tea biscuits with chicken fat but I taste grease in them. How do you add the fat?
Answer: You only use 2-3 cup chick fat in place of 1 cup shortening or lard and cut in the chilled fat with a pastry blender.
Mrs. C. T. asks: At what temperature should I bake a soufflé so it will not fall?
Answer: Bake at 325 degrees for about 40 minutes — then serve at once in the custard cups.
Mrs. M. J. asks: Should apples be peeled for a salad?
Answer: Not unless the skin is wrinkled and tough.

Here's the way to redecorate . . .
attractive, colourful, durable wall surfaces for around $5.00 per room

Use Glidden SPRED

One easily applied coat of Spred transforms the walls of a room into smooth areas of velvety color. Old paint and wallpaper disappear completely under the lovely new finish. Stains and discolored areas are covered as if they had never been. And the attractive velvety wall surface is readily kept clean.

Spred dries in thirty minutes, leaving an even colorful finish that brings a gleam of Spring sunshine into the room. It dries without a trace of "painty" odour so that the room is ready for immediate use.

There are Spred colors to blend and harmonize with the color schemes you are planning for your home. Your Glidden Paint Dealer will gladly help you select the right combination of fashionable shades.

The New Look—In the Air, On the Ground

TIME CHANGES the look of an aeroplane and women's dresses, but, while the aeroplane's new look is inspired by the unknown future, the ladies appear to have taken at least one backward glance at old-world charm. The aeroplane pictured is the Vickers jet Attacker, which, at 564.6 m. p. h., streaked to a new international 100 kilometers record for Britain. British jet engines are also powering U. S. aircraft.

—The gowns pictured are from Britain, too. With bows at the shoulder and hips, the dinner dress is in wine and silver brocade. Encircled with flowers, the white organdie, crinolined gown is for mid-summer nights. While Britons may see much of the aeroplane, they will see little of the gowns; women's clothing fashions are too small to stretch to special evening wear, which means the gowns will go for export.

Many friends and relatives gathered at the home of Miss Teenie Aird Athol, on Sunday afternoon, May 9th, to pay their final tribute of respect to the memory of her sister, Miss Jessie Aird, who passed away on Friday morning at 7 o'clock.

The service was conducted by the Rev. J. H. Hamilton of Maxville United Church, who brought a comforting message on the thought, "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place (home-land) in all generations. He also paid tribute to Miss Aird's godly heritage her love of poetry and her remarkable memory which enabled her to store her mind with beautiful things.

Members of the choir assisted in the singing of the Shepherd Psalm and "Forever with the Lord" with Charles Munro at the piano. He accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hunter in the duet, "Sweet Hour of Prayer"—a favorite hymn of the late Miss Aird.

A nephew, Alexander P. Munroe, Andrew M. Fisher, Stanley Campbell Dan W. Fraser, Alexander Ross and Ernest McPhail acted as pall bearers.

The beautiful flowers were offerings from Miss Teenie Aird, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Fisher, Miss Sara Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fisher Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. Aird Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomson, Mrs. J. W. Morrison Miss Dorothy Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. John M. While still young, she left home and was engaged in Montreal, Albany and in New Haven, Connecticut, where she spent most of the years of her life. During the illness of her sister, Mrs. A. A. McDougall, six years ago, she returned to Athol, where she remained with her sister Miss Teenie Aird.

Corn One Of Best Crops To Grow

Information relative to the growing of hybrid corn was received by a large number of Glengarry farmers who attended a meeting held in the High School, here, last Thursday evening. J. R. Annett of the Canada Starch Company was the special speaker and he stated that corn is one of the best and safest crops a farmer can grow. The meeting was sponsored by the Glengarry Crop Improvement Association.

Mr. Annett cautioned farmers not to go into the crop too heavily at first until they were assured of adequate machinery to harvest and were familiar with some of the culture practices connected with its growth. He pointed out that many of the farmers would have to become educated to the proper hybrids to use and that No. 240 and No. 275 are the most satisfactory to be grown in this area. Another early hybrid No. 250 will be available to farmers in two or three years. He said that the crop is of high value to the farmer whether it be grown as feed crop or a cash crop.

Mr. Annett also stated that his company is purchasing four pickers for use in this Eastern district, but made it clear that these could only be made available as the acreage of corn permitted. He therefore said that farmers are better off to grow a small acreage to be harvested by hand in case a picker is not available.

John D. MacLeod, of Dunvegan former director of the Crops, Weeds, and Seeds Branch Ontario Department of Agriculture, was present and took part in the discussion. He agreed with the speaker that this crop could be successfully grown in this country. Mr. MacLeod has recently returned to his farm in Dunvegan, after many years of government service.

Others prominent in the discussion that followed were: Ian MacLeod, of Dunvegan; former Agricultural Representative; R. J. Graham, of Alexandria; Horace Marjerson president of the Glengarry Cheese Producers; and Donald A. Macdonald K. C.

R. G. Bennett, local Agricultural Representative, acted as chairman and introduced the guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, of Aberdeen-shire, Scotland, arrived in Canada three weeks ago by plane. They enjoyed their trip over and are delighted to be in Canada but find every thing strange. They have taken up residence here, having purchased the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gunn, and have already met a number of their new neighbours who extend them a hearty welcome to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arbuthnot, Cornwall, spent the week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie MacIntosh. Mrs. Charlie MacIntosh returned home after nursing her mother Mrs. Robert Wood. Harrison, who was very seriously ill. Friends here are pleased to hear she is well again.

sions where she has served, summing it all up in the statement that the work of a missionary is to be a friend.

Each session began with worship led in turn by Wales-Moulinette Auxiliary, Mrs. C. S. Thompson, Mrs. H. Hamilton and a C.G.I.T. girl, and the Aultsville and Lunenburg Auxiliaries. Special music provided by the Martintown C.G.I.T. Miss Joan Thomas, and Mrs. J. M. Fleming also added to the inspiration of the meetings.

The work of the different departments was presented in an interesting way in a sectional vice - presidents' symposium and a series of open forums led by Mrs. W.S. Atchison, Mrs. E. H. Gray, Mrs. John McMartin and Mrs. C. J. Martel. The treasurer reported an increase in givings of $140 over last year. Awards of recognition were presented to the following: Mission Bands: 1st year - Martintown, Moose Creek, Newington, North Lunenburg, Wales 2nd year - Alexandria, Avonmore, North Valley; 3rd year - Kirk Hill, Maxville; 4th year - Williamstown; and 6th year - Cornwall Knox. The award for the best read auxiliary went to Lunenburg Book Reviews by Mrs. W. A. MacKinnon called attention to the wealth of missionary literature available for all who desire it.

Mrs. E. A. Kirker announced that plans are well advanced for the annual school for leaders at Edgell Sept. 13-17, and it is hoped Glengarry will be well represented. This year Wednesday's programme has been specially planned for those who cannot attend full time.

An invitation was received to hold the next annual meeting of the Presbyterian in Glen Sandfield.

At the supper hour on Thursday, greetings were brought from Conference Branch and from Ottawa Presbyterian by Mrs. D. R. Carson, from Aultsville Presbyterian W.M.S. by Mrs. Flora Ault, from the Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's Anglican Church by Mrs. Edith Hunter, and from Glen garry Presbytery by Rev. H. M. Beach. These were responded to by Mrs. A. A. Morrison.

A message was received from Mrs. G. W. Irvine, Conference Branch president who regretted that she was unable to be present; and a letter was read from Miss Eleanor Kirker, our missionary in Angola, West Africa.

A candle lighting ceremony in which candles of truth, prayer, giving, light, love and the great commission were all lighted from the candle of the light of God, was a fitting closing for the Thursday evening service. On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Robert MacKay conducted a simple but impressive In Memoriam service for the 28 members who have passed on during the year.

The following resolutions were adopted by the convention: 1. That we the members of the W.M.S., pur-pose in our hearts to do all in our power to promulgate the understanding and practice of Christian stewardship principles as laid down by the United Stewardship Council of North America.

2. That we hereby adopt, and undertake to faithfully apply in our practice, the Resolution on Total Abstinence framed and sanctioned by the General Council at its meeting in Montreal in September 1946.

That we deplore and vigorously condemn the increasing carelessness by which the Christian Sabbath is being outraged; and that we call upon our W.M.S. members everywhere to so act personally, and to so use their influence, that (1) Entertainments and shopping to a late hour on Saturday nights be discouraged—that so there may be a more healthful and restful preparation for the Holy Day; (2) Sunday radio programmes that are not in keeping with the function and spirit of the Sabbath be avoided; and (3) That we discharge and avoid all commercialized sport practised on Sunday.

The following officers were elected for 1948-49, and duly installed by Mrs. Carson: honorary president Mrs. Robert MacKay, Maxville; past president, Mrs. G. W. Irvine, Williams town; president, Mrs. W. S. Atchison, Cornwall; recording secretary, Mrs. A. What Makes Community Spirit

Men of high character leave a stamp on their country for generations. It often issues in a seemingly unaccountable sense of local pride and community spirit.

Many a Canadian town got off to a good start in pioneer days because of the influence of a few such citizens. Men who, because their own home life was sound, knew how to care for their neighbours and their town. They were able to judge between right and wrong and were therefore clear-sighted and impartial in the administration of public affairs.

In their own lives, such men put God first - building a church by the sweat of their bodies and out of the produce of their own soil. Then they built good schools and good roads. They were leaders because they cared more for the welfare of their community than they did for their own comfort or profit. As the years went by, they pressed to have the village incorporated; they advocated a public library; they supported a local newspaper and they organized a County Fair.

Today we have inherited these advantages. As we living on what we have received, or can we care for our community like our forefathers, building for the future.

In reality, caring for the community means caring for the people in it. For their sakes we deal in town encouragement, clean local sport, turn out to vote, elect men of integrity and help our police to enforce the law. For their sakes we must be willing to end a family feud, learn to apologize even for the fellow who burnt our back fence.

Real community spirit is created by teamwork among citizens who love their neighbours and their town; who give inspired leadership because they themselves are Gold-led and for have the courage to fight for what is right.

TIME BOMBS
We need a sense of public responsibility in every private decision. Great statesmanship is not made up of deep thinking but of deep caring.

Warm hearts make sound homes. Hot heads break them. Materialism is an endless search for something which can never satisfy.

Check your car - check accidents. Last year in Ontario, 12 per cent of the convictions for violations of the Highway Traffic Act were for mechanical defects in vehicles. The chart illustrates the danger points of your car, where a safety check may save your neck.

Motor Mechanics To Be Trained Professionally in New School

Indentured motor mechanic apprentices, nearly 2,000 of them throughout Ontario, will soon start real professional training at the Vehicle Repair School in Toronto, states John Robbins, general manager of the Ontario Garage Operators' Association and a former director of the Detroit Traffic Safety Council.

Recognizing the need for trained mechanics to service the increasing number of vehicles on the road, and for new, up-to-date knowledge on postwar innovations in cars, the Garage Operators' Association persuaded the provincial departments of labour and education to take over the rehab school's facilities when veteran training programs come to a close. Now a committee of experts from the motor business, thoroughly experienced in mechanics' training, is drawing up a complete course which apprentices will have to pass before they can be certified as motor mechanics.

It is expected that, starting in September, garagemen with apprentices in their employ will be advised when their apprentices are due for a course at the trade school, and will ask the employers to cooperate by granting leave of absence.

A warrant for railway transportation will be provided the apprentice by the Department of Labour who will also settle him in a government inspected boarding house and give him a medical examination. While he is at school his employer will keep him on his payroll.

The majority of the motor repair trade is wholeheartedly behind this project, says Mr. Robbins, and both the industry and the public stand to benefit by the scheme.

Don't Drive a Public Menace Says Garage Association Representative

For safer driving and a longer life for your car see your motor mechanic twice a year just as you do with your dentist, says James A. Reid, field representative for the Garage Operators' Association of Ontario.

Most people have their cars "winterized" before the cold weather sets in but with heavy summer driving ahead it is just as important to "summer-ize," states Mr. Reid. Barring collision damage, every major repair on a car was once a minor job - which would have saved the owner many dollars if caught in time. Winter driving is hard on any car, and safe summer driving demands a thorough checkup now to prevent major and perhaps dangerous breakdowns later.

Check Points

For safety's sake the most important items are brakes, steering and lights according to this veteran garageman. While cold weather does not seem to affect brakes unduly, Mr. Reid emphasizes their importance as a safety factor, and as one thing that should never be forgotten in "summer-izing" a car. Uneven braking on different wheels can be dangerous.

Rough winter roads are definitely hard on wheel alignment and steering, Mr. Reid says. Unless these are checked now, too much "play" in the steering and perhaps a pronounced "shimmy" can develop before fall.

Lights are often knocked out of line by the excessive vibration of winter driving and beam alignment should be checked. Wiring for the lights should be checked for deterioration caused by condensation and freezing of moisture on wire covering.

For the sake of longer life for your car the obvious "spring cleaning" jobs include flushing out the radiator and changing the oil. A less apparent spring need is cleaning the undersurface of the car. During the winter rock salt and other chemicals are used on icy surfaces and a good deal is picked up by the average car during a winter's driving. These chemicals have a corroding action and are

Women Keep Cars Safer for Driving

Women drivers keep their cars in better shape than men, says veteran garageman James A. Reid.

"I won't commit myself on whether or not they are safer drivers," he continues, "but women usually have sense enough to realize that they know very little about what makes a car tick. Consequently they take their cars to a professional motor mechanic whenever anything goes wrong, no matter how small.

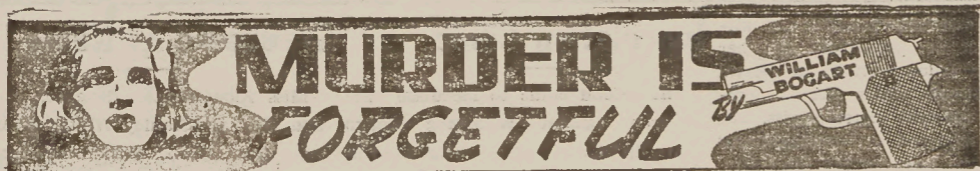

"On the other hand the average man fancies himself as a pretty fair mechanic, so he is inclined to let things go or try to fix them himself. Generally he winds up needing major repairs that could have been avoided by an early visit to a qualified mechanic."

Official statistics show that last year women drivers made up 19.1 per cent of the total number of licensed drivers in Ontario. But women drivers were involved in only 4.5 per cent of the total number of traffic accidents throughout the province!

Over the same official source cautiously adds that no figures are available on the mileage driven by women. So it's still anybody's argument!

one of the chief causes of "rot" on the fenders and the lower parts of the body, particularly along the s-ams.

"But the all-important safety gadget on a car," smiles Mr. Reid, "is still the 'nut that holds the wheel' and there's not very much we garagemen can do about it. Through the years we have discovered that the safe driver is a safe car. And your qualified motor mechanic will see that you have a safe car to drive. If his services are enlisted, you're safe enough."

CHAPTER VI

His question trailed off. Neither of them spoke, and the girl's slim fingers dug fiercely into his arm as she involuntarily held onto him.

A little distance away, still unseen in the darkness, someone was moving toward them. Footsteps made hushed scuffing sounds in the loose sand.

The girl must have been holding her breath, Johnny thought. He suspected that he was doing the same thing himself. The footsteps had paused. Somewhere back from the shore there was the sound of crickets in the quiet, warm night. Neither of them had ever felt so alone in their life.

They crouched there on the beach, trying to hold their panic in, for what seemed an eternity.

Then the brilliant flashlight beam struck them full in the face.

A sharp voice said, "What's going on—" The tone of the man's voice changed and he exclaimed, "Oh, I beg your pardon, Miss Kay—" The light blinked out.

"It's all right, Steve" Kay got to her feet, a sigh of relief escaping her lips. She turned and touched Johnny's arm in the gloom. "It's one of the guards."

The fellow had sense enough to keep the flashlight turned off. Johnny imagined he had noted Kay's half-dressed figure.

"Someone tried to kill us, Steve!" the girl said. Her voice trembled again.

"No!"

The guard came closer. Johnny was vaguely able to make out his features in the light. He was a big, powerful fellow about thirty. He had close-cropped hair that looked blond in the darkness.

Johnny said, "He was hidden somewhere along the south shore. I think he was using a silenced rifle."

The estate guard had been holding a heavy revolver in his hand. Now he holstered the gun. Johnny had an impression that his big jaw set with determination. "I'll get right down there and take a look—" "Is there another boat handy?" Johnny asked.

"There's another one at the dock," said the girl.

"Fine. We'll use that." He looked at the guard as all three of them started along the beach. "I'd hate to see that speedboat lost at the bottom of the harbor."

"Except maybe the guy'll hear us approaching in the boat," Steve said. "Don't worry, he's disappeared long ago," Johnny pointed out. "He wouldn't hang around."

"I guess you're right," the guard agreed.

"But we'll have a look anyway." They had reached the path that led down from the main house. Kay said, "Be careful now." She started to swing up the pathway.

"Wait a minute," Johnny said, joining her. He didn't think he should leave her alone. "I'll go with you. It'll only take a moment—" "I'll be all right. Don't bother." Her voice was still nervous.

"I'll get the boat ready," the guard said.

Ahead of them there was a single, deep-throated bark, then the huge Great Dane had joined them. He rubbed up against the girl's bare legs and she took hold of him by the collar.

"Good boy, Michael," she said to the dog.

"I'll be all right now," Kay said. She still held the Great Dane by the heavy collar. "But you ought to change your clothes first. The speedboat can wait—" "It's the first time I've felt cool in days," he told her. He thought it was nice the way she considered him.

He turned back and found his way along the path. A moment later he joined the husky guard on the boat dock. He could see the man's movements clearly against the night background of the harbor.

"All set," Steve said. He bent down and held the small boat against the dock while Johnny climbed in. "We'd best not use a light. I still think it'd be better if we went by way of the beach. I'd like to find that guy, but he'll hear our motor."

Again Johnny pointed out. "He'll be gone, don't you worry."

They cast off, and the outboard made a lot of noise in the quiet night. It was only a matter of moments until they reached the south shore. The guard cut the motor and they drifted in, as he strained his eyes to pick out the landing spot. Johnny had pointed out what he thought was the logical spot where the rifleman must have been hidden. Foliage and trees were particularly heavy at that point and there was no beach.

Low branches brushed against them as they bumped the shore. They climbed out, tying a line to a tangled stump.

Steve used the flashlight now, but at the same time he kept his right hand close to the unslung gun holster at his hip. His eyes were alert and hard. Johnny thought he looked like a fellow with a lot of nerve but not too many brains.

The place where they were searching was wild and unkempt. There was not even a path along the shore. They pushed branches aside as they worked their way along.

From time to time, not far distant, there came the sound of a passing car along a roadway. Johnny motioned through the woods. "What highway is beyond here?" "That's 25-A. It follows the shore." "Let's go back there and see if a car was parked."

"Say, that's an idea!" Steve plowed through the woods and "Say, that's an idea!" Steve of him.

Presently they emerged along the highway. The road was winding and not very wide. Johnny didn't think there would be room for a car to park alongside the highway. Shoulders alongside the ribbon of cement were too narrow.

Two cars passed them, the hum of their motors quickly fading in the night. The highway swung down through a little hollow and there was a circular area large enough to accommodate a car.

Steve said, "That'd be about the only place along here where a jalopy could park. Let's look."

Johnny saw marks of tire tracks. The ground was hard-packed, dry, and there was some dust. But not enough to take a good impression of tire treads.

However, directly in the middle of the indistinct tracks were one or two fresh spots of oil that had dropped from an engine pan. Someone had parked here, and very recently. Though there was no clue as to who that person might be, it satisfied a suspicion that had been running through Johnny Saxon's mind; the mysterious gunman had reached his rendezvous by way of the Highway, the natural route by which he could make a swift escape.

"Come on," Johnny said to the guard. "Let's find that speedboat."

Returning through the woods, Steve asked him, "I understand you're out here workin' on the mystery around Martin Smith's death."

"You might call it working," Johnny said.

The estate guard looked at him as he held a tree branch aside. He was again leading the way with the light. His eyes were rather an expressionless pale gray.

"What do you figure about her?" he continued.

"Mrs. Smith . . . Irene."

"What about her?"

"Do not think she knocked off her husband and is just pullin' this can't remember gag?"

Johnny said, "Don't worry, it isn't a gag. The woman is really ill. She doesn't recall a thing."

"Then who done it?"

Johnny shrugged. "Find the person who tried to fill me and Kay full of lead tonight, and perhaps I could tell you."

Ten minutes later they located the high-powered speedboat not far from the spot where they had tied up the outboard. It was drifting close in to shore. Hooking a line to the second boat, they towed it back toward the boathouse. Apparently the shots had not damaged it seriously. There was no water in the cockpit.

As they docked the guard said, "I'll take care of the boats. You better change your clothes. And tell Miss Kay not to worry. Anybody prowls around here tonight, he gets a slug."

"Just be sure it isn't me," advised Johnny Saxon.

Moe Martin wasn't in their room. Johnny had showered and put on clean clothes when there was a knock on the hall door.

It was Kay Smith.

She held a tray containing sandwiches and a cup of coffee. She looked scrubbed and clean and fresh, though her face was still strained from their recent ordeal.

"Hannah thought we were dining in Newport," she said to Johnny. "So I fixed this for you." She placed the tray on the writing desk, sat on the edge of the bed and looked up at him as he selected one of the dainty sandwiches. "Did you find—"

He shook his head. "We searched as far as the highway. It was someone in a car."

There was fear in her eyes again. "Maybe whoever it was . . . will come back?"

"Hardly. Not now." He munched a sandwich. "These are very good—" "I'm frightened, Mr. Saxon," the girl said tensely. She was standing up. "It's a terrible feeling . . . not knowing who shot at us . . . not knowing when the attempt might be made again!"

"They wouldn't enter the estate," he reassured her. "They'd know about the guards."

"You're positive?"

"Sure."

He wasn't though. He thought there was something very sinister about a person stalking you with intent to kill . . . especially when you had not the slightest idea who that person might be.

Kay was moving toward the door. "Mother's waiting downstairs." She seemed nervous. "She's asking for you again."

"How is she?"

Kay shook her head soberly. "No different. Every hour of the day I hope that she'll suddenly remember things." Her voice broke a little. "That she'll remember . . . me . . . her own daughter."

"You'll find her with her sister. Nancy's staying here for a while. And there's Nicky Walker. They're in the library."

"Who's Nicky Walker?"

"A close friend of Nancy's. Mother's sister never married." She smiled a little. She had beautiful eyes, but they were troubled. "Maybe I'll see you later."

"I hope so," said Johnny. He stood there looking at the door as it closed behind her. He thought she was a lovely, intelligent girl.
